tentedly away from the land-office, with their hats tilted at various characteristic angles and their well-known voices mingled in more or less joyful converse, and their toes pointed toward Central Avenue and certain liquid refreshments. You need not worry over that bunch, surely. You may safely leave them to meet future problems and emergencies as they have always met them in the past — on their feet, with eyes that do not waver or flinch, shoulder to shoulder, ready alike for grim fate or a frolic.

THE END

vith nily and

m-

to

ĸt

le

VO

11

he

re

he

dihe

Ty

on out ant in uld

ıem

con-