Press and Public Awaiting Important Developments of Week Over Irish Treaty.

EXPECT NARROW MAJORITY IN FAVOR

Believed, However, That Pres. De Valera Will Be Able to Put Up Stiff Fight.

London, Dec. 11.—In the absence of any new news, and awaiting important developments of the coming week, the press and public are engaged in estimating the chances in the pending struggle for and against the new Irish treaty. Those best informed seem to reason to modify their view that the treaty will be accepted by the Irish people, but are inclined to take a less optimistic view of its chances.

Expect Treaty to Carry

Present indications favor a narrow majority for the treaty, and probable reference to a plebiscite of the Irish people, is the British Parliament, ratification is considered quite safe. It is admitted that Andrew Bonar Law, even if not approving all the clauses of the treaty, has decided to accept it in principle, or, at least, not to offer substantial opposition, his view being that Ulster is sufficiently protected by the privilege of contracting out.

Easy Time in Commons

Premier Lloyd George has been utilizing the week-end at Chequers Court in preparation of his speech for delivery Wednesday in the House of Commons. He is expected to speak an hour and a half and to make a powerful plea for the treaty. It is believed that the debate will be concluded more speedily than was at first thought possible, and the treaty ratified and the session closed by the end of the week. The necessary legislation to give effect to the treaty will be introduced on February 1st.

Ulster Premier Silent

The Ulster Premier failed to say anything about the settlement. "I have arranged with my friends on the other side," he explained, "that we will observe the strictest reserve and to the present critical and anxious time I think that course will best serve the interests of all concerned." Respecting reports that Ulster is demanding some financial concessions on lines similar to the privileges southern Ireland will get under the treaty, Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a speech at Newcastle Saturday, expressed the conviction that no responsible Ulster statesman would think of claiming a lower rate of taxation for Ulster than operated in New Zealand or Glasgow. This seems to cut any chance of Ulster getting such relief except to Lord Carson's (formerly Sir Edward Carson) strong opposition to the treaty, and some Ulsterites evidently still hope that he will champion their cause. He could only do this effectively, however, by resigning his post as Lord of Appeal, and re-engaging in politics, which is not considered likely.

Founder of McClary Manufacturing Co. Died Suddenly

John McClary Passed Away Yesterday After Illness of Only One Day.

London, Ont., Dec. 11.—John McClary, president and founder of the McClary Manufacturing Company, died at his home here this morning at 6 o'clock after an illness of only one day. He would have celebrated his birthday on January 2. Appointed to the position of president of the McClary Manufacturing Company in 1917, Mr. McClary was at his office as usual on Friday, but on Saturday was taken seriously ill and survived only a few hours. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Theresa Gunn, and Mrs. Gathorne, wife of Lt. Col. W. M. Gathorne, vice-president of the company.

Mr. McClary was born in Nilotown, Ohio, on January 3, 1859. When 16 years old he left the farm and came to London where he learned tin-smithing and subsequently formed a partnership with his brother Oliver. They started in a house on part of the site now occupied by the McClary plant, and gradually worked up a trade all over Ontario in plumbing and tin work. In 1884 the firm commenced the manufacture of stoves. In 1907, the business was incorporated and has steadily grown to its present proportions, it now being one of the largest stove industries in the British Empire.

Kato Instructed to Get All He Can for Japan Without Doing This.

Tokyo, Dec. 10.—History, so far as Japan is concerned, is now being made at Washington, and Japan's fate is in the hands of Baruch, Kato, and the other negotiators. Dangerous to Go Home

A foreign expert here who has lived long in China and who remarks the resignations are unwise and impractical, said, of course these people have to go back to China. It is easy for Mr. Kato and Mr. Sato to make promises. They do not return to their native country, at least not immediately. The extremists in China make it their business to prevent the acceptance of any decision reached by this conference.

Power to Wreck Conference

The resignations are only a development of the threat which has been made by China. The Chinese government has the power to wreck the conference, for her refusal to accept its decisions is tantamount to a withdrawal from the conference. This country would then have to elect between sympathizing with Japan as having offered the better terms, or supporting China in her refusal to have a settlement imposed upon her by the great powers.

Police Officer Amos Ogden, Friday evening, in the railway yard here, died at a hospital in Halifax Saturday. May Hurt China's Opportunities At Arms Conference

If Resignations Are Backed by Powerful Minority Results May Be Serious.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Events in China within the next fortnight perhaps will determine how seriously the negotiators of the Chinese are prepared to take. It is known here that the decision of the Powers leading to the direct negotiations of the Shantung problem between China and Japan led to exactly the sort of outbreak of students, organizations and radical bores in China as did the decision of the Versailles conference leaving it to Japan to return Shantung upon her own terms.

American here interested in perusing the commission across the Pacific and it is known here that the resignations of Mr. Loring, Admiral Tsiang and Secretary Lyan and perhaps Mr. Wang, one of the delegates, are due to pressure from home and from the Chinese in this country.

Outright History

The speaker gave a brief outline of the city's history and told of its capture from the Jubatites by King David who planned the temple later built by Solomon. A building of such splendor that the Queen of Sheba was forced to exclaim that not half its splendor could be told. The city was captured by Nebuchadnezzar, who carried off its inhabitants to Babylon and held them in captivity for 70 years. On their return they rebuilt the temple but never obtained the splendor of Solomon.

Cosmopolitan City

Jerusalem, the doctor said, was one of the most cosmopolitan in the world. It partook both of the East and the West. It was once Christian, Jewish and Mohammedan. While sacred to all, it was the centre of division and rivalry among them all, so much so that an infidel guard was stationed by the Turks at the Holy Sepulchre to keep the Christians from fighting. The Christians being composed of Armenians, Greeks, Assyrians, Roman Catholics and Protestants.

INTENSELY INTERESTING LECTURE ON "JERUSALEM, THE HOLY CITY"

Dr. E. J. Ryan Conducts a Large Audience About the Hallowed Spots Which Mark the Scenes of the Triumphs, and Humiliations Suffered by the Saviour.

Only a subject of intense interest, delivered in a masterly fashion, could have commanded the vast throng which with a large audience listened to a lecture on "Jerusalem the Holy City," delivered by Dr. E. J. Ryan in St. Vincent's auditorium last evening under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League.

The doctor's subject of itself was sufficient to command attention, but the eloquence, the wit and humor and the illuminating word pictures which he made use of in conducting his lecture, about the hallowed spots which mark the scenes of the triumphs and humiliations suffered by the Son of Man, testified that the speaker was sprung from that race to whom a love of the beautiful and holy, and the power of expressing that love and reverence in words, may almost be ascribed as a birth right. Sufficient it is to say, that those who heard the lecture carried away an impression of Jerusalem so realistic as to be only surprised by a visit to the city itself.

Mrs. D. P. Chisholm, president of the Catholic Women's League, was the chairman of the evening, and presided in her usual gracious manner. Prior to the doctor's address "The Holy City" was sung by Frank Hazel. Mr. Hazel's rich voice, and as he sang in her usual gracious manner, made a very deep impression. Mrs. M. A. Quinlan proved a sympathetic accompanist.

At the conclusion of Dr. Ryan's address, words of thanks were moved by Miss Marjorie Corry and seconded by Mrs. C. A. Fowling, in a few well chosen words. In beginning his address, Doctor Ryan informed his audience that in the holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem was to be found a spherical stone which was supposed to mark the centre of the world. He said he would not vouch for the accuracy of the statement, but it might truly be said, that the stone did mark the centre of the religious world, for Jerusalem was the Holy City to Christians, and Jews, and Mohammedans alike. To Christians it had a special appeal as the spot where the Saviour had lived, suffered and died, to them it was marked by His cross, the symbol of Divine love.

Other guests mentioned, were that of St. Stephen where the saint was stoned to death, the Gate of Herod, which was stormed by the Crusaders, the Damascus Gate, where St. Paul passed on his way to persecute the Christians, the gate to Solomon's stables which were capable of holding 4,000 horses.

Outside the city, and separate from it by a deep valley, was the Mount of Olives, and the garden of Gethsemane, which was a monastery cared for by the Franciscan Fathers where the scene of the passion, the scene where the apostles slept, and the scene where the Saviour was laid in the tomb, were to be seen. This, the speaker said, was the only spot in Jerusalem and its surroundings where a desire to commemorate the sacred places did not rob the pilgrim of that sense of reverential love with which one is apt to think of the Holy City.

Another feature of the city, which was wont to detract much from its impressiveness, was that all the scenes of the life of the Lord were disputed by the adherents of the different religions, all claiming different localities for each event. Doctor Ryan said there were four buildings which had been erected at the direction of the Kaiser in and about Jerusalem. On Mount Olivet was a medieval castle, its walls were four or five feet thick, slits had been cut for shooting bows and arrows, and it commanded all the surrounding country. In the city itself, two churches had been restored, and the same conditions prevailed, while on an eminence outside the walls, another church had been built in an equally massive manner. During the war it was learned that the slits for "how and arrows" were equally suitable for German machine guns.

Speaking of the castle, the doctor said that one of the pictures there showed a group of the Crusaders, Richard Cour de Lion, Louis of France, Godfrey de Bullion, and others, but by dominant figure of all was the Kaiser himself dressed as a Crusader. Other spots described by Doctor Ryan were the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the tomb of Absalom, he said, was buried deep beneath countless rocks.

because every Jew for ages had cast a stone at it whenever he passed it. Outside the walls near the Zion Gate was the house where the Holy Ghost descended upon the Apostles, where King David was buried, and where the Last Supper was partaken of. This, he said, was used by the Mohammedans as a Mosque, and by the Christians as a church, and was perhaps the only building in the world that could claim such a distinction.

The city itself, was one of dirt and neglect, without sewerage or water systems. It is a city of 150,000 people, and devoid of all modern conveniences. It was one of the few well built cities of the world, covered an area of 200 acres, and enclosing three hills: Mount Zion, Cavalry, and Mount Moriah. Mount Zion, where the arc of the covenant had been, Mount Cavalry, the scene of the Crucifixion, and Mount Moriah, the site of the temple. The city was divided into quarters by two main streets, the Christians residing in one quarter, the Jews, another, the Mohammedans, another, and the Assyrians the last.

There were eight gates to the city, that of Zion was the oldest, another, the Golden Gate, was blocked with masonry and no one was allowed admittance through it, because of a tradition among the Mohammedans that of Mohammedan power, the wish of Kaiser William to pass through it during his visit to the city in 1868 was refused by the Sultan of Turkey, who, however, condescended to break a hole in the wall in another section to allow his Imperial Highness to enter the city in triumph and four. The Kaiser, the doctor observed, entered the city in this manner, while Albany his confederer entered on foot.

James S. Potter, Missionary Among Sailors, Dead

Toronto, Dec. 11.—James S. Potter, for over fifty-three years a missionary among the sailors, both upon the ocean and the Great Lakes, died today at his home, 23 Cambridge avenue. He was eighty years old. The late Mr. Potter came to Canada from Edinburgh and began his first Christian work as assistant superintendent of the Boys' Industrial School of Halifax, N. S. After two years he was appointed missionary to Labrador. Then the sessions of St. Matthew's and Port Massey churches, Halifax, chose him as city missionary, and in this service that he opened a night refuge for the homeless.

In October, 1897, he was appointed superintendent of the Sailors' Home, which in 1891 he undertook to re-establish the Sailors' Institute in St. John, N. B., and it was while applying himself to this that he met J. A. Macdonald, president of the Upper Canada Tract Society, who allotted him in the sailors' work of that society as conducted on the inland lakes and rivers.

Portland, Dec. 10.—Joseph A. F. Connelly, former head of the municipal court, was labeled a "big bum" by Samuel S. Bates, also a former executive of the court, during a hearing here in a civil case. "Detectives are required when dealing with crooks," replied his legal brother, Connelly weighs about 300 pounds, while Bates probably tips the scales at 50 pounds, and the courtroom was convulsed with laughter during the time when Connelly asked if anyone in the chamber had a fire-water. Judgment for the defendants was returned and appeal will take the case to the higher court where hostilities may be renewed.
