TOWN AND VICINITY

Freight traffic is brisk on the Wabash.

Appin Sunday Schools held their annual picnic at Springbank Park yesterday.

Results of the departmental examinations, it is stated, will be announced next week.

Aldborough Old Boys' reunion will be held at Port Glasgow on Wednesday, August 6th.

Dates of next sittings of the Division Court in Glencoe this year are September 2 and November 4.

The death occurred suddenly at his home in Alvinston on Thursday of Donald McNeil, aged 62 years.

Work on tilling the Outlet Drain was begun yesterday morning, with a ditching machine in operation.

Another cut in the price of gasoline took effect at the local garages yesterday. The price is now 28c for ordinary grades.

Tomorrow, August 1st, is Emancipation Day, observed by the colored people as the anniversary of the abolition of slavery.

Glencoe Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday Schools are holding their annual picnic at Springbank Park today (Wednesday).

Next Monday is civic holiday. Glencoe stores will be closed. Nothing special doing; the citizens will find their own amusement.

Parts of the country had the unusual experience of a July frost on the night of the 18th. It was not severe enough to do any damage.

Blake, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGill, was a prize winner in the blue-eyed baby show at the English picnic at Port Stanley on Saturday.

Mrs. E. A. Blackwell is in the hospital at London, where she underwent a surgical operation for nasal affection, and is reported to be improving.

Some say this year is five and a half feet tall. The man who knows it is not the one who measured it with a tape line, but the chap who sticks a fork in it.

Miss Esther Petch, of Wardsville, pupil of Miss Pearl George, was successful in passing the Grade 1 piano examination of the London Conservatory of Music, with 92 marks.

A story in the daily papers of two Glencoe girls being abducted and taken to Chatham has an error in one particular at least.—The girls were not from Glencoe, but from Ingersoll.

Misses Gladys and Ethel George entertained a few young people Friday evening in honor of their cousin, Miss Margaret Daugherty, of Chatham, who is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Harvest is progressing rapidly under favorable conditions, and threshing is expected to start next week, with wheat opening at $1.25 or better per bushel, as compared with an opening price last year of 90c.

During the month of August the Presbyterian pulpits will be in the following order:—Rev. F. S. Milliken, B.D., of Grimsby; Rev. C. C. Strachan, B.D., of Port Elgin; Rev. James Anthony, M.A., of Fingal; and Rev. S. D. Jamieson, of Delhi.

According to astronomers "dog days" begin this year on July 29th and end on the 1st of September. Scientists, however, assure the public that there is no occasion for alarm at the proximity of the muggy season. The fear of "dog days" is an ancient bugaboo, born long before old King Tut's Egyptian ascendancy. Contrary to the popular belief, the season's name is not attributed to the fact that dogs are prey to rabies at that time. It is named for the bright star Sirius, who eternally follows Orion, the hunter, in his heavenly chase.

On Thursday evening members of the Presbyterian congregation met in the lecture room of the church and presented Miss Elma King, organist and choir leader, with a beautiful ivory clock and tray, prior to her leaving for Elora, where she has accepted a similar position in the Methodist church. Miss Mollie Tait read an address and the presentation was made by Miss Nellie Farrell. A short program consisted of a cello solo by Miss Hazel McAlpine, violin solos by Fred McGill and speeches by Rev. D. G. Paton, John Strachan, Dr. McLachlan and J. G. Lethbridge. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

YOUR SHARE OF THE TOWN

Did you ever, in counting up your possessions, reckon in your share of the city or town in which you live? Few people realize that there is such an element in their wealth.

If your city has twenty thousand inhabitants, then you own one twenty-thousandth of all the city owns.

Yours is one twenty-thousandth of the streets, and the parks, and the schoolhouses, and the municipal buildings, and the waterworks, and the art museum, and the many other fine things that go to make up the city's goods.

You may stand in the centre of a noble park and look around upon the beautiful flower-beds, and the stately trees, and the sparkling ponds, and the delicate shrubbery, and you may please yourself with picking out your own particular corner—only twenty-thousandth part of it all. You may go to that corner and feel at home.

You may visit the handsome stone city hall, and, going to the various rooms, you may choose your own private window or take a seat in your very own leather-covered chair.

You may draw a book from the public library—of twenty thousand volumes, we will say—and as you turn over its pages you may realize that it is your own book you are reading.

You may pick up a bit of paper in the street and place it in the waste-basket; you are only caring for your own property.

You will pay your taxes with a ready mind; you are only keeping up your property, as is right.

This sense of ownership in the municipality is perfectly legitimate and highly enjoyable. That it is growing among men and women and boys and girls is one of the happiest signs of the times in which we live.

Pride of Race

A Scots boy in an English school, when his class was asked where Shakespeare was born, replied, "In Scotland, sir."

"What makes you say Shakespeare was born in Scotland?" asked the schoolmaster.

"Because of his abelity, sir," was the answer.

HENS AND EGG LAYING

A Melange About the Handling of Barnyard Poultry

How to Tell the Layers—Conditions Necessary for Production—High Egg-Yielding—Distribution of Eggs—More Poultry Points.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Can you tell which hens are laying without the use of trap nests? This is easy to determine if one will go to the trouble of handling each bird suspected of being a layer. When a hen commences to lay, conditions in the organs concerned in reproduction are quite different from conditions observed during the period of idleness. When the ovary is dormant and no eggs are being produced the distance between the pelvic bones is small. The vent is dry, small, puckered, and, in yellow feathered chickens, has a band of yellow pigment around the inside. When laying commences the pelvic bones become pliable and spread apart to permit the passage of the egg. The vent becomes large and moist and the ring of yellow pigment disappears. A visit to the poultry house on an early winter evening and a half hour spent in going over the hens will be profitable.

Conditions Necessary for Production. The experience of the Ontario Agricultural College Poultry department has been that a hen will not lay if not in good condition. She should be healthy, free from any disease, and show plenty of vigor and activity. The first pullets to lay in the fall have been the early maturing ones. The pullets that have developed slowly in body and feather have been just as slow in starting to lay. The results of liberal feeding and general good care have always been reflected in the pullet flock and a full egg basket during the period of early winter high prices.

High Egg Production. The requirements for high egg production are clean, dry, comfortable houses, that are free from draughts over the birds, and that are well lighted. The feeding consists of a variety of grains, green feed, animal feed, grit and shell, which is clean, sweet and wholesome, and is given to the birds regularly, and in such quantities that they have all they want to eat before going to roost at night; that the supply of drinking material is clean and abundant; that the attendant is regular in his or her work, and is interested in the same; that the birds are bred from good laying ancestors and that they are hatched at the proper season and well reared, so that they are free from disease.

Distribution of Eggs. A study of the distribution of the egg production is interesting and important from the point of the annual returns from the birds. Egg prices rise and fall with the seasons, and usually the greatest profit is made where producing eggs at a season or seasons of the year when prices are high. Pullets are the chief source of egg supply. As stated previously, they require usually from six to seven months in which to mature. It is, therefore, possible to regulate their production in the fall months at least to some extent by regulating the time they will hatch in the spring.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

More Poultry Points. Crows are likely to steal the eggs from the late turkey nests if the nests are made at some distance from the buildings.

Be sure that the young growing chicks are well fed to promote growth and that they are given liberal range where there is abundance of green feed and also animal feed in the form of insects, worms, etc.

It is poor economy to keep more cockerels than will be needed for next year's breeding operations. If they are sold as soon as they are of broiler or fryer size, a large profit will be realized and the pullets will do better without them.

Cold, damp, poorly lighted and ventilated poultry quarters favor the spread of such diseases as roup. Such contagious diseases as these are difficult and sometimes impossible to control unless given attention in the early stages. Wherever preventive measures fail, separate sick birds from the flock as soon as there is evidence of disease and then obtain expert advice to effect a cure.

If the chickens must be confined on account of bad weather, provide a good straw litter to which their grain feed may be scattered. This will give them exercise and keep them interested and healthy. When chickens have been accustomed to free range are closely confined this frequently checks their development for the time, being unless they are made contented in their new quarters. Provide green feed for them also.

Indian Runner ducks seem to have gone out of fashion, which is a pity, as they are excellent layers, and stand at the head as table fowls. They are easily raised, do not make the disagreeable noises that other ducks do, and eat less than any other breed of ducks. They thrive on coarse feed, and can be raised cheaply and safely, as a duck hatched usually means one raised to maturity.

When We Plant a Tree. What do we plant when we plant the tree? We plant the houses for you and me. We plant the rafters, the shingles, the beams and siding; all parts that be; We plant the house when we plant the tree.

A clean, disinfected stall is the surest preventive of joint ill in colts.
