

PROHIBITIONISTS SEEK CHURCH AID

Dr. Mella Declares that Germany Has the "Drinking Devil."

Bueckeburg, Germany, Oct. 24.—"Every nation has its special devil, and the German people has the drinking devil," said Dr. F. O. Mella, of Frankfurt, at a congress of the German League for Prohibition held here recently. Only the influence of true Christianity can save the German nation from this devil, in the opinion of Dr. Mella.

The detrimental effect of alcohol on the German people was illustrated by figures given by Dr. Strecker, president of the league, who pointed out that three and a half billion marks are consumed annually in Germany by drinking. Altogether the damage done by alcohol to the people may be figured at six billion marks, according to Dr. Strecker who added: "Clever Americans knew what they could achieve by prohibition; sober and dry nations will be the future leaders of civilization."

George Michaels, one time Chancellor, referred to the connection of alcoholism with excesses, contending that the church could contribute greatly to the wiping out of alcoholism, which is mainly a matter of education. "The Protestant church of Germany has failed utterly so far, inasmuch as it did not make the alcohol question an issue of its own," said Herr von Wicht, a parson from Bielefeld. He added that new hopes in this direction might be harbored since the separation of church and state.

London Has 20,000 Amateur Actors

London, Oct. 24.—London's 20,000 amateur actors will try this winter to get into the professional class. The 200 societies to which the amateurs belong have handed together and rented a West End theatre, where they will stage the best they can produce. They will open the "season" about the first week in November with a gala performance organized by many different societies. Afterwards the societies will each take over the theatre for a week and, should any of the productions prove popular, arrangements will be made to produce them at another theatre.

MANY CLIPPINGS ON BOBBED HAIR

Tonsorial Scissors Keep Editorial Shears Busy Making Collection.

After the Prince of Wales had visited Long Island a clipping bureau announced that it had collected all of the newspaper accounts of his activities. The clippings regarding the affable heir to the British throne numbered some 12,000 and made a book that weighed 825 pounds. This was the greatest amount of newspaper space given to a single man in such a short time.

After the world's series between the Senators and Glens the Western Union Telegram Company announced that some 2,700,000 words had been sent over its wires in Washington recording the four games played there. Both of these instances marked new records in their way, but volume alone does not present the only records of this sort. An editor who is interested in the follies of the day recently completed a survey of what he calls a frivolous subject.

His facilities for gathering clippings were limited, he covered only New York city, and he did not make any more than a casual collection. The subject he chose was "Bobbed Hair." He omitted editorial comment, and did not attempt to gather into his grasp every allusion, but applied the scissors only when the subject appeared in the headlines. One of the first clippings that he displayed was the recent one in which Cardinal Hayes said that Samson's loss of hair and strength was an example to the ladies. Going through the rest, he read the following:

"Bobbed Hair Nurses Barred at Hospital."

"Her Bob Draws Hunter's Fire."

"Bobbed Hair Booms German Shears Trade."

"Bobbed Locks Now Mean Future Beards, Says Expert."

"Japanese Research the Gods Against Bobbed Hair Craze."

"Bobbed Girl Prize Beauty."

"Won't Shave Until Wives Let Their Hair Grow"—wherein men in Washington start spite beard.

"Bobbed Hair Ban Not Applicable to City Nurses in New York."

"Bobbed Splinter, 94, Says Flapper Expects Grandsons."

"She Keeps It Bobbed Despite His Whiskers."

"100 Years Old, Bobs Hair."

"Girl Sues for a Bad Bob"—she lost her job on account of it.

"Girl Bobs Hair; Barber Is Sued—in which the right of a child to have her hair cut without her parents' consent is put to a test."

"Finds Bobbed Hair Common in Turkey."

"2,000 Women Bob Hair Daily."

"Denied Bob on Earth, She's Shorn in Airship."

"Robbers Barbers Urged."

"New Bobs Result in Flapper's Rash."

"Bobbed Hair Shows in Painting in 1850."

"Two Girls Bobbed at Temple in Mexican War on Bobbed Hair."

"Must Not Bob Hair Much—settling forth a rule for girl employees of the New Haven Gas Company."

"Bobbing Hurts Cheefo" Trade—showing that Chinese exports of human hair have fallen off.
