HUMOROUS.

"Old woman, how do you sell beets?" asked a New Orleans bummer of an old vegetable woman in the French market yesterday: "Ven I haf some like you vas, I sell them two for a cent abiece."

At the marriage of an Alabama widower one of the servants was asked if his master would take a bridal tour. "Dono sah; when old missus's alive he took a paddle to her; dunno if he take a bridle to de new one or not."

A southwestern editor, speaking of a large and fat contemporary, remarked that if all flesh was grass, he must be a load of hay. "I expect I am," said the fat man, "from the way the donkeys are nibbling at me."

An Oil City maiden, who had just recovered from a two-days' attack of green apple cramp, recited in public the other night that touching poem, "Go feel what I have felt," with such emphasis that it brought tears to the eyes of the green grocer.

A German resident of Belmont avenue, who recently espoused an Irish wife, who proved herself to be the better half, was questioned as to his nationality. "Vell," he responded, scratching his head, "I was pornin Germany, but I vas Irish by marriage."

"You ought to marry," "Never." "I know the very girl." "Let me alone." "She is young." "Then she is sly." "Beautiful." "The more dangerous." "Of good family." "Then she is proud." "Tender-hearted." "Then she is jealous." "She has talent." "Then she is conceited." "And a fortune." "I will take her."

"My dear Antoinette," said a gallant officer to a young lady whose smiles he was seeking, "I have long wished for this sweet opportunity, but I hardly dare trust myself now to speak the deep emotions of my palpitating heart; but I declare to you, my dearest Antoinette, that I love you most tenderly; your smiles would shed—would shed—" "Never mind the woodshed," said the young lady, "go on with that pretty talk."

A young lady was speaking to a friend who had called upon her regarding the trait characteristic of her mother, who always had a good word to say to every one. Why, she said, I believe if satan were under discussion mother would have a good word to say for him. Just then the mother entered, and was informed what the daughter had said, whereupon she quietly replied, Well, my dear, I think we might all imitate satan's perseverance.

A drag, driven by an elegantly attired lady, with a trim and neatly dressed colored boy perched on the footmans's seat behind, was passing through the street, when it was espied by an old negro woman. "Bress de Lord!" she exclaimed, raising her hands as she spoke. "Bress de Lord! I never 'spected to see dat. Wonder what dat young cullid gemman pays dat young white 'oman for drivin dat kerridge? I know'd it'd come, but never 'spected to lib to see it. Dis nigga 's ready to go 'way now."

There is a story that the Duke of Argyll and the Duke of Sutherland were once travelling together by railway, when a commercial traveller entered the carriage. The new comer took his share in general conversation, till one of the peers got out at an intermediate station. The commercial traveller then asked his companion if he knew who the "party" was and on being enligh tened exclaimed, "Dear me! Was that really the Duke of——? Just think of his talking in that there affable way to a couple of little cads like you and me!"

John kemble's most familar table-talk often flowed into blank verse. Sir Walter Scott used to chuckle with particular glee over the recollection of an excursion to the vale of Ettrick, near which river the parties were pursued by a bull. "Come, King John," said he, "we must even take to the water," and accordingly he and his daughter plunged into the stream. But King John halting on the bank exclaimed in his usual solemn manner, "The flood is angry, sheriff, methinks I'll get up in a tree." In the same strain was Mrs. Siddons accustomed to talk. Scott (who was a capital mimic) often repeated her tragic exclamation to a footboy during a dinner at Ashestiel, "You've brought me water, boy; I asked for beer."

Jones had engaged a man to dig a well at his suburban place. Seeing him a month later, Jones asked how he was getting along with his work, and was told that the well was half done. Judge, therefore, of his surprise when, a week after this conversation, upon visiting the premises, he found only a circle marked in the earth. Of course he hunted up the man, and of course he asked him what he meant by saying the well was half done. The man very coolly replied: "So it is; well begun is half done, you know." Jones was too obtuse to see anything to laugh at; he was heard, however, to mutter something or other about dashed nonsense.—Boston Transcript.

The very best men sometimes make a mistake, for no man's arrow always hits the mark. The French say, "Even a good fisherman may possibly let an eel slip from him."

Everyone will be glad to hear that Cardinal Manning has revived, or is rapidly recovering from his recent indisposition—an attack of influenza.

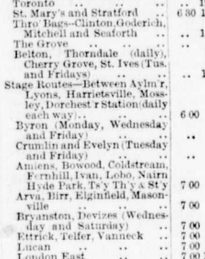
BALDNESS, GREYNESS, DANDUFF, HAIR-FALLING.



CAN Baldness be cured? Has been settled in the affirmative by Chas. M. Wintercorbyn, late of H.M. Royal Navy, who has accomplished in Toronto and Hamilton during the last three years what has never been done by any advertised remedies of the century, by restoring the hair to members of the most hopeless cases. This is no deception, as hundreds of the citizens of Toronto, Hamilton, and elsewhere can testify to the truth of this statement. The Restorative is put up in bottles, at One Dollar per bottle, or six for Five Dollars. For further information, address—

The Fire Office, now in the 21st year of its existence, is doing a larger, safer and better business than ever, having in the month of June issued 1,940 policies and in July 2,032 policies—a number never before exceeded except by itself.
Intending Insurers Will Note,
1st. That the "London Mutual" was the pioneer of cheap farm insurance in Canada, and that its rates have always been placed as low as is commensurate with the hazard; that, being Purely Mutual, it has no stockholders, and all profits are added to its reserve fund to give better security to its members.
2nd. That it is the only Company that has always strictly adhered to one class of business, and now has more property at risk in the Province of Ontario alone than any other Company—stock or mutual—English, Canadian, or American, [vide Government Returns].
3rd. That it has paid nearly a million dollars in compensation for losses, having distributed the same in nearly every township in the Province
4th. That its books and affairs are always open to the inspection of the members, and the Directors are desirous that the privilege should be exercised.
FARMERS! Patronize your own old, sound, safe, economical Company, and be not led away by the delusions of new ventures and the theories of amateurs in the insurance business.
