FORCED SERVICE STILL PERPLEXING PROBLEM |

Important Pronouncement Deferred Until Return of Asquith and Others.

FEAR CABINET CRISIS

Premier's Firm Stand Against General Conscription May Cause Deadlock.

Premier Asquith's emphatic declaration some months ago, that he would rot remain a member of any government which introduced general conscription, and in the face of this binding declaration it would seem that conscription of married men could only come about by the disappearance of Mr. Asquith from the ministry. It may therefore be assumed that another obligatory service bill will not be in-troduced in parliament without a grave cabinet conflict and crisis, espe-cially as the conscriptionist party strongly oppose the accession to the premiership of David Lloyd George, who is regarded in political circles as the natural successor of Mr. Asquith.

Limited Resolutions. When Walter Hume Long, president of the local government board, moved the adjournment of the house today to make his recruiting statement in beealf of the government, it was found that the ministers had limited resolutions to ameliorating, as far as possible, the hardships to the married men, seeking by all available steps to swell the number of single en-isted men by abolishing some of the ROBBERS IN WORLD reserved occupations, more extensive employment of women and the immediate calling up of men between 18 and 19 years of age, who are to be put in training, but will not be sent abroad.

Many Workers Released. Mr. Long opened by defending Lord Derby, the director of recruiting, from what he called unjust attacks. He said that Lord Derby's demands had been reasonable and that the government had met nearly all wishes, while other suggestions he had made were still under consideration. As the result of the investigations of a committee appointed for that purpose, the government had found it possible to reduce greatly the number of reserved occupations and to substitute women for men in munitions factories to an extent previously believed impossible, by which means a large number of men had already been released for military ser vice. By May 1, he said, a large numbe of occupations connected with the manufacture of munitions would be removed altogether from the reserved investigate whether it would be possible similarly to release more miners without reducing the coal output.

Two hundred and seventy-five thousand women had been found for commercial, clerical and transport work and another fourteen thousand for farm work.

Appeal to Married Men.

Mr. Long paid an eloquent tribute to the loyal sacrifice of the married men who had attested, which country gratefully recognized. He denied that they had been unfairly treated. He was certain they would not spoil their honorable record be-cause the exigencies of the war had cause the exigencies of the war had resulted in their being called to serve earlier than expected. earlier than expected.

After explaining that the calling up of the men under 19 years would re lease a large number of men for forthe government proposals for dealing with hardships arising thru enlistment of married men. These included grants from the pensions committee and power extended to the courts to break eases and other contracts entered into since as well as before the war. Mr. Long said that everything that could justly be done should be done to get the greatest number of single men and reduce the pecuniary and other burdens of the enlisted married men The government regarded it as a sacred duty to do everything in their power to support the heroic men at Carson's Strong Criticism. Sir Edward Carson, the former at-torney-general, followed with a strong criticism of the government's proposals. He said that the question of recruiting had never been grappled with in any proper or reasonable spirit. Lord Derby's scheme was a mistake. Before very long circumstance would compel resort to general compulsion as the only way to bring about quality or justice to all classes. The present piecemeal method would only augment the dissatisfaction of the married men.

ALL MOTHERS, wives and sisters of officers and men of the 201st Battalion. Toronto Light Infantry, are requested to meet at Harbord Collegiate Institute today at four o'clock for the purpose of forming a Women's Auxiliary of the battalion. Sir Edward warned the government that the public were taking up the question and would not accept the present situation.

After Sir Edward Carson had spoken the debate lost interest. Several members spoke for or against obligatory THE CITIZENS' RECRUITING COM-mittee of the 201st Battalion will meet in the Central Y.M.C.A. today at halfservice, showing a strong conflict of cpinion on the subject.

TORIES OF WARD FOUR FORM NEW ASSOCIATION

Secrecy Dominated Its Birth and Newspapermen Were Denied Admission.

HARMONY PREVAILED? The Meeting Was Only Formality, as Everything Was "Cut and Dried.'

Altho any amount of information was forthcoming to the effect that harmany crevailed in the Ward Four Conserva. ive camp, newspaper men were excluded from the meeting held in Mac-Bean's Hall, Brunswick avenue, last night, which resulted in a new organization being formed, to be known as the Ward Four Riding Conservative Association. A reporter for The World had just seated himself comfortably in a corner and was listening intently to the remarks of the chairman re-garding an article which appeared in en evening paper, when by some means his presence became known. He was told that he was not needed, and despite his protests, had to leave the room. The chairman announced that others had left the room and that the result of the meeting would be handed out afterwards. Ex-Trustee William Smith, the president of Ward Four Conservative Association, was early at the meeting, but in spite of the harmony and unity which was said to exist between al concerned, he was also refused admis sion. Speaking to The World, Mr. Smith said that he had only put in an appearance to make an explanation and try to heal matters.

Everything "Cut and Dried."

It was ascertained that meetings have been held by the dissenting faction for six weeks past, and apparently the 60 voters who attended the meeting had everything "cut and dried," as in a little over an hour the election o orficers had taken place without a hitch, and other matters arranged. During the proceedings a guard kept watch over the door and made a thoro

At the conclusion, some of the newlyelected officers stated that the griev ance with the other Conservatives had been ignored entirely, and all they had done was to form a new association to further the interests of the party, particularly in the north end of the ward. The following officers were elected: President, J. S. G. Cornell: first vice president, S. J. Sharpe; second vice-president, W. R. Black; third vicepresident, Lt.-Col. J. E.
