scheme of the government. It was not now a question of revenue. That had been decided upon according to the amendment made by the government. There was, therefore, no necessity to rush it through. It was now a question of whether or not licenses should be renewable and transferable.

Mr. Macdonald asked if the banks, in making the arrangements which were made, had insisted upon this bill going through?

The Premier said the government in outlining the position to the financial institutions to which it had appealed in solving the difficulties gave an outline of its intention with regard to the matter of revenue, and it would keep its promise.

Mr. Macdonald wanted to make clear. He wanted to know if the banks made these bills imperative in conjunction with the loan bill.

The Premier could not take the House further in his confidence. The government regarded these bills as essential to the financial policy, and must press for their passage.

Mr. Macdonald pressed for an answer as to whether the government was forcing this bill through before recess.

The Premier said the banks had insisted upon nothing. The government had undertaken the management of the affairs of the country, and sought to adjust matters in the policy they had a majority of the House, and he hoped to control that. The government was subject to dictation from no bank nor any financial institution.

vided for in the proposed bill and applying to lumber cut on crown granted lands within the railway belts.

The Chief Commissioner in explanation said that he had intended to say that the government did not intend to make leases perpetual.

On the question of licenses, Mr. Paterson held that the policy of the government was to charge the same license fees and the same royalty for all licenses.

Mr. Paterson could not understand how a business man could describe this as absurd. This was the principle upon which the province of Ontario made money out of its timber lands by putting these blocks up to competition after being surveyed.

Mr. Bowser, speaking for the Chief Commissioner, contended that the expense of surveying would be too great.

Mr. Paterson thought this was a ridiculous agreement. The returns from the system to be adopted would easily pay for this.

Mr. Paterson approved of the Ontario system in principle. The proposal of Mr. Paterson would do away with the lease system.

The Chief Commissioner proposed to alter the bill by making the license fee $115 east of the Cascades and in A.I.N. and $100 west of the Cascades.

Mr. Oliver moved along the line of allowing a person to take either a five-year lease, or if paid for year by year, it would be subject to the amended rates which might be made.

The Attorney-General urged that the amendment of the member for Delta tended to provide a back door for the renewal of licenses.

Mr. Paterson pointed out the danger of the timber resources passing into the hands of speculators as a result of this enactment of the Chief Commissioner.

Mr. Paterson held that this worked to the advantage of the rich man, who could afford to pay for this privilege, and worked against the poor logger.

Mr. Macdonald pointed out that under the system in vogue leases of large tracts for 21 years were granted for the rich man's owner.

Mr. Davidson objected to it being said that this bill must go through. He wanted to see the amendments printed.

Mr. Oliver said the legislature was sitting for the transaction of business. To the country it meant nothing when the members got home for their holidays.

Mr. Oliver called attention to the fact that a large delegation was coming on Sunday with representations regarding the bill.
