DOCTOR'S EX-WIFE, IN DEBT, ENDS LIFE

New York, Aug. 31—Mrs. Mae Jordan, who about a year ago divorced Dr. William Rosenbaum of the Belmont Apartment, Broadway and West Eighty-sixth street, was found dead at noon yesterday in her apartment on the seventh floor of 340 West Eighty-sixth street.

Death, in the belief of Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, acting chief medical examiner, and the police, was caused by poison taken about six days ago. The discovery was brought about through Miss Mae B. Edmondson of 214 Riverside Drive, a friend.

Miss Edmondson repeatedly called Mrs. Jordan on the telephone. She got no answer. Yesterday she visited Oscar Christopherson, superintendent of the apartment house, and told him she feared something had happened to Mrs. Jordan. Christopherson entered the apartment with a duplicate key and found Mrs. Jordan dead in the bedroom. He called in Policeman Kenney of the West Sixty-eighth street station.

On a table in the reception room the policeman found two letters, only one of which had been signed. The other was addressed to "Dear Will," and requested that he return $3,000 to her. The letter said the writer was behind in her rent, and that if she did not receive the money in a short time she would have to give up her apartment.

"Your neglect and the wrongs you have done me were the reasons I divorced you," the policeman quoted the letter as saying, in part.

The other letter, signed with the initials of the dead woman, was addressed to "my good friend," and spoke of having received a letter from the addressee at the Commodore Hotel several days before.

"I have experienced an unexpected and heavy financial drawback since I saw you," the letter said.

The policeman was unable to find a vital or other container from which the woman was believed to have taken the poison, and Dr. Schwartz ordered the body sent to the morgue for an autopsy.

Policeman Kenney said Dr. Rosenbaum, who was the dead woman's doctor, called at the apartment at about a year ago, and admitted that she divorced him about a year ago.

Miss Edmondson told the police the mother and two sisters of the dead woman, who was about thirty-five years old, lived in Brooklyn and promised to communicate with them through other friends in Washington Heights.

Search of her effects revealed that Mrs. Jordan had a little more than $8 in money and jewelry valued at about $1,500.

TO JOIN STAFF OF MOUNT ALLISON

Miss Phyllis Woods, girls' work secretary of the Y. W. C. A., has been appointed to the staff of the Mount Allison Ladies' College as teacher of Bible history. Her many friends in St. John will congratulate her heartily on her appointment while regretting her departure from St. John.

Last week the girls of the Corona Candy factory, who have formed themselves into a club under the guidance of Miss Woods, held a surprise party for her at the recreational centre in King street east. Miss Ada Campbell, president of the club, on behalf of all its members, presented to Miss Woods a handsome brown leather club bag as a parting gift. On Tuesday evening the same club gathered again at the recreational centre and enjoyed a corn boil. The weather was too uncertain to have the corn boil at the beach as had been planned and, to round out the evening's programme, the girls went on to the imperial to see the second performance. Miss Woods leaves on September 10 to take up her new duties at Mount Allison college. She is a graduate of the college, having completed her studies there in 1919.
