THE PRIME MINISTER
claimed that figures quoted by the Leader of the Opposition the other day were erroneous. They were taken from the year book and he forgot to include in the old tariff the surtaxes and Sales Tax, etc. He regretted the increase as much as any man in the country. Referring to cordage and tobacco, he felt he should explain the position. For many years the Cordage Company has had to compete, without protection, with imported lines and twines. He wanted to explain that this recommendahad nothing to do, and had not been done by him because he most anybody in town—any been done by him because he was a director. The Cordage Company was doing great work and enormously benefitting the country and the trade and had a moral right to have a nett protection of 6½%. The Company was a real storehouse for the Newfoundland trade and gave accommodation not thought of by any Nerwegian concern. Some by any Nerwegian concern.
