THE CAUSES OF THE INSURRECTION IN CHINA.

By Rev. W. H. HINGSION, S.J., in the "Canadian Messenger of the Sacred Heart."

but neither unforeseen nor surprising, Such a one knows that, at all times, revolution is easy in China, and par-ticularly so at the present time. He knows that, even at the best of times, this colossal empire of 450,-000,000 inhabitants is hardly ever in a state of absolute quiet. There are several reasons to ex-plain this: the first of which is the poverty of the masses. This is due to the density of the population, and the consequent dividing of fields, inbut neither unforeseen nor surprising, the consequent dividing of fields, in-to patches barely sufficient to feed the families living upon them. The Chinaman, it is said, can live com fortably where any one else would The would fortably where any one clse would starve, and this is probably true; nevertheless many thousands, to avoid starving at home, are annual-ly compelled to migrate to the sea-port towns, in hopes of obtaining a living there, in the factories, or along the rivers and canals. All this could rivers and canals. All this could very easily avoided by directing the emigration from the over-crowd-ed parts into the, as yet, sparsaly settled districts of the west; but the Government lacks the intelligence and energy necessary; and, as a result, the eastern coast is burdened with an ever increasing multitude of pov-erty-stricken unfortunates. Another circumstance favorable to revolt is, the discontent of the masses with the system of govern-ment. The Chinese official is hamper-ed by no rules, but is left to his own discretion as to what taxes he should the emigration from the over-crowd discretion as to what taxes he should discretion as to what taxes he should levy, when and how often he should collect them, and how they should be expended. Needless to say, such an arbitrary and irresponsible system promotes dishonesty among officials, arbitrary and irresponsible system promotes dishonesty among officials, and is regarded by the people with distrust; for they can never be freed from the anxiety of having their sav-ings extorted from them under some Drefext or other pretext or other.

third circumstance, a negative A third circumstance, a negative one, removing as it does the chief bulwark against r?volution, is the absence of any strict moral princi-ples founded on religious relief. For, after all, it is religion, and religion alone, that can control the impulses to rebellion among the masses. The Chinaman has no religion properly so called, and the gross superstitions that take its place are made use of

A few months ago, the civilized world was startled by reports of an uprising in some of the middle provide was startled by reports of an uprising in some of the middle provide were hazing the provide of the solution of the transpected to the revolution of the transpected to the next; various concentraticted the next; various concentraticted the next; various concentration relief expeditions were hasing the transpected to the solution of the transpected to the revolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with blood and was put down by armed intervolution deluged China with with the minor causes contribute to increase national antipathy to the stranger in China. The Chinaman finds with the work of a moment. It had long been have taken place in different grown and solog syntheses and solely intent upon attaining their own anabilious ends. The officers and solely intent upon attaining their own anabilious ends. The officers and solely intent upon the imprevent of these whom they meet in the due of these outbreaks, thirty thousand Mohammedan Chinese vere and railroads, despise th thousand Mohammedan Chinese were slain by their Buddhist countrymen. slain by their Buddhist countrymen. Such are the general circumstances always favorable to an uprising, the tinder, as it were, that awaits but a spark from the torch of revolt, to grow into an immense conflagration. In the present case, the immediate causes are : antipathy to the strang-er; hatred of Christianity; and the comivance of the Government with the secret societies.

The Chinese have always been noted for their intense national pride and a supreme contempt for all not Chinese. For centuries, China has been shut up within herself, in rela-tive isolation. No wonder, then, that she could have become vain and egotistic by prolonged self-contem-plation, that she should regard all that does not resemble here are were that does not resemble her as wor-thy only of contempt, and all that contradicts or thwarts her as objects of hatred. She is to her almond-eyed Sons, the one country, the Flowery Kingdom, the Celestial Empire; her soil is sacred, her Emperor is the son of Heaven, her people the children of the Sun, and Europeans the "devils from the West."

This national pride, though exces-sive, and to us ridiculous, is, when examined by Chinese standards, not without some show of reason to back it up. Chinese tradition can go back forty centuries. Ages ago, when near-ly all the rest of the world was ly all the rest of the world was plunged in the grossest barbarism. China enjoyed the benefits of a cul-tured civilization. When the rude Briton or Frank roamed through his native forests, clad in the skins of beasts hardly wilder than himself, his Chinese contemporary, attired in gorgeous silk, was leaving his red visiting-card at some dainty villa surrounded by well-kept gardens; or he was studying the revolutions of one, removing as it does the chief bulwark against r?volution, is the absence of any strict moral princi-ples founded on religious relief. For, after all, it is religion, and religion alone, that can control the impulses to rebellion among the masses. The Chinaman has no religion properly so called, and the gross superstitions that take its place are made use of by imposters to lead him into all manner of crimes, under the specious pretext of obediene to the gods. But the chief source of revolution in China, as it is in any country, is the existence of a great number of sceret societies, the offspring of pov-erty, disconitent and superstition The Chinese population is organized into immense brotherhoods having their challenges and countersigns, their peculiar superstitions rites, and their societies are rarely fully known, but all are revolutionary in character. Despite their legal coro-demnation, these confraternities have greatly multiplied within the fast few years. Some of them, the Pai-Liem-Kiao (Brothers of the White Lotus) for instance, count millions of adherents in every province of he was studying the revolutions

the Chinese ports; the European gineers employed in building for and railroads, despise their Chin and railroads, despise their Chinese subordinates; foreign newspapers pub-lish articles advocating the division of China among the Powers, and these articles are always translated and reproduced in the Chinese news-papers. All this, of course, wounds the national pride. The greatest blow of all was dealt it two ware new of all was dealt it, two years ago when the Emperor of Germany seized upon the port of Kiao-chou to avenge the massacre of two German avenge the massacre of two German Catholic missionaries, his subjects It was this act of foreign aggression which finally caused the smouldering fires of discontent and hatred to burst forth in the present fierce re-volt.

Another cause of revolt, though a lesser one, was the desire of the Chinese to put an end to the spread of Christianity. The Caeholic religion great progress in China. Missionar-ies from France, Belgium, Italy, Ger-many and Holland, belonging to the Society of the Foreign Missions of Paris, Belgium and Milan, Francis-Cans, Lazrists, Dominicone Aurone cans, Lazarists, Dominicans, Augustinians and Jesuits, have labored that vast empire hard and succe list vast empire hard and successful-ly. The Catholics enjoyed the pro-tection of the Emperor. An edict of 1899 granted our bishops the rank of viceroys, and our priests that of mandarins. Many oratories, chapels, churches and even cathedrals, have been erected, missionary, residences been erected; missionary residences, novitiates, schools, convents, orphan asylums and hospitals, are everyasylums and hospitals, are every-where to be met with; while the number of native Catholics is placed as high as 700,000. Such wonderful success could not be viewed with complacency by the arch-enemy of souls, and to put an end to it, he has once more resorted to berseenhas once more resorted to persecu-tion. But God, who, for reasons worthy of His infinite wisdom perwhich did this minite wisdon't per-mits Satan to work an apparent evil, will in His own good time, know how to turn all to His own glory and the ultimate triumph of His Holy Church.

wills all y there is a provide the second provide the provide China lacks the energy of Japan. She has remained more or less inert and passive, accepting only partially the reforms which the Powers dic-tated to her. The popular demagogue has a strong hold on the Chinese multitude, and he easily persuades those who do not come directly un-der European influence to oppose the foreigners. The number of individuals who live in the European "conces-sions," and who take advantage of 1 ished it severely, but could not sue-ceed in exterminating it in some dis-tricts of Shan-tung and Chi-H. Fou-tsing Strengthen the Tsing dynasty), Mie tang (Destroy the strangers) are lis two watch-words. In 1898 it added a third, Mie Kias-you (Des-troy the Christians).

The membership of the I-ho-Kinen increased rapidly. Bodies of men were 'nightly drilled in the use of the sword and long knife. Threats were openly made against the Euro-peans, and against the native Chris-tians. Placards were posted calling upon all Chinese to rise up and crush the intruders. To arouse hatred against the Christians, the secret so-cieties invented the most odious lies. Pamphlets were distributed by thou-sands, in which the Christians, a law-abiding class, whose morals con-trasted with the corruption that sur-rounded them, were declared to be the causes of the troubles. They were said to lead youth astray, to de-ceive the ignorant, to harm every-one; they plucked out the eyes dind hearts of little children to make charms of them; they poisoned the wells, the food in the market places, the rivers and even the sea, the only way to escane death at their bande The membership of the I-ho-Kinen the rivers and even the sea, the only way to escape death at their hands was to obey the orders of the gods, as revealed to the leaders of the I-be Kines ho-Kinen.

The people were deceived by these lies, listèned to these pretended revel-ations and joined the Boxers. Soon the sect comprised thousands of fan-atics; poor farmers, day laborers, petty, vandore, newscarded la condivendors, unsuccessful candiin the examinations, together with a very large sprinkling of brig-ands and outlaws. The first risings ands and outlaws. The first risings took place in Shan-tung, then like a train of powder the flame of revolt spread through Chi-li and the neigh-boring provinces, as the rebels marched onwards to Pekin, destroy-ing all they came across. Before things bet

Before things had come to such a bass, it was felt that another secret Before things had come to such a pass, it was felt that another secret cause was at work fanning the flame of revolt. In 1899, the Empress dis-missed the Cabinet ministers favor-able to Europeans, and formed a re-actionary ministry; at the same time, she declared the nine-year-old son of Prince Tuan, heir apparent to the throne. The Tuan family has twice been banished to Moukden in Mant-chooria, since the uprising of 1860. Prince Tuan now a man of forty had grown up in exile. He returned to Pekin nursing bitter revenge for all that had occurred during the last forty years. ignorant of European re-forms, full of the old Chinese no-tions, and fully resolved to use the high position given him by his son's elevation, to rid China of the strang-ers. The old Chinese trang-ers. The old Chinese party rallied round his standard; thousands flock-ed to his camp pitched under the walls of Pekin. The secret societies had at last an ally in court circles, on whom they could deneed

ad at last an ally in court circles

CHANCES OF LONG LIFE.

Much space is devoted to this subfect by non-Catholic journals. The Toronto "World" gives the follow-ing statistics to show that women live longer than men :

times when an agent calls a sub-scriber will say he is not ready, he did not know the agent was com-ing. This is a silly excuse as every reader knows well whether he or she is in arrears or not. There are a number on our lists who need awak-ening up to their duty once in awhile, and to those we address these few lines. We cannot spend time, ink, paper and postage stamps for what should be sent us really in advance and the few dead-beats on our list (and there are a few) will have to settle with a lawyer during the fall. It is the old story, but a very true one that the majority of our Catholic people think a publisher gets out a paper for nothing, and then is delighted to have for a Cath-olic paper would shame old Nick himself, but many of our readers fail to think that and go on week after week reading and devouring what they never pay for. ing statistics to show that women live longer than men : That more women than men at-tain great age has long been ob-served, says this journal. Losses of men's lives in vars and tumults and the superior personal morals of wo-men have been thought to account for this difference in longevity. Of late years, however, physicians have declared that women live longer be-cause they surpass men in power of endurance of both physical and men-tal suffering. Life insurance compan-ies used to refuse risks on women on account of their supposed lower vitality. More accurate statistics have led many companies to make so such discrimination. One of the companies which insure women on al equality with men has lately pub-lished figures from the United States census returns showing the propor-tional number of male deaths to each 1,000 female deaths in the entire country and in 271 cities. These figures upset some popular notions as to male and female endu-The best that money can buy should be your aim in choosing a medicine, and this is Hood's Sarsa-parilla. It cures when others fail.

country and in 271 cities. These figures upset some popular notions as to male and female endu-rance of certain diseases. Out of 24 causes of death given 22 are found more fatal to men than to women. Only measles, scarlet fever, diphthe-ria, whooping cough, peritonitis, cancer and consumption are more fatal to women than to men. Con-trary to the general opinion, city life is more favorable to male longe-vity than contry life. From 21 out of 29 causes the excess of male deaths over female is not so great in vity than country life. From 21 out of 29 causes the excess of male deaths over female is not so great in 271 cities as in the country. And measles and consumption, while gen-erally more fatal to females than to males, are less so in the cities. The opinion is universal that wo-men suffer more from nervous dis-eases than men. They may suffer, but they do not die of such diseases as men do. For every 1,000 women who die of affections of the nervous sys-

men do. For every 1,000 women who die of affections of the nervous sys-tem, 1,178 men in the country and 1,173 in cities succumb to such ail-ments. Suicide is often the result of disordered nerves. For each 1,000 women who take their lives, 3,583 men in the country and 3,561 in ci?ies give themselves their quietus. These facts tend to corroborate the opinion of many eminent physicians opinion of many eminent physicians that the female nervous system is less highly organized than the male, and therefore less sensitive to phy sical and mental pain. We conti-nually read and speak of men c conti sical and mental pain, we conti-nually read and speak of men o "iron nerves," but in few of the figures now produced that phrase would seem more fitly applied to the ladies. n of the cook-stove with a fine new range in whose ovens sixteen loaves of bread may be baked at once. The second case is in a certain neighborhood of this city. Dwellers in the locality no-ticed, a little over a year ago, a sign on the basement door of a mod-est home in the quarter, announcing the sale every Saturday of home-made cakes and pies. One after an-other, the housekeepers in the vicin-ity made a trial of the wares; found them excellent; and the business has grown from a weekly to a daily in-dustry. The goods, are delivered in meat boxes. Certain specialties such as soft gingerbread and raised bis-cuit are provided on certain days of the week. Undoubtedly there are other suburban towns and more city neighborhoods where the service could be introduced to the mutual profit of supplier and consumer. In the past, when war was the rul and peace the exception, lower stand-ards of domestic comfort, from which women suffered most, would seem to have redressed the balance of numerhave redressed the balance of numer-ical superiority conferred by her ex-emption from the soldier's dangers. Now, when war is the exception and peace the rule among civilized na-tions, woman's greater power of en-during disease still gives her numer-ical superiority.

POLITICS A DANGEROUS GAME.

An old political chief long since gone to his reward is said to have made the remark that politics was a queer game. Judging from the fol-lowing account of a recent tato starch are turned out annually in this country. The potatoes used for starch are the small and injured ones of the erop. Sixty bushels of them yield a barrel of starch. They are washed and reduced to pulp by machine, and the pulp is carried by water into tanks; at the bottom of which the starch settles. The starch is then transferred by shovels to another re-ceptacle, where it is stirred and transferred by shovels to another re-ceptacle, where it is stirred and beaten to a cream. After settling again, to remove all impurities, it needs only to be dried in order to be fit for commercial use. The drying is done in kilns, by steam coils, and, when the starch comes out, it is so white and beautiful as to resemble driven snow.

driven snow

BEGINS LAT eighty-six year of Jersey City ballot at the though he has states a numb took a suffic affairs to becon A native of eided prejudice tain. The talk possible alliann states and En ger and he at zenship papers. "Here is one alism," he dec down the court document in. J him to vote at "I shall vote

buy

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY. INDUSTRIOUS WOMAN .- According to a writer on "Domestic Topics," two cases that have recently come under the writer's notice would seem to emphasize the statement that the making of homebread, cake, and the making of homebread, cake, and pastry offers a profitable occupation outside that part of the field that is covered by the women's exchanges. In one of the cases referred to, a young girl living in a suburb town and known to make excellent bread for her family's use, was asked by as neighbor to include for her an extra loaf or two in every baking. Other neighbors heard of and duplicated this arrangement. From this modest beginning, the friendly service grew to a buziness. The village is one much frequented in summer by wealthy New Yorkers, and from May to November the youthful baker has difficulty in filling her orders for bread and rolls, even by working from 6 a.m. often till nearly mid-night. Her custom has made neces-sary the replacement of the family cook-stove with a fine new range in whose overs sitteen loaves of bread

cook-stove with a fine new range in whose ovens sixteen loaves of bread

STARCH FROM POTATOES. -

Nearly sixteen thousand tons of po-tato starch are turned out annually

"I shall vote Cafferty yestero against trusts that is just the President of th McCafferty, d and erect. He day's illness an dose of medicin

BUTTER DE. Alexander Hau agriculture of at Pittsburg o at Pittsburg o spatch, and wi his. arrival 40 Fittsburg and 4 for selling oleo be sold in Penn but all that ha colored like bu

WORK IN V but success in depends chiefly To great extent efficiency of dep it is upon this our own army the Philippines army in South turned With but one o ceptions, no 'or for any strictu for any strictu quali?ies of eit the English arr complaint and ther too much been made, re upon the ser transportation, ments. These r ments. ments. These a which put the tle-ground and trim after he trim after he g viation from th in matters of tion by just so ness of troops they have to do erican army in qualities of eit said to me, "S get a chance, vo get a chance, yo articles that an that if the Am supplied with mule to every for paign anywhere that comes in f

CATHOLIC "Catholic int "Catholic Mirr where they are Catholic newspa are held in hi their rights are fearless outsnot fearless, outspol And the mora lic spirited, we Catholic press.

PILGRIMS IN ago on Friday Holiness surpas year receptions, 80,000 pilgrims,

Germans, Spania and Italians. H

bishops and bish

cession. The Pope was by the demonsti-ported to be su tack of nervous sor Lappont r rest, but the P rupt the recepti Rome presents boing .crowded pilgrims in thei who are visitin footed.

A NEW BISHC of Indianapolis, Rome the pap the appointment Alerding as bish succeed the late Father Alerding bishop of Fort v embraces 17,000 includes Notre I other supportant in northern Ind years he has ha eph's purish in it large and prov beginning. He is has been in the two years, havi St. Meinrad's where he was ee ding is a native

Lien-Kiao (Brothers of the White Lotus) for instance, count millions of adherents in every province of China, and even in every part of the civilized world

It is not difficult, therefore, to un-It is not difficult, therefore, to un-derstand how populations so poor that they have nothing to lose by any change; discontented with their hard lot; exasperated by the extor-tions of mandarins, prefects and vice-roys; and members of vast and oath-bound conspiracies, may, upon the secret word of command, rise up in rebellion; and infatuat?d by the ab-surd promises of their leaders, kill, plunder and burn without fear or pity. pity.

she passed from the civilization of the third century to that of the nine-teenth. She that had been, from time immemorial, the satellite of China, found herself at once her rival, then her conqueror.

her conqueror. China lacks the energy of Japan. She has remained more or less inert and passive, accepting only partially the reforms which the Powers dic-tated to her. The popular demagogue has a strong hold on the Chinese multitude, and he easily persuades those who do not come directly un-der European influence to oppose the foreigners. The number of individuals who live in the European 'conces-

The work of years seems annihilat-ed; yet out of this evil God knows foor but a few minutes when Sam-uels, who was seated opposite him, ingde a remark which reflected some-what on Spurlock's character. Spur-lock resented it in bitter terms. Sam-uels quietly pulled a revolver, and without another word fired, the bul-let penetrating Spurlock's body just below the heart. He fell to the floor and never uttered another word. It was daylight this morning before life was extinct. Dancing was being indulged in in an adjoining room when the tragedy occurred. Samuels left during the excitement, but subsequently surren-dered. Spurlock was very popular. He graduated from the West Virginia College of Law four years ago.

THAT IS WHAT THEY SAY.

Those who take Hood's Sarsaparil-la for scrofula, eczema, eruptions, ca-tarrh, rheumatism or dyspepsia, say it cures promptly and permanently, even after all other preparations fail. You may take this medicine with the utmost confidence that it will do you good. What it has done for others you have every reason to believe it will do for you.

Constipation is cured by Hood's Pills, 25c.

PLAIN TALK TO DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS.

It is a sad state of affairs who Catholic publisher is forced to such lines as the following, in oi to secure the payment of a pa sum for subscriptions. Here is w

The commercial starches in use to day are made from maize, potatoes day are made from marze, potatoes, rice, wheat, sago flour and taploca flour. Rice starch, commands the highest price, and maize starch is the cheapest. Wheat starch comes next in value to rice starch, and po-tato starch third in the list.

"Necessity Knows No Law." But a law of Nature bows to the necessity of keeping the blood pure so that the entire system shall be strong, healthy and vigorous.

healthy and vigorous. To take Hood's Sarssparilla, the great blood purifier, is therefore a law of health and it is a necessity in nearly every household. It never disappoints. Eryspielas. "Had a severe attack of erroriness so that loould not rest at night. Tried Hood's Sarssparille with good results, and now recommend it to others." M. Casarass, Toronto, Ont. Thed Feeling.-"Was all run down and had no specific. Was tired all the time, food's Sarssparilla was suggested, and a vial beneficed me so much that now I. boold not be without the medicine." Mas. 0. D. Bruswer, Central Norton, N. B.

ANOTHER

A MILLIONAIRE'S DESPAIR.

Money—millions— cannot restor the eyesight of a millionaire who become rich. The following account of a recent interview with the ati-ficted millionaire depicts in a ter-rible manner the depth of his des pair. There seems to be no hope in his heart beyond the weak resources of things material. Here is the port from a New York newspaper "I would be giad to walk out of here in my shirt sleeves, with noth-ing else in the world but the clother that covered me, if I could go with my sight restored." "I would give every penny I have in the world," said Mr. Rouss. "to ay sight restored." So spoke Charles Broadway Rouss, aillionaire merchant and philanthrop-st, yesterday. He was speaking of is utter despain—his eyesight is one forever. He has at last brought imself to believe that he will never ee again. He will no longer submit o experiment in the vain hope of existing the use of his eyes. He es withdrawn his offer of $1,000, 00 for a cure

tht! midnight!" he sighed,

not even when I gaze directly at the sur." The millionaire sat at his desk in the great building No. 551 Broad-way. Within earshot were a thou-sand at work helping to increase the great fortune which is already his. In front of him lay a mass of cor-respondence which meant nothing to him buil $10 a week to hire ran over it for him. At his elbow sat a type." "I would give every penny I have in this establishment. But I have given up hope now. I shall dispuss with the services of young John F. Mattin, my substitute, who has sub-mitted to call the experiments de-signed to cure me. He has paralysis of the optic nerve, just as I have. Nothing can sure him and nothing can ure me. "I feel great compassion for him.

He comes in here occasionally, and I give him a little money, but it's no use any longer. I used to give him 86 a week, then 85, and then 83, but I'm going to stop. Nothing on earth can cure me. "It began in 1892," said the mil-lionaire. 'I noticed that things week Six weeks ago Mr. Rouss submit-ted to the last test. It failed, as had the one hundred which he had tried before. Martin, his paid substitute, has submitted to two hundred be-sides, and but two of them ever gave him a faint ray of hope.

"It began in 1892," said the mil-lionaire. "I noticed that things were getting dim, but at first paid no at-tention to, it. My physician sent me to Dr. Knapp, the oculist. The ocu-list looked grave. But I had hope." The old man paused a minute. "But I have no hope now," he add-ed, gently. "The light went out be-tween three and four years ago. Since then I have seen nothing, not even sunight. It was night work that did it. I used to work always fourteen hours a day, and a dozen times in a year I worked twenty-four hours a day. I never knew what it was to take a vacation. I don't take any now, rest would drive me crazy. me crazy.

The crazy. "I have nothing now but my business. I used to go to bed at 10 or 11 o'clock—now I go to bed at 7.80. I get up at 5, have break-fast, and at 6 I drive out in the Park till 8, where some one reads hours every day, and not a detail of hours every day, and not a detail of his vast business escapes his mind. He still sticks to his plan of cash for everything. Each employee is paid every night for the day's work.

him a faint ray of hope. Yer there hasn't been a day since he made his million-dollar offer for a cure that some alleged healer has not called on Mr. Rouss. "Martin submits to further experi-ments only at his own risk." said the millionaire. "Neither of us has had a particle of relief from all the specialists who tried us. I will talk no more with them and the offer is closed forever. I shall be blind now till the end." Mr. Rouss works ten or eleven hours every day, and not a detail of