

"GOLD FOR IRON" SLOGAN OF HUNS

Are Entreated to Make All Sacrifices for the Fatherland.

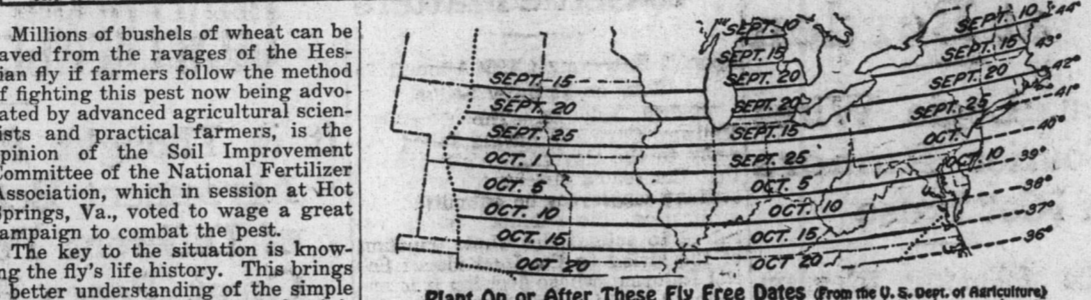

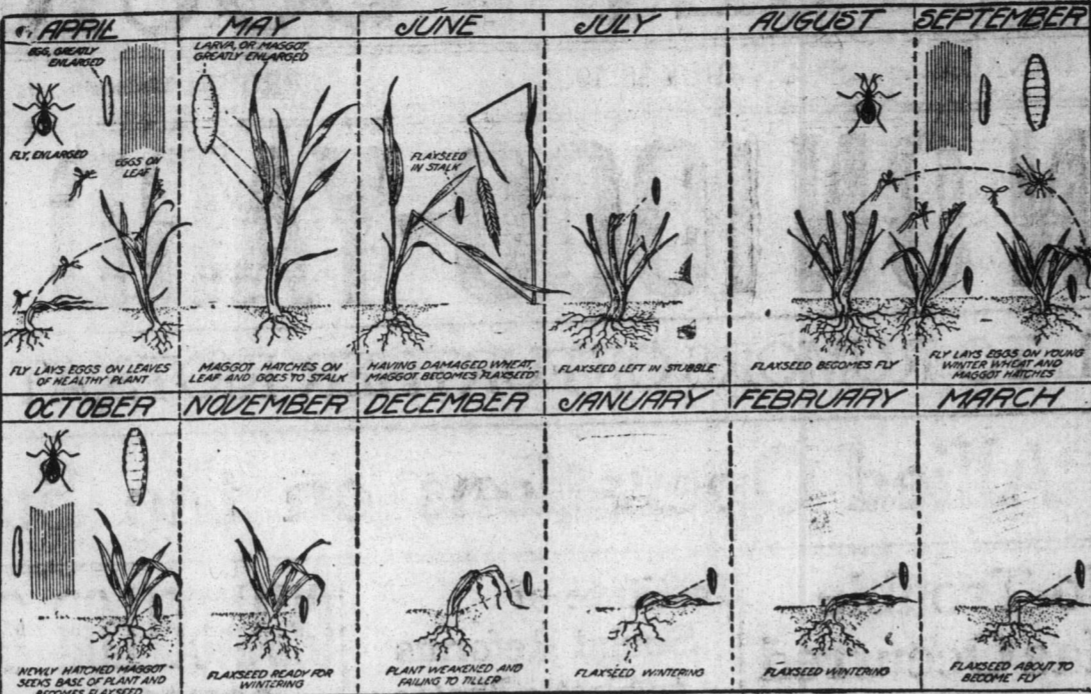

By Special Wire to the Courier.
New York, July 18.—The World publishes the following dispatch from Karl H. Von Wegend, staff correspondent at Berlin:
"Gold for iron," is the new slogan of the patriotic and self-sacrificing spirit of Germany. More and more the spirit of the German people, their self-sacrifice and the conditions they have confronted tend to recall the days and spirit of the time of Frederick the Great.
A century ago, during the great struggle with Napoleon, the German people gave their plate and jewelry to the state to be melted. To-day highly patriotic Germans are beginning to do what their forefathers did.
As in many other places, a gold purchasing office has been opened at Potsdam, the Kaiser's home town. Gold watches, rings, chains, bracelets and other jewelry and ornaments are brought there. Specialists appraise their value and pay for the articles in paper or silver money.
Those who deliver gold articles are given, aside from their intrinsic value in currency, a beautiful memorial. Others receive an artistically wrought chain of iron. Iron rings also may be had.
The chief burgomaster of Vossburg, chairman of the honorary executive committee of the "Gold for Iron" movement, has issued an appeal, which says:
"The economic strength of the nation is founded in its first line upon the amount of gold in the imperial bank. Therefore, to maintain and increase this amount of gold is an urgent duty to the fatherland. Not alone in giving up and delivering coined gold can we help, but everything of gold that may be in our possession can contribute to this end."

Millions of bushels of wheat can be saved from the ravages of the Hessian fly if farmers follow the method of fighting this pest now being advocated by advanced agricultural scientists and practical farmers, in the opinion of the Soil Improvement Committee of the National Fertilizer Association, which in session at Hot Springs, Va., voted to wage a great campaign to combat the pest.
The key to the situation is knowing the fly's life history. This brings a better understanding of the simple method used to fight it, and minimizes the chances of your fields being ravaged. Literally it is a vampire sucking the life-blood from your wheat.
These are two broods of the fly—the fall and spring broods. With the fall brood the flies come out of the pupae or "flax-seed" stage. They live about two weeks and then die, or most of them are killed by the first frost. But during their lifetime they migrate extensively, going to other fields from where they hatched. Here they lay their eggs and the maggots soon hatch to begin work in the stems at the base of the plant. When thus affected the plant soon does not "fill" or "stays" and the early winter finds it dead.
As colder weather comes on this

NOTICE TO FARMERS IN BURFORD DISTRICT
Now that you have seen our building operations going on at Burford, you know that we are going to have a Milk Powder Plant, for which we will require all the milk we can get.
In order that you may have full information and ask any questions about this business, there will be a general meeting held in the Barnea Hall, Burford, Ont., at 8 p.m., Wednesday evening, July 19th. Our Mr. S. E. Trainer, who is in charge of the manufacturing end of our business, will address the meeting. Mr. E. Agar, General Superintendent of our plants, will also be at the meeting. Mr. Robert McArthur, who will be our Local Superintendent of the Burford plant, will be there to get acquainted with you.
Tell your friends about this meeting and be sure to come, as there is nothing that has happened in the district for a long time that means so much to the farmers of the district as this new Milk Powder Plant. We want you to know what we are going to do, and we want to get acquainted with you. Do not be late at the meeting, as there will be a lot to talk about.
Yours truly,

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men
Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.
Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and virginal—a good clear skin, a rosy, ruddy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.
Instead of the thousands of sickly, anemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nervous wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.
An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and refreshing the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.
Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quart of pure limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of

The same time in a given locality. They live generally not longer than two weeks, hence co-operation among wheat growers by late seeding means a partial eradication of this pest in a community.
Good, strong, healthy plants receive less injury from the fly than the sickly ones. Insure a good start to the late sown wheat by giving it plenty of quickly available plant-food. A fertilizer containing 2 to 3 per cent ammonia is the best "crop insurance" that can be bought. This makes for quick-growing hardier stems to which the pest does less injury as well as overcomes any handicap due to late seeding.

ARBUTUS
Her name was Arbutus and she was a flower fairy. Not just an ordinary flower fairy, either, for she always had her buds ready to open by the autumn. Not the spring, mind you, nor the summer in the fashion of the lazier flower-folk—but autumn.
"Wind," called Arbutus to the autumn wind prowling around among the trees, "my buds are ready. Now you must bring me my coverlet of leaves to guard them until spring."
But the wind was cranky.
"No more," he blustered, "do I ride the leaves around upon my back. Not I. I'm pretty tired of it. Every year they want to scuttle about at my speed and their convenience, but I don't notice they ever want to pay for their rides."
Arbutus shivered.
"If you do not bring the leaves to me," she cried, "I shall die."
But precious little the Wind seemed to care. He flew off howling.
Now on a tree bough nearby sat a pigeon—a carrier pigeon too, and when he heard the Arbutus crying softly he flew down with his head upon one side. He liked her gown—it was so pink and waxen. He liked the woody smell of the trailing shrub in which she lived. He liked the evergreen leaves, but most of all he liked the little flower fairy who kept her flower castle in order the year around.
"Arbutus," he said, "I am a trained messenger. Even men trust me. Let me bear a message to the leaves that the wind is cranky and that you may die for want of winter cover. They will find a way to come."
So the carrier pigeon flew proudly off, bearing a message from Arbutus to the leaves. And as he flew he thought to himself:
"Why! I can carry the leaves back to her upon my back. I am strong and swift and sure, and I love service."
So one day he came flying and there upon his back were leaves and leaves and leaves, a heavier load I fear, than he should have carried.
Gently with his beak he covered the delicate trailing shrub and the cluster of buds and Arbutus crept beneath the coverlet of leaves and went to sleep.
That year because the wind had been so cranky many a trailing Arbutus died, but with the first warmth of the spring sun, the fairy friend of the carrier pigeon opened her delicate blossoms and smiled.
"Ah," she said, "I am the first flower of the season!"
And so Arbutus married the carrier pigeon and every year he bears upon his back leaves enough to cover the flower castle of his bride and guard it from the cold.

TO THE EDITOR
TERRACE HILL NEEDS.
Brantford, July 17, 1916
163 Terrace Hill St., City.
To the Editor Courier.
Sir—Looking over to-night's paper I was very pleased to see our old friend, P. Noble's letter; like myself, not frightened to let the other fellow know what we stand for. Just think! dollars and cents, and into who's pockets. Better to have a cleaner and purer one at the present time. Just consider the money some of these advocates of greatness. They will put up a factory, almost poison everyone around them with various odors, ignore protests from citizens who have built up their homes there with impunity, and take away all that the toiler has got in life, (his home). Part is true, $65,000, and I don't believe we will get a decent approach at that. They'll be after another chunk, and then they burn steady day and night until I notified them. I was thinking these bright nights, they might turn them off altogether and call it moonlight saving. They could save a little money to help pay for digging the sand out of the grates on Alonza street and not allow the water to run down the back of the people's houses. Don't talk about battle being past, to Terrace Hill residents. We are like the allies, waiting until we have got lots of ammunition, and when we do get started, we mean business. Why should we not have our streets well kept, splendidly situated as we are, and every person, as far as I can judge, anxious to see our part of the city as attractive as any other.
Hoping you will be kind enough to publish these few remarks in your valuable paper.
Yours truly,
