

Vancouver and New Westminster for the daily supply of city householders. Fresh cream at very satisfactory prices is shipped by other farms to city creameries and restaurants.

COMFORTABLE LIVING FOR ALL

Smaller farmers content themselves with selling sour cream for butter-making to firms in town or to the thriving creamery at Clayburn in their own midst.

The man on ten acres with his half-dozen head of stock makes a comfortable living with these and the bye products of veal, pork and poultry, while the district is dotted with even smaller places of five acres, where the man of small means but independent spirit can assist his neighbors in spring and harvest, or the mill-man and road foreman in their busy weeks, and still maintain his own land, stock and garden in unshackled freedom.

THE HILL-TOUT RESIDENCE

A pretty farm home near Abbotsford, in Matsqui Municipality. Many similar homes may be seen along the many beautiful drives throughout Matsqui.

INDEPENDENCE FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

The small freeholder is the backbone of the country. Clear of the thralldom which a big exacting business entails, independent of continuous hired service that deprives a man of self-reliance, he enjoys the benefits of family life in security. Fruit, eggs, butter and pork are provided with comparative ease and he forms that reserve of occasional help required by the big rancher, the lumber-man near who
