of the year when their medicinal properties are at their best.

The watchword in preparing these herbs is cleanliness, the process of percolation is perfect. All utensils and tanks are sterilized and the medicine is pasteurized, clarified and filtered before it is bottled for the consumer.

It is this wonderful combination of herbs, together with the skill and care used in the preparation, which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

She keeps her nerve, however, and when she thinks them both safe in the library, locks the window from the outside and shoots a decrepit old revolver, which she had begged from the gardener. The family, thoroughly frightened, appears, and finds—not what Bab had triumphantly imagined—but her sister Lella and the young man with whom she was eloping. Poor Bai, thoroughly disgusted at her own flasco, retired with more haste than dignity to her own room, where her father soon found her apparently just waking up, although his golf cap was tilted over one ear, and the revolver lay still smoking beside her. She had not only lost the reward, but had effectively prevented just what she had wanted—to "marry off" her older sister, that she might nerself be "treated like a young lady." Her father, however, stood valiantly by her, and the story ends the next day with Bab telling him, "No, she is net too old to be held in laps."

the Bond Dealers' Association, was a marvel of efficiency, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific 20,000 workers were doing the same work as was being accomplished in London. The machine was working smoothly. England had been bearing the financial burden of the war, lending at first to the Allies. Borrowing abroad followed, then the rich individuals of England were called upon. Now the motherland was asking Canada to raise some money. England wanted to buy supplies here, but didn't have the ready money, and it was up to Canada to raise the Victory Loan as a basis of credit. It was little for us to do, but meant a lot to her.
