

THE WORLD'S PRESS.

SPORT FOR SPORT'S SAKE.

Manchester Guardian: There is far less organized seeking after the highest sporting honors in England than elsewhere. We have a few specialists and gloriously large companies of dilettanti. So long as those companies keep up their strength, it does not much matter what the specialists do.

INDUSTRY AND CREDIT.

Daily Chronicle: Since the war we have pinched our industry in order to restore our credit, a process only justifiable if our credit is in turn to help restore our industry. It would seem pure folly to allow it instead to be frittered away in other countries without any benefit to our own producers.

WOMEN'S CEREMONY.

Daily Express: Men are the chief mongers of platitudes. That is because they have only tongues where-with to converse. Women have a much vaster armory. They have their eyes and their eyebrows as well as their mouths. And in their range of platitude they have greater scope for latitude. Who shall say which is the more devastating?

THE COAL DEADLOCK.

Brooklyn Eagle: There is only one thing to do with the deadlock: Break it. It is a waste of time looking for a magic key that will open a lock that has made up its mind not to open. Yet the general attitude toward deadlocks in disputes is one of hopeless hand-wringing and frantic screeches for missing keys. The only answer is to smash the deadlock just as we smash perversely inanimate locks.

PROTECT THE BIRDS.

The Times: If men are imaginative enough and respectful of nature, if commerce and fashion can be humanised, there should be no reason why the bird life of these islands should not always remain rich and varied. It will be regrettable if Lord Grey's bill fails, for want of time or other cause, to become law, because it agrees with the drift of opinion and harmonizes and tightens up the present rather unsatisfactory state of the law.

WHY ESPERANTO.

Providence Journal: English is the primary language of 160,000,000 people. Variants of Chinese are spoken as a native tongue by twice as many, mostly confined to a single area. There are about one hundred and thirty recognized languages, disregarding dialects, but none approaches English for widespread use; with the Chinese exception, no other is spoken by so many people. With such a long start English would be a natural selection for official recognition as a universal language.

HAMLET, WITHOUT THE PRINCE.

The Australasian: Long life, coupled with good health, is the ideal and obsession of everyone who has passed the fifty-year mark without being found out. How many of us, then, were at once interested in the cabined announcement by Dr. Oldfield, of London, that, if they will let him diet the nation, everybody will soon live to be a hundred. It's very simple, too—you cut out meat, tea, alcohol, and a few other things like that, and fatten on what's left. Porridge stands first, and the life-giving menu winds up with buttermilk and onions.

LOYALTY TO THE FLAG.

Daily Telegraph: We can understand those who dislike Jingoism and the louder type of Imperialism, both of which are happily rare today. But the Union Jack is for all patriotic Britons the emblem of their faith in the country, their cause, their ideals, and their race, sacred to their eyes and to their hearts, and hallowed by the memories of all who have worked for it and died for it. The simple question of Socialism and the Flag to our minds is this: Can and will the Socialists accept the Union Jack as their flag when they have won the electoral victory to which they look forward?

THE FIGHTING SPIRIT.

Rock Island Argus: Farmers and amateur gardeners often wonder why crops can't grow as prolifically and with as much strength as weeds. This is the answer: Weeds grow wild, with no helping hand, and they have to fight hard for existence or perish. They fight hard. That's why they survive. Take a garden. The veg-tables receive almost constant aid from man. They are in effect pampered. Through many generations they have come to "expect" this outside aid, in the sense that by having this aid supplied to them they have lost much of the natural vigor and initiative of vegetable life in the wild state. Progressively, as you take the obstacles away, the garden truck becomes weaker in ability to compete for existence with other growing things. So with all of us. Obstacles are sent to make us fight, thereby developing our powers, our strength.

FARMING TRUTHS.

Le Soleil: Farming is not only an occupation, it is a science. The man assured of a sufficient revenue to live who makes use of the latter is always comfortably, while those who neglect it lose a substantial part of the fruits of their labor, become discouraged and in course of time subjects for immigration or at least wanderers of an agricultural career, whenever a crisis takes place. If all the cultivators of Quebec followed the path of the advice which their instructors can give them, the harvest would be doubled in less than five years. Impoverished soils would become thirty per cent richer, farm products, butter, cheese, beans, vegetables, fruit, etc., would be marketed in better condition, would realize better prices, above all, if sold in co-operation, and the annual revenue of each farmer would be more proportionate to the energy which he exerted.

A New Method.

A guest at a country hotel gave instruction that he wished to be called early. The next morning he was disturbed by a loud tattoo upon the door. "Wall!" he demanded sharply. "Please, sir," said a voice. "I've got a message for you." Yawning heavily, he jumped out of bed and unlocked the door. A page boy handed him an envelope and walked quickly away. The guest opened the envelope and took out a slip of paper bearing the words: "It's time to get up."

An Appeal

ON BEHALF OF THE UNEMPLOYED AND DESTITUTE.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—As the columns of your widely read paper are always open in the cause of justice and right, might I venture to make an appeal for the starving, unemployed portion of the citizens of this town. Surely the authorities of both Church and State are aware that in this city where evidences of luxury and individual extravagance are apparent to everybody that there are a large number of creatures made in the "range of God, without food, food, and decent clothing there are little innocent children with pinched, pitiful faces, newly born infants entering the heritage of poverty, their fathers wandering the streets day after day in search of work to gain the wherewithal to feed them, but in vain. If they were Armenians long ago would their appeal be heeded? but nobody seems to care. The animals are well looked after, but those who we expect to grow up and carry on the business of the country are left to starve. And I now ask in behalf of the unfortunate unemployed that work be found for them before we as a community are brought face to face with the eternal disgrace of allowing our people to perish for want of the food which is theirs by right. If and when there is work started I trust that no more camouflage contracts will be handed out to favorites. The money voted for the needy should be placed in the proper channels, and not given to well paid locusts who are always on the lookout for a grab. History repeats itself every time. Who would ever think that we would have a visit from the shades of All Baba and the forty thieves? All that was wanted was the jars, and those might be procured from the rumshop on Duckworth Street. "Where are we and winter coming?" That question can be answered easily if the management of our affairs are not radically changed. We will either sell out or crawl out. Be that as it may it is right up to our representatives and our church authorities to get busy and see that honest labor is provided for those who are idle and hungry through no fault of their own. We are a law abiding people by choice and by nature, but there is a point where the line must be drawn, and I think they deserve credit for the manner in which they have conducted themselves during this trying time. Now, Mr. Editor, they expect your help to ventilate their troubles and I feel sure they will not be disappointed.

Yours sincerely,
ONE OF THEM.

She Knows The Reason

WHEN the thinking woman sees a housewife with red hands, she knows the reason. Nine times out of ten there is something wrong with the soap she is using.

To be certain about the purity of your soap, see that it contains no lye to harm your hands.

Ask your grocer for Kirkman's Soap. There can be no better soap because

The best materials obtainable are used. It is absolutely free from all adulteration.

It contains no lye to coarsen or redden the hands.

Further, it is boiled nine different times, so as to be certain of the perfect blending of all the ingredients.

THIS makes it absolutely sterile—free from germs—and safe to use, even on the most delicate skin.

And for nearly a century, this has been true about Kirkman's Soap, ever since 1837, in fact.

If you want your hands to look their best—smooth, soft and beautiful—ask for Kirkman's Soap, and use it regularly for all laundry and household purposes.
