ALL GERMANY LAUGHED

Another Hoax Perpetrated on Kaiser's Army.

Not since the German cobbler Voice Not since the German cobbler Volgt impersonated a captain in the impersial army and made a raid on the towa hall at Koepenick, has all Germany laughed so long and loud as the other day, when a discharged sergeant in the German army sent a bogus telegram and caused the garrison at Strassburg to turn out in dress parade. This sergeant, August Wolter by name, provoked because he was dismissed from the service on the ground of being mentally defective, vowed he of being mentally defective, vowed he would get vengeance and show he was not crasy. The telegram was carefully worded and told the commander of the garrison that the Kaiser would be the garrison that the Kaiser would be on hand to inspect his troops. Disguised as a messenger, Wolter himself delivered this message to the garrison, "Arrive at 12; am coming by motor car, proceeding to Polygon parade ground. Entire garrison is to be rade ground. Entire garrison is to be alarmed, Wilhelm."

The effect of the message was electric. Sublimely oblivious of the fact that the Kaiser was at that very moment at Koenigsberg, about 1,000 miles away, Gen. Baron von Egioffstein, the military governor of Strassburg, proceeded to act on the supreme warlord's supposed instructions with the utmost alacrity.

Fife and drum corps were sent scurrying through the streets to sound the alarm that all officers and soldiers on leave, should hurry back to barracks leave should hurry back to barracks with all possible speed. Prince Oscar of Prussia, the Kaiser's fifth son, who is a student at Strassburg University, was caught in the midst of a noonday canter, and made such haste to the Polygon ground that he went without luncheon.

By one o'clock-hardly two hours afby the "Kaiser's order" arrived the entire garrison was assembled on the Polygon. The troops numbered about 18,000—exactly half an army corps—and their bayonets, rifles, guns and lances shone brilliantly in the midday

The event was made still more impressive by the appearance overhead of a new army warship which sailed from its temporary headquarters at Baden-Baden to participate in the parade. As the Kaiser, who is seldom late, failed to arrive at 12 o'clock, a rumor presently spread that his majesty was in the airship and would land from it.

After the garrison and the throng of between 20 000 and 3000 spectators

After the garrison and the throng of between 20,000 and 30,000 spectators had waited on the field till two o'clock, a council of war was held and it was decided the chief of police should dash back to the town, a distance of two and one-half miles, in his motor car, and ask Berlin by telephone if any light could be thrown on the mysterious non-appearance of the Kaiser.

Word came back that his majesty, far from being in Alsace-Lorraine or intending to be there, was at the exact opposite corner of the empire at Koenigsberg.

Too Successful.

They have in Berlin, or Germany rather, a law called the unsair competition law, which prevents any person from engaging in a business that may be construed under the provisions of the law as unfair in competition to others.

visions of the law as unfair in com-petition to others.

An English doctor came to Berlin, advertised he could cure rheumatism and cured it. He was promptly ex-pelled at the request of the German doctors on the ground that, as he cured rheumatism, he was engaging in unfair competition with the regu-lar physicians who could not cure the disease.

And the consul stooped down, un-fastened his shoe and, showing it to them, answered: "Is it not of fine material? Is it not well made? Does it not appear to fit excellently? pone of you knows where it pinches

"Giving Quarter."

The expression "giving quarter" has a curious origin. When the Spaniards fought the Dutch in the Netherlands there was an agreement between them that the ransom of a soldier should be a quarter of his pay. To "ask quarter" was to offer one-fourth of the soldier's pay as ransom, and to refuse quarter, of course, was to decline to accept that amount

Jet, that substance from which many articles of ornament are made, very closely resembles ordinary coal. It is formed, like coal, from wood and vegetable matter. It differs from coal in that it contains a much smaller quantity of earthly impurities. There is soft jet and hard jet, but only the latter is of much use in the making of ornamental articles

PASTOR RUSSELL

The self-styled "Pastor Russell" brought charges of slander against the Rev. J. J. Ross, Baptist Minister of Hamilton. It was very difficult to get Russell into the witness-box so that he might be examined, but at last he appeared and was questioned for five hours. So searching was the examination that when Russell got home he wrote saying that if Mr Ross would apologize, he would withdraw the charge. But this Mr Ross declined to do; consequently, the case went to trial with the result that the charge was found "not proved." Mr Ross renewed his attacks on Russellism or Millenial Dawnism, as it is also called, but Mr Russell thought prudent not to take further action Russell's agents were in Athens a few months ago and sold many copies of his "Studies in the Scriptures" to unsuspecting people.
