A profound silence fell upon the Washington Cleveler.

LOSSES OF WAR BY LAND AND SEA

Stupendous Slaughter of Human Life Should Halt the Conflict.

London, Aug. 22.—While it is possible that the list of casualties in the Russo-Japanese war may be greatly augmented before it is complete, yet in view of the growing feeling that peace will be shortly declared, a calculation of the losses on both sides is opportune. From material furnished by the Tokio correspondent of the London Times an accurate reckoning of the Japanese losses may be readily obtained. No such certainty is possible regarding the Russian casualties. the policy of the Czar being to conceai the worst. There are, of course, published accounts of losses in most of the engagements, but these must be considered as the minimum of Russian casualties. On the other hand, the peculiarly solemn religious rites of the Japanese make it imperative that not one lost man should remain unaccounted for. Since June there has been practically no engagement, so that calculations made up till then will remain trustworthy. At the outside, therefore, the Japanese have lost 167,402 men, killed, wounded and prisoners, while the minimum of Russian losses may be put at 388,480; that is to say, two Russians for every Japanese. By far the bloodiest battle of the whole war has been that of Mukden, which continued from Feb. 19 to March 16. In this titanic conflict the Japanese losses were 52,500, while no fewer than 152,500 Russians were killed, wounded or made prisoners. The second most costly engagement was that of Shaho, on Sept. 14, 1904, where 69,201 Russians fell, and 15,879 Japanese. More than 17,000 Japs went down at Liao Yang ten days earlier, and at least 25,000 Since June there has been practically no STRATHROY VS. McCLARYS With fair weather, a large attendance is assured for tomorrow afternoon's game between the Strathroy club and McClary's team for the county championship. Following is the lineup:

McClarys.

Strathroy. Yang ten days earlier, and at least 25,000 Russians were accounted for in that engagement. Another fierce action was that of Telissu in June, 1904, when nearly 10.000 Russian and 1,162 Japanese soldiers fell. .Sullivan ..Stevenson As we glance down the comparative list .Parsons .McIntosh we observe only one entry where the Japanese losses exceeded those of the Russians. Needless to say that this exceptional record is that of Port Arthur, where 50,000 Japanese and 20,000 Russians. ...Stathan ..Harrison were put out of action. Russia's nava casualties are larger than one would exbect, being 3,670. In this department, however, it may be truly said that the score gives no idea of the game. In the matter of prisoners the most exact figures are obtainable, and from these we gather that the control of the same of that here are 646 Japanese and 67,701 Russians in the hands of the enemy. Two to one is the average proportion of Russian to Japanese casualties, though in many actions we come across figures like these: Russians 800, Japanese 75; Russians 240, Japanese 50; Russians 600. Japanese 70; Russians 1,000, Japanese 299; Russians 4,250, Japanese 800. Turning to the material of war, we find Japanese success in even greater proportion. Russia has lost 346,588 tons of fighting ships, while the Japanese navy emerges with a displacement 25.435 greater than when the war began. Russia has had 15 first-class battleships engaged, and of these 12 have been sunk, 2 captured and the remaining ship mutinied; while in armored cruisers, of 7 belligerents, 5 have been sunk and 2 remain. Of 24 destroyers, 19 have been sunk, 2 captured, 1 interned and 2 remain. Altogether, of the 83 Russian ships of all kinds in the struggle, 57 have been sunk, 7 captured, 19 interned, and only 10 remain. Two Japanese battleships have gone down, 4 cruisers, 2 destroyers and 4 ships otherwise destroyed, making a total of 10; but not one has been captured, not one interned. Of the original 76, no fewer than 64 remain ready to continue the war. To Japan's credit in this account must be placed the battleships and cruisers raised at Port Arthur. Only the other day goodly additions were made to this record, and the Japanese hope to recover every ship there sunk. e been sunk, 2 captured, 1 inter-hope to recover every ship there sunk. Certainly they are working harder to raise them than was necessary to send them to the bottom. Of non-combatant vessels captured Japan can answer for 45, while the Rushis way to the cottage, and getting a landern, returned to the jut of the ledge.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—With more than a week gone since the signing of the hull fishing fleet, but on the Russian score is 27. The list does not include than a week gone since the signing of articles for the Britt-Nelson battle, which is scheduled to take place on Sept. 9 in an open-air arena at Colma, Stress of weather. The Japanese centroper of the signing of the procession of the procession of the signing of the procession of the signing of the signing of the procession of the procession of the signing of the procession of the processio stress of weather. The Japanese captures have added 49 vessels to the mercantile strength of the nation. Of these 15 belonged to Russia, and most of them were large craft. The other nationalities represented in the workform. ented in the craft captured by the Japanese were: Germany, 6; England, 10: France, Austria, Norway and the United States, one or two vessels apiece. In no case have the Japanese sunk a non-com-batant vessel. Russia, on the contrary, has sunk or burned every one but three vessels, and of these the fate of two is unknown.

One might find in this fact an explana-of the truth that general sympathy of the world is with Japan, if no other reason existed than the treatment the belligerents accorded alien vessels. Reviewing the record of the war to date, it is indeed difficult to see any reason for Russia to continue the struggle. Not a single vistory stands to her credit. From the point of view of the world at large the argument for peace is strong. There have been half a million men killed and would do not be a strong. Erne wrested the championship from Kid Lavinge at Buffalo, N. Y., will be seen in action. The articles of agreewounded in the awful conflict, and, as is ever the case in war, they have been largely drawn from a class that is the salt of their respective countries. # Why Tea Quality Varies

VOU know how the quality of strawberries from the same patch will sometimes vary from one day to

One day sweet, compact, well ripened, well colored, richly flavored-next day it rains, is cloudy,-following picking is soggy, sour, green, coarsely-flavored, poor.

Tea, also, on account of its volatility of flavor, after picking and during the curing process is very susceptible to weather changes. A few hours of sunshine or bad weather after picking may make the difference between good and poor tea.

So that while one picking may be first class, the next from the same garden may be very poor.

I select only the pickings which come up to the Red Rose standards of richness and strength in Indian, and delicacy and fragrance in Ceylon teas, and thus that "rich, fruity flavor" of Red Rose Tea is produced and
