A Momentous Meeting

To-day the Inter-allied Conference meets to consider once more the long drawn out question of reparations. On this occasion the chances of'a settlement are considerably greater than ever before. The representatives have before them, a definite plan, worked out in detail by a number of capable business men who have arrived at their decisions by methods never before adopted under simdividually accepted their recomthods of putting them into ef- Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett many happy fect. WANTS' CORONATION STONE BE-

LONDON, July 16. The House of Commons indulged in asiderable hilarity to-day when David Kirkwood, the Laber member for Dumbartion introduced a bill to provide to remove Scottish stone of destiny from Westminister Abbey where it is used in the coronation of British Monarchs to Holy Rood Palace, Edinburgh, Kirkwood said according to tradition this stone was Jacobs pillow at Bethel, when he was before his brother Esau. Jacob, Kirkwood continued, took the stone to Egypt and the Kings of Egypt long possessed it. Next the was taken to Ireland Kirkwood said amid laughter. He admitted he did not know whether this was true or not, but anyhow the stone which was of Scottish sandstone lay at Scone four or five centuries. Then t was brought from Scotland to England by Edward I. The stone was the symbol of Scottish nationhood, Kirkwood continued. It was a venerable relic which rightfully should be n Scotland, not in England. Scotland has tried repeatedly to get the stone returned to that country but the sentiment of London he said was against this.
