QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

BARRED ROCKS AND PLYMOUTH ROCKS.

Are Barred Rocks and Plymouth Rocks the same breed of fowl, or two different kinds?

W. B.

Ans.—"Barred Rock" is an abbreviation of the full name, "Barred Plymouth Rock," which are one of several varieties of Plymouth Rocks.

CLYDE HORSE, BOUNDING TOM.

Can you, or any of your readers, give me any information about the imported Clydesdale stallion, Bounding Tom [4228] (12059), where he stood for service last season, 1905?

SUB.

Ans.—This horse was imported in 1903, by J. B. Hogate, Weston, Ont., sire Sir Thomas (9681), dam Blossom, by Prince Romeo (8144). We have no information as to where he travelled last year.

TWINFLOWER.

Give description of twinberry bush, or cow-bag bush, and where it is most likely to be found.

SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—We do not find in Spotton's botany any reference to twinberry, but there is a plant called twinflower (Linnaea borealis). It is a trailing or creeping herb, with evergreen oval or crenate leaves, and slender, scape-like peduncles, which fork at the top into 2 pedicels, each of which bears a pair of nodding narrowly-bell-shaped purplish flowers. It has four stamens, three shorter than the others. It is found in cool, mossy woods and swamps.

COW'S MILK FOR COLT.

Young mare with a foal three weeks old has not enough milk for it, and we are giving it some cow's milk with some molasses in it. Would brown sugar be better for the foal than the molasses? How much milk should we give it, and how much molasses should we put in it?

W. O. J.

Ans.—Brown sugar is usually recommended. We have never tried molasses. Mare's milk is poorer than cow's milk in protein and fat, but richer in sugar. When used for colts, the cow's milk should be mixed with one-third its bulk of water, and sugar added at the rate of a good-sized teaspoonful to the teacup of diluted milk. Give about a cupful at a time. The temperature of the milk when fed should be 98 to 100 degrees. The milk of a fresh cow should be used.

Veterinary.

HEAVES.

Editor "The Farmer's Advocate": Three years ago I had a horse that had every symptom of heaves. I went to a veterinary, and after I had given him the age and symptoms, he considered the case a hopeless one, but gave me some powders that would help him. I used the powders, but saw no difference in the horse. Every neighbor I met would say: "I see your old horse has the heaves." One, in particular, said: "Your horse is liable to drop over any time." I commenced to doctor him myself by putting a tablespoonful of ginger in a gallon and a half of dry oat chop, mixed well, then poured on boiling hot water until quite sloppy; covered it up for an hour, then fed. I gave this dose every night for a week, then every other night, together with comfortable surroundings, and when there was plenty of grass, turned him out. The horse is alive to-day after three years of faithful service, having no sign or symptom of heaves. Hoping this may help the questioner in your issue of May 3rd.

SUCCESSFUL.

[Note.—We are indebted to our correspondent for contributing his experience, but think the veterinarian must have been mistaken in his diagnosis. If the horse did have heaves, we would be inclined to credit any remedial effect to the pasture and general care rather than to the ginger. Ginger is a stomachic and tonic, but is not employed as a specific for heaves. Had it a value for that purpose, this would, in all probability, have been discovered long ago.—Editor.]
