Dave Armstrong is the co-ordinator of the group. About 12 people are involved and work in the office different nights of the week.

Students may discuss problems over the phone or arrange a private person to person talk. "Student Help" has a list of interested professors who are willing to help students in particular subjects. Students can also be referred to doctors in the city or professional counselling if necessary.

Last year hundreds of students were helped by the office. Exam time seems to bring a rush of calls. Already, though, the office is busy answering about ten phone calls each night.

The "Student Help" office is on the second floor of SUB in Rm 250. It is open every evening, seven days a week, from 7-12 p.m. Students who call can be assured of having someone listen to their problems, whatever they may be.

It is an organization for students, run by students. Any student who is interested in taking part in this service is asked to contact the office at 433-4358.

MONTREAL (CUP) — The Mc-Gill University Students Society may bring charges against the Quebec Provincial Police and a local trucking firm in connection with incidents during a student border blockade Wednesday.

Society Vice - President Dave Young said Thursday the society's lawyers would be asked to investigate legal action against the QPP, who impounded five buses laden with demonstrators driving to take part in the national protest against Thursday's underground A-blast in the Aleutians, and against a firm whose vehicle charged through leafletting demonstrators at the Champlain, N.Y. border crossing.

The protestors extended the planned one-hour demonstration three hours until transportation was returned.

It's fortunate that it didn't cause a riot, Young said, adding that police told him they would arrest anyone who tried to walk on the highway. No arrests were made.

The transport truck attempted to crash the student blockade at the border, sending students scrambling out of its path.

St. John's students to vote on voluntary Union

ST. JOHN'S (CUP)—Students at the Memorial University of Newfoundland will vote for or against compulsory student unionism Oct. 30 and 31, Following a student council decision to put the question to the ballot.

The referendum will ask the student body if they want to continue paying a compulsory fee into the student union as it now exists, or pay on a voluntary basis.

"Student councils in the past have acted on an assumed mandate that they were necessary," said council president Jack Harris. "The time has come now for students to decide whether or not they want a union."

At present, only Guelph University in Ontario operates under a voluntary union scheme.

Students at the Saskatoon campus of the University of Saskatchewan vetoed voluntary unionism during a seminar referendum last year.
