

LESSON II April 8, 1917 Jesus raises Lazarus from the dead-

Easter Lesson.—John 11; 17-44. COMMENTARY.—I. Mourning over the death of Lazarus (vs. 17-19). 17. When Jesus came—Jesus had been at When Jesus came—Jesus had been at Bethabara. in Perea, the place where John the Baptist had preached and baptised. He went there from Jerusalem where the Jews had tried to arrest him (John 10;39, 40). He did not enter into Bethany, but came into the vicinity. Four days—It was told Jesus that Lazarus had lain in the grave four days, though he knew it without being told. Lazarus must have died on the day that messengers told Jesus he was sick. Jesus tarried two days and occupied one day in journeying to Bethany, making four in all. areying to Bethany, making four in all. It is the custom in that country to bury the dead on the day that death takes place, for decomposition speedily follows. 18. Beshany—The name means "house of dates," probably from the abundance of date palms formerly growing there. It is on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives. It is now a wretched Moslem village. The famic name is El-Azariyeh, or The Lazarus. Fifteen furlongs—One and seven-eighths miles. 19. Came to Martha end Mary—The family must have been prominent in the community and well thought of by the Jews, even takes place, for decomposition speedily have been prominent in the community and well thought of by the Jews, even though they were in close close friendship with Jesus. To comfort them concerning their brother—It was part of the Jewish cermonial of mourning that many, ten at least, should come and console (Gen. 37; 25, 2 Sam. 12; 17; Job 2; 11). It is said that the usual period of mourning was thirty days; three of weeping, seven of lamentation, twenty of sorrow. But the instances in scripture vary.—Cam. Bib. If Resurrection Power in Jesus (vs. 11. Resurrection Power in Jesus (vs. 20.32). 20. Martha—went and met him—Jesus halted outside the village, and as soon as Martha heard of his coming she went to meet him. "Her position here, it may be said, is obviously that of the elder sister the head and

tion here, it may be said, is obviously that of the elder sister, the head and manager of the household."—Smith. It is natural that she should be the first to go forth to meet the Master. Mary still sat in the house (R. V.)— The same characteristics of Martha and Mary, respectively, are seen here in the incident described in Luke 10; 38-the incident described in Luke 10; Mary, respectively, are seen here in the incident described in Luke 10; 38-42. The sitting posture was usually assumed by those who were mourning. 21. Lord—Master, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died—Martha does not reproach Jesus for not having come, but regrets that he was not present to heal him while he was sick. There was not time for Jesus to reach him after word was sent to him that Lazarus was ill. * She expressed her confidence in his healing power, but supposed that he must be present in person to do the work. 22. Whatsoever thou wilt ask of God!-Her words indicate that she believed Jesus could ask the Father to raise the brother from the dead and his prayer would be answered. She had probably heard of the raising to life of the son of the widow of Nain and of the daughter of Jairus. She must have known of the Old Testament miracles of resurrection from the dead. Her declaration of faith must have been pleasing to him. 23. Thy brother shall rise again—Although Martha understood these words to refer to the final resurrection of the dead, she must have been comforted; yet it is evident that Jesus was giving her the promise of raising Lazarus to life 24. I know that he shall rise again—Martha did not belong to the Sadduconn sect of the Jesus, for she believed in the resurrection at the last day." That did not satisfy her pre-was assured in the resurrection at the last day." That did not satisfy her present desire. She longed for his re-

25. Jesus said unto her—He recognized the deep agitation of her soul and spoke the word that must have moved her deepest moral and spiritual nature, as it has moved hearts all down the ages. I am the resurrection, and the life—Note the use of the definite article in connection with the words resurrection and life. Jesus is resurrection and life. the only source of life. He is the giver of life and the restorer of it. Jesus employs the present tense, saying, "I am," not, "I will be." He gave Martha know that He had, at that very instant, power to restore Lazarus to life. He that believeth in Me—To be-lieve in Jesus then was to accept Him ses the Mossiah, to acknowledge His divine power and to receive Him as Saviour and Lord. To believe in Jesus now means the same. The be-liever submits fully to the divine will His and becomes a new creature in Christ Jesus. Though he were dead. Though -R. V. Jesus did not assure men that they would not disappredically. Yet shall be live—Believers an Jesus did not assure men that they would not die physically. Yet shall he live—Believers in Jeusus are not im mune from physical death, but they are not subject to eternal death. They are spiritually alive and the who is the source of all life dwells in them. 26. Whoseever liveti—Physically. Shall never die—Bellevers in Christ shall never die eternally. Bellevest shall never die eternally. Believes thou this—Jesus had given utterance to most profound truths, applicable to individuals, and He asked Martha, to whom he was speaking, if she believed what He had said. The importance and efficacy of faith can not be overestimated, 27. Yea, Lord—The question Jesus put to Martha was dirquestion Jesus put to Martha was direct and pointed, and the reply she gave was no less so. The blessing that comes to the sout that thus implicitly believes in Jesus is inexpressibly great. It is only when one becomes thoroughly submissive and trustful that this heart cry, "Yet, Lord," is uttered. Thou art the Christ—Whethuttered. Thou art the Christ—Whether or not Martha had fully grasped the sublime truths which her Lord had spoken, she grasped the thought of His Messiahship and declared her faith in Him. 28-32. Martha's interview with Jesus was deeply comforting to her. From it she returned to her sister and told her that the Master was calling for her. She went quickly to meet Him and when she saw Him, she made the same statement that Martha had made before her, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

Jesus was soon to disclose to her and Jesus was soon to disclose to her and Martha and to all the world His power over death, such a manifestation of His power would of His disciples in and would declare His

III. Lazarus raised to life (vs. 33-44).
Warv weeping, and 33-42. Jesus saw Mary weeping, and the Jews who came with her were the Jews who came with her were also weeping in sympathy for her. He was deeply moved, and we have an exhibition of his sympathy for the sorrowing. "Jesus wept," and the Jews were convinced of his love for Lazarus. They asked among themselves if he who had given sight to the blind could not have kept Lazarus from dying. Upon his arrival at the cave which formed the tomb of Lazarus, he ordered that the stone which covered the entrance should be taken away. Martha's objection that the covered the entrance should be taken away. Martha's objection that the body had already become decomposed was met by the words of Jesus. "Said I not unto thee that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?" When the stone was removed. Jesus offered a prayer of thanksgiving to the Father for hearing him. 43. When he had thus poken—With the Father. He cried with a loud voice— It was unusual for Jesus to speak in loud tones, but he spoke thus on this occasion that all the people assem-mand, "come forth," imparted the life that enabled the dead to obey. Bound ......with graveclothes—His hands and feet were probably wound separately with strips of cloth, holding the spices in place. Face was bound about with a napkin—The cloth was placed the chin and fastened over the head. Loose him—Jesus gave directions to have the grave clothes re moved from the living Lazarus, for they were no longer needed.

they were no longer needed.

Questions.—Where was the home of Lazarus? Where was Jesus when word came to him that Lazarus was sick? Why did not Jesus go at once to him? Relate the conversation between Jesus and Martha. What did Mary say to Jesus? Why did the Jews conclude that Jesus loved Lazarus? Describe the raising of Lazarus to life. What effect did it have upon the opposers of Jesus?

PRACTICAL SURVEY. Topic .- A sympathizing Saviour. Sounded the depths of human

Established faith in himself. Sounded the depths of human woe. As soon as Martha and Mary apprehended danger, they sent for Jesus. Two sharply contrasted types of natural character are exhibited in these two sisters. Martha's creed was sound, but not complete. She thought clearly professed her fettly with held. clearly, professed her faith with boldness, with no hesitation or qualification. Jesus did not minister to Mary by discourse as he did to Martha. He dealt with her occording to her nature and temperament. Martha had fully grasped what Jesus was in relation to God, but not what he was in himself, the Source and Giver of life. Her faith had not risen to the divinity of his Person and mission. Her love was stronger than her faith. She did not see the connection between Christ's delay and the good of all concerned. Jesus did not try to annihilate Martha's grief, but to infuse it with another spirit. The death of Lazarus bad spread a dark shadow over the hearts of many Lesus behold death in heartg of many. Jesus beheld death in all its dread significance as the wages which sin had wrought. Humanity in all its sin and misery was portrayed in that gathering at the grave of Laz-arus. Jesus knew how much the darkness and sorrows of death were inten-sifled and aggravated by the state of ignorance and unbelief in which the world lay. His grief was connected with man's misery. While in his di-vine thought and sorrow Jesus penetrated to the root and source of all evil, the mighty attendant suffering awoke in him the truest and deepest compassion and tenderness toward all men. His tears were human, but his compassion and sympathy were divine. By his example he gave sanc tion and limit to sorrow, the limits in which sorrow is sacred and hallow iret, and beyond which it is harmful and weakening. The heart which found expression for its woe in tears found expression for its sympathy and pity in the reaching out a hand to

II Established faith in Himself. As it regarded the manifestation of the glory of God, the arrival of Jesus was neither too early nor too late. By His delay Jesus tried the character of His delay Jesus tried the character of all who knew the case. The restoration of Lazarus from death was more beneficial to faith than His preservation from it would have been. The growth and confirmation of their faith involved their greatest good. This alone could bring them into closer union with Christ and with the ser union with Christ and with the Father and open to them the door of the spiritual kingdom and fully present to their view the grand and real visions of Jesus as their King in all his beauty. Martha set a practical bound to Jesus' words. She set his promise in the remote future and made it impersonal, placing Lazarus with all the other dead. That which lifted her beyond the atmosphere of doubt was Jesus' exposition of the things concerning Himself. His first purpose was to get their minds away from death. His next purpose was to get them to identify Himself with the resurrection. Jesus set before Martha a specific fact and challenged her faith on definite teaching about Him-self. He called upon her to believe in H's personal, present power and the union of His people with Himself. Jesus connected the seeing of God's glory with the exercise of faith. The words of Jesus at the grave expressed His recognition of God as His Father his consciousness of the Father's re gard and His consideration of the peo-ple, in His devotion. By a natural, fil-ial instinct his heart rose out of its depression into confident communion with His Father, His solemn thanks-giving expressed gratitude for the assurance of power to accomplish the miracle confidence that as He always stood within the Father's favor, care for the multitude that they might be prepared to believe

BEEF CATTLE SITUATION=DURING WAR AND AFTER

Holdings Are Badly Depleted, European Herds are Decimated, and Demand Will Soon be Satisfied—Breed Well, Feed Well and Weed Well is One Expert's Advice. (By John Gardhouse.)

During the last five years there has been a marked decrease in beef cat-tle holdings in Canada—some 600,000 fewer cattle being held now than in 1912. In all provinces except Sas-katchewan and Alberta this decrease has been general, but was far more marked in Ontario than in any other. marked in Ontario than in any other.
We find, moreover, that there exists a great shortage of best beef the world over. When the war is ended this shortage will be felt very keenly not only in this country, but all over the continent of Europe as well. Therefore we are safe in saying that there never was a time in the history of the country when it was of as great importance as it is at present for the people of Canada to think, and think most seriously, of the position this country is likely to be in with reference to the future supply of beef proence to the future supply of beef pro ducing animals.

HOW CANADIANS MAY BENEFIT.

We are now in the third year of the greatest war the world has ever known, and which has in several ways had its effect on the beef supply of the world. In consequence, we find that breeding operations are complete. ly disorganized, especially in the countries where the war is raging. It will be impossible in those countries. even under the most favorable con-ditions, to get back to the breeding of anything like a reasonable supply of good beef cattle for some time after the cessation of hostilities; and that points out the road to opportunity to Canadians. Most of the European countries will have to get part of their breeding stock at least from this North American continent in orthis North American continent in order to build up their herds again, and may be compelled to buy large stores of the beef which will be required in these countries as well. There is no reason why Canadians should not secure an important part of this trade, providing we breed and feed
the proper type of animal.

I know I am safe in saying that it s most important from the standpoint of the individual farmer and of the nation as well, that a solid founda-tion should be laid by the conservation of all good breeding females possible. As a war measure the British Government has already imposed restrictions against the slaughter of calves and females. I am afraid that a measure of this kind, even in war times, would not be advisable in this country. Yet we have only to visit some of the live stock markets to find that even at this time a great many calves of the beef breeds, and large numbers of useful heifers and cows, which should be spared are finding their way to the block. We continually face the danger involved in the loss of such large numbers of good beef bred calves, and in the serviceable cows and heifers, of which are in calf when slaughtered. This is certainly short-sighted prac-tice—to say the least—on the part of those who sell them, and is a most serious loss to the country at large.

EXPORTATION OF FEEDING CATTLE.

In the matter of exportation of our stockers and feeders we find as a result of this business, that large

In 1915 there were exported from Western Canada to the United States 96,499 head, and of this number probably 70 per cent. were stockers and feeders. And, as you will no doubt remember there was an abundant supply of all kinds of feed for live stock at that time. Fortunately we find that the recent cam-paign carried on by the Live Stock Branch, Ottawa, to conserve as far as possible the breeding stock has had a very beneficial effect.

In spite of the fact that the census of June 20th last shows a heavy decrease in the total number of beef cattle within the Dominion, the marketing at the different code. sus of June 20th last shows a heavy decrease in the total number of beef importance of renewed exertion on cattle within the Dominion, the marketings at the different stock yards in Canada during the past year have

With so many men taken from the land by the war, including experts in breeding and feeding, it is per-haps more than ever necessary, that careful attention should be given to the breeding and feeding of the right type of animal, as it is only by maintaining animals in a thoroughly healthy condition, that the best and most profitable results can be secured. I trust that those who remain at home will render no less valuable aid by helping to maintain and in-cease, in every way possible, not only the live stock of the country, but the

been exceptionally heavy-especially so during the last few monthspartially on account of the scarcity and high prices obtainable for meat producing animals. Due to these high prices it has been an exceptionally good year for beef raisers, even though large numbers of unfinished animals have been conspicuous at practically all the markets. Many farmers, we believe, might have made even more money had they not been in such a hurry to send their stock to market, but had spent a little more time and money in properly finishing them. A noticeable feature of the year has been the splendid trade in pure bred cattle at fairly high prices. I have been informed by the account ant that regislations in the breeds in 1916 have increased 4.491 cover those in 1915. There is every considering the high price of feed. Looking to the future, with the evidence we have before us, we may safely predict that for some years to and the scarcity of labor, it is mere than ever essentially in this country that notinng but the right type of pure bred sires should be used, and it is just as important that liberal yet economical feeding be practised, in order to obtain the best with the least possible waste.

MUST CONSERVE GOOD FEMALES.

Considering that there not enough beef producing animals to supply the normal demand, the fol-lowing facts stand forth clearly: Ist. Prices will continue high; as long as the supply is not equal to the demand we cannot expect nything but high prices. 2nd. The high market prices are bound to continue to have the effect of drawing from the breeder many good cows and helfers which should be retained for breeding pur-3rd. The fact that so many poses. good females find their way to the block will have a tendency to keep the supply down for perhaps a num-ber of years. 4th, It is well to keep in mind the length of time it requiresto produce a good beef bullock, 5th beef cattle will be scarce and come. high, and it will be good business, both from the standpoint of the breeder and farmer, as well as of the nation to breed all good cattle possible, retain the females, and feed and care for them well

A DARING FEAT.

Marvelous Swordsmanship of an Indian Sergeant.

Indian swordsmen are acknowl edged to be unrivalled. An extraordinary performer, who was a sergeant in one of the native regiments is thus spoken of in Colonel Barras' book, "India and Tiger lunting": "He was a fine-looking fellow, in the prime of life, and, notwithstanding the frightfully critical nature of what he was going to do. he moved about with perfect ease and calmness. In one hand he held a very long double-edged sword, sharp at the point and with edges like razors. With the other hand he led his little son, a child aged about six years, who was also clearly accustomed to what was about to follow.

"From the little fellow's evident enjoyment of the scene it was plain that failure on the part of his father was quite beyond the limits of his imagination. As soon as the usual preliminaries had been gone through, such as walking around and salaam ing to the commanding officer and principal officers, the father placed his little boy in the centre of a circle, with a small lime (a kind of emon), about twice the size of a walnut, under his heel. "It isn't wise to trust a secret to the mails," cautioned the Wise Guy, "How about the females?" asked the Simple "Then, taking up his stand at a few feet from the child, he grasped firmly the hilt of the sword and began brandishing it rapidly in the air.

The blade was thin and finely tempered, so that it could be seen to quiver and undulate throughout its entire length as it flashed in the ray of the setting sun. Suddenly the muscles of the athlete might be seen to stiffen themselves; an instant's pause, then a sudden and lightning-like swoop, and the lime under the boy's heel was safely severed.

"Then, the boy having taken up his position as before, a small open his position as before, a small open box, about the size of those we use for tooth powder, was placed on the ground at his feet. It was filled with a black powder called soorma, used by the natives for darkening eyelashes. Round this little box and about the boy's head the sword was now made to play with redoubled velocity. In the midst of the most dazzling passes the weapon would dart towards the little box, and then reappear, steadily poised at the full stretch of the professor's eyes, in front of the eyes of the child; then sudden turn of the wrist, and a very dark line of powder was lying on one of the boy's lower eyelashes, of the boy's lower eyelashes, placed there by the sharp point of the long sword. The same was then done to the other eye. This feat was performed weekly, always with undeviating success, and was the most wonderful instance of nerve and steadiness ever witnessed.'

Camels and Dromedaries.

No matter to what extent the rail-way may be constructed in certain parts of the world, the camel will probably never cease to be the princi-pal means of transportation in the desert, over the greater portion of Egypt and the Soudan. The desert would, of course, be absolutely impossible without this ani mal. He was created for it and thrives in it better than anywhere else. His broad, soft foot enables him to traverse deep sands where the horse would sink to its knees and quickly perish

The camel lives on almost nothing, the scanty herbage of the desert and the twigs of the thorny mimosa being his favorite food; but, as everyone knows, his most valuable quality in this relation is his ability to travel many days during the fiercest days of summer without drinking. The African camel is a native of

Arabia and has only one hump. The camel and the dromedary dif-fer only in breed, just as the draught horse differs from the racer. The burden camel, called gamal by the Arabs, never changes his regular walk of two and a half miles an bour under a load which never exceeds 300 pounds for a long journey, for his strength must be estimated by what he can carry when exhausted by what he can sarry when exhausted by hardship and privation.

The dromedary, or riding camel, is much swifter. With no other load than his rider, a bag of bread, dates and a skin of water, he can accomrlish 100 miles a day in an emerg-
