Lively Battle Brewing Over Incorporation of Proposed Village of Ealing.

After hearing a good deal of disc both for and against the incorporation of the proposed villages of Ealing and East mount, the county council last night re-ferred the matter to the legislative and petition committees to report on.

In the Ealing case there promises to be an intersting legal fight as to whether the petition which was circulated should have been sent around until a census had been taken.

The petitioners contend that they acted legally throughout, and those opposed to the incorporation say that they did not,

Ex-Aid. Pocock also argued that the petition for incorporation was illegal. The petitioners against, he said, intended to take action to secure their rights if necessary. Many large property owners had not had a chance to express themselves, and wanted to do so.

Mr. Sanders said a majority of the property owners were strongly against the move, and he thought the council ought to see that all got justice.

Mr. Bayly claimed that a census must be taken, and that it was the duty of the council to go on and pass tre bylaw and take it. He held that it was unnecessary to take the census first.

Mr. Finch, another property owner, spoke against the petitions in favor of incorporating Eastmount, said there was no machinery in the act to provide for taking a census before a petition was presented. He urged that men who held agreements were freeholders.

Mr. George Garratt, speaking against the petitions aid that if the law passed part of his farm would be included. He did not think it would be fair to including 1,079 asylum inmates, is 1.719.

Mr. Garratt, sen, said there were not 750 residents without taking in the asylum people.

HIUT 10 List of Musical Moman, 115 Years Old, Lived on Black Bread.

St. Petersburg, June 6. — There is living in Kishineff a hale and active old lady, Maria Jönesco, who has just celebrated her 115th birthday. She was born in the Bessarabian Village of Strashen in 1796. She is a childless widow. Her sight and hearing are still nearly perfect, she is comparatively active on her feet, her silvery hair is abundant, she has lost only four teeth and has never in her life made the professional acquaintance of a doctor.

London, June 7—T. P. O'Connor produced yesterday before the committee of the House of Commons which is considering the copyright bill, a long list of great authors who had never been adequately remunerated for their work.

"Shakespeare," he said, "never made a penny out of copyright. A grand-daughter of Milton would have starved if Dr. Johnson had not got up a benefit performance for her.

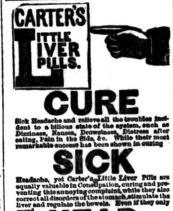

"A descendant of Daniel Defoe was found to be in receipt of parish relief in London a few years ago.

"A descendant of Robert Burns is engaged in mechanical work in London today. It was practically a bill for a £5 note that killed Robert Burns and it is no consolation for his fate that some American millionaire gave £1,000 for a first edition of his works or that Scotsmen dine together once a year and propose toasts to his memory."
