FEATS OF A NEGRO SAMSON

He Is Afraid of Nothing on Earth Excep His Ninety-Pound Wife. Lewis Yett, a jet-black African, about 30 years of age, frequently as-tonishes the people of the frontier of Texas by exhibitions of his wonderful feats of physical power accredited to this colored giant have really been performed, he is without a doubt one of the strongest men in the world.

Lewis spent most of the years of his boyhood in a cattle camp on the from tier and long before he was fully grown he had become famous as an expert roper, a daring rider and the very best all-around vaquero in the south-west. He never boasted of his accomplishments as an equestrian, but up to the time he was 20 years of age he had never been thrown from the back of a mustang. He won a gold medal and prize of $200 at Eagle Pass when he was about 15 years old, by sticking to the back of a famous broncho Diablo. This celebrated horse had thrown the best riders in Old Mexico and many of the most fearless Texas cowboys. Lewis stayed on his back for more than an hour, though the enraged animal bucked and bellowed until he was covered with foam and ready to fall from exhaustion.

Some ten years ago there was a band of mustangs in the Llano Mountains, led by a proud, splendid-looking black stallion, with a bald face. Many a cowboy had dreamed of possessing this magnificent horse, but every effort made to capture him had ended in failure. Lewis determined to "walk" this fine animal "down." Setting out early one morning, mounted upon the best pony on the ranch, and leading an extra one, the ambitious negro soon struck the trail of the king of the plains and his harem. For two whole days and nights Lewis stuck close to the heels of the thoroughly puzzled mustangs, never giving them time to nip a bunch of grass, drink a drop of water or pause for a moment to rest their wearied limbs.

On the morning of the third day the mustangs began to fall and flounder upon the hot sands in a dying condition. The bald stallion still staggered forward as if determined to die upon his feet. After some hours, when the sun was nearing the zenith and the heat of the desert was scorching the backs of the snakes and lizards and driving them to seek the shade of the cactus, Lewis's own horse stumbled and fell to rise no more. The gritty little mustang had expended the last spark of his vitality in the long chase. The bald stallion was now alone. The last member of his band had succumbed to thirst hunger and exhaustion. The prize was almost within the negro's grasp, for it was evident that the proud spirit of the stallion was broken, and that he could not summon suffic ient strength to strike a trot.

Lewis was determined not to be cheated of the valuable prize pow so nearly in his possession, and quickly lossening his lariat from the saddle he threw it across hi shoulder and set out after the stallion on foot. He had been in the saddle for more than fifty hours, with wide-open eyes, appeasing his Two lots on S. side of Cornhill St. with wide-open eyes, appearing on monthly payments, interest at the satisfies of the satisfies the satisfies of the satisfi teen. Another man would have fallen long before, but this wonderful negro, who possessed powers of endurance even superior to his giant strength, shook the stiffness out of his joints, as he says, and, striking a trot, he soon discovered that he was gaining on the tired stallion. Lewis was perfectly familiar with the geography of the country, and as soon as it became evident that the wild horse was aiming o strike a certain crossing on the Llano River, he took a short cut across the hills and got ahead of his prize. He barely had time to conceal himself by the side of the trail near the water before the tired horse staggered in sight. The proud'old king of the plains was nearly exhausted, but the scent and sight of the cool waters of the Llano quickened his steps, and. with an eager whinny, he was about to plunge down the bank when a rope hissed through the air and a noose dropped over his neck. "I jes' had to laugh," says Lewis, "for I never saw anything look so surprised like that horse. Peared like he wanted to say, Well, you are jes' about the gamest and slickest nigger I ever saw.'

Lewis had captured the famous wild bald stallion which had for years defied all pursuers. The negro easily tamed the fine animal and he was long known as one of the fastest long distance racehorses in western Texas. Old-time cattle men—the boys who rode the plains before the days of comotives and barbed wire—never ire of telling stories of this giant negro's No long-horn ever grew powers. big for Lewis. Whenever he got his rope on a steer that animal had to go his way. He could catch a big Mexican ste by the horns and drag lim about in the corral as another man-would handle a calf. Upon one occasion Lewis was riding an unruly wustang and upon approaching a bridge the animal "sulked," and though the cowboys applied quirts and ropes to his hide with great violence he refused to move out of his tracks. Lewis was in a hurry to catch up with the herd and to the amazement of his comrades he dismounted, and coolly picking up the surprised mustang in his giant arms he threw him across his shoulder and carried him over the bridge. An excursion boat with a party of tourists on board ran aground at the head of the lake a short time since, and while the crew was preparing to throw out spars Lewis sprang overboard and putting his shoulder against the bow of the boat pushed her affoat and then sprang aboard, seemingly unconscious of the fact that he had done something that amazed the boat's crew and passengers. Lewis is hardly six feet high, but he weighs 304 pounds, and his muscles. are as firm and unyielding as a piece of wood. He says that he has always been able to lift more than any five or six men who were working with him, that he is stouter than any horse or steer that he ever handled, and that he is not afraid of anything on earth but his wife, and she only weighs ninety pounds.—St. Louis Globe-Demo-

A WOMAN'S FACE.

PLAINLY INDICATES THE CONDI-TION OF HER HEALTH.

Beauty Disappears When the Eyes are Dull, the Skin Sallow, and Wrinkles Begin to Appear-How one Woman Regained Health and Comeliness.

Almost every woman at the head Almost every woman at the head of a home meets daily with innumerable little worries in her household affairs. They may be too small to notice an hour afterwards, but it is nevertheless these constant little worrries that make so many women look prematurely old. Their effect may be noticed in sick or nervous headaches, fickle appetite, a feeling of constant weariness, pains in the back and loins, or in a sallow complexion, and the coming of wrinkles, which every woman who desires comeliness derads. To those thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer a speedy and certain cure; a restoration of and certain cure; a restoration of color to the cheeks, brightness to the color to the cheeks, brightness to the eye, a healthy appetite, and a sense of freedom from weariness.

Among the thousands of Canadian women who have found new health and new strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Francis Poirier, of Valleyfield, Que. Mrs. Poirier was a sufferer for upwards of seven years; she had taken treatment from several doctors, and had used a from several doctors, and had used a number of advertised medicines, but with no good results. Mrs. Poirier with no good results. Mrs. Poirier says:—"Only women who suffer as I did can understand the misery I endured for years. As time went on and the doctors I consulted, and the medicines I used did not help me, I despaired of ever regaining health. There were very few days that I did not suffer from violent headaches, and the least exertion would make my not suffer from violent headaches, and the least exertion would make my heart palpitate violently. My stomach seemed disordered, and I almost loathed the food I forced myself to eat, I was very pale, and frequently my limbs would swell so much that I feared that my trouble was developing into dropsy. I had almost constant pains in the back and loins. It was while I was in this sad con-It was while I was in this sad condition that I read in La Presse of the cure of a woman whose symptoms were much like mine, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I told my husband and he urged me to try them and at once got me three boxes. Before I had used them all I felt better, and I got another supply of the pills, At the end of the month I was strong enough to do my household work, and before another month had passed I had entirely recovered my health. I am sorry that I did not learn of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills sooner, for I know that they would have saved me sevthat they would have saved me several years of sickness and misery, and I feel that I cannot too strongly urge other sick women to use them."

The condition indicated in Mrs. The condition indicated in Mrs. Poirier's case shows that the blood and nerves needed attention, and for this purpose Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are woman's best friend. They are particularly adapted to cure the ailments from which so many women suffer in silence. Through the use of these pills the blood is enriched, the nerves made strong, and the rich glow of health brought back to pale and sallow cheeks. There would be less suffering if women would give these pills a fair trial. Sold by all dealers or sent postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AN EASIER WAY!

"I'll sue you for damages," said the man who had been licked, as he brushed off the dust of the conlict. "Oh," responded the victor, "if you re not damaed enough, I can save you the trouble of going to law to get more," and he made at him again.

Take care of the stomach and the health will take care of itself. If peo-ple only realized the soundness of that statement the majority might live to a good old age, like Moses, "the eye undimmed, the natural force unabat-ed." It is in the stomach that the ed." It is in the stomach that the blood is made. It is from the stomach that nourishment is despensed to nerve and muscle. If the stomach is "wesk" it can't to its whole work for each of the body. If it is diseased the disease will taint the nourishment which is distributed, and so spread disease throughout the body. It was the realization of the importance of the realization of the importance of the stomach as the very centre of health and the common source of disease, which led Dr. Pierce to prepare his "Golden Medical Discovery." "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach." The soundness of this theory is proved every day by cures of diseased organs, heart, liver, lungs, blood,-by the us of the "Discovery," which is solely and singly a medicine for the blood and organs of digestion and nutrition. It is a temperance medicine containing no alcohol, whiskey or other intexi-

"Something must be done with those boys of mine at college," exclaimed a staid old citizen. "They're wilder than March hares and in hot water all the time."

"Oh, well, they're young yet, and you must make allowances."

The Boston Herald tells this story: 'Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Gilbert of Salem, who were married afty years ago, have been fortunate beyond most people. Six children were born to them. They also have ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild, and every one of their descendants is still alive and well. Not a break has occurred in the family from the day of the marriage, fifty years ago."

There was a country wedding in Ford county, Kan., the other day, which was attended by 300 guests. "One large beef," says the local paper, "had been slaughtered and cooked, three hogs had been roasted, seventy-five pies and fifty cakes had been baked, fifteen gal. lons of canned peas had been prepared, ten gallons of pickles were set before the happy throng, and thirty chickens were cooked, and, besides, there were bread, ham and vegetables in proportion. That layout was doubtless sufficient to provide all the wedding guests with 'a square meal.' "

A unique violin has been made by a Missouri man. The back is of cherry from a table more than a century old which formerly belonged to the Howard-Payne college. In the center of the back are inserted twenty-one pieces of wood from the Holy Land, one being from a grapevine that grew in the garden of Gethsemane. Around the margin are set in a row small pieces of wood, diamond shaped, gathered from all over the civilized world. In one end of the back is inserted a horseshoe made of castor wood, and in the other end is the image of a rabbit carved in cherry. There are, in all, over 150 pieces of wood, and the only tools used in the manufacture of the instrument were a pocketknife and a half-inch chisel.

The report that Siegfried Wagner was to marry an opera singer proved, like the story of Paderewski's second marriage, to be a canard, but a German musical paper supplies its place with another Wagnerian anecdote. The story goes that Siegfried took his first composition, a polonaise, to his father, and asked for an opinion. Wagner, however, refused to look at it, saying hat only fools wrote polonaises. Siegfried pointed out that one of his faher's earliest compositions had been a piece of that kind. "A boy twelve years old ought to mind his books," said Richard. "Mozart began composwhen he was six," replied Siegfried. "You are not Mozart." "No, but I am the son of Richard Wagner." After that there was nothing for Wagner to do but look through the polon-

The popular game of "best books" has taken on a new lease of life in England. Rival newspapers are selling the "Hundred Best Books" and the "Hundred Best Novels," and the selections are coming in for wide discussion. Labouchere asked the readers of Truth to select the twenty best books in the world. A consensus of the replies published in a recent number reveals this selection, in the order given: The Bible; Shakespeare; Homer, "Paradise Lost;" "Vanity Fair;" Dante; "The Pilgrim's Progress;" Gibbons' "Decline and Fall;" "Ivanhoe;' "Robinson Crusoe;" Carlyle's "French Revolution;" "The Imitation of Christ;" Boswell's "Johnson;" "Pickwick;" Tennyson; "The Arabian Nights;" Virgil; Moliere; "David Copperfield;" "The Vicar of Wakefield."

A most successful remedy has been found for sexual weakness, such as impotency, varicocele, shrunken organs, nervous debility, lost manhood, night emissions, premature discharge and all other results of self-abuse or excesses. It cures any case of the difficulty, never falls to restore the organs to full natural strength and vigor. The Doctor who made this wonderful discovery wants to let every man know about it. He will therefore send the receipt giving the various ingredients to be used so that all men at a trifling expense can cure themselves. He sends the receipt free, and all the reader need do is to send his name and address to L. W. Knapp, M. D., 1710, Hull Bldg., Detroit, Mich, requesting the free receipt as reported in this paper.
