believe not. It is true that the oid party, who, for the Government; and while this edition rous from political reasons, were denominated the Family Compact, was removed from office, and their places supplied by the present Government. But a much greater Family Compact exists now than was broken Government who, through their organ, have excited up seven years ago. The tyranny now exercised, surpasses every thing in the records of a British colony. No man even in the meanest official position, at 20s a year, dares to vote for a party opposed to the present Government, under pain of dismissal. Instead of the people sanctioning appointments, it is now quite sufficient that the Governor in Council turbed by the decide the question. And the mean who has been decide the question. And the man who has been rejected by the people, is fit for Attorney General, Commissioner of Public Lands, Registrar, Postmaster General, or, in fact, any and every office in the if no outbreak occurs it will be owing to the kind colony. Our financial position, instead of being improved, has sunk us a whole year's revenue in disposition of our fellow Protestants.

improved, has sunk us a whole year's revenue in debt,—although the taxes are nearly doubled since the present government took office. The country Schoolmasters have long complained of the hardships imposed on them. After devoting all their energies to the real improvement of the youth of the colony, they are obliged to employ their vacation scouring the country to get their warrants cashed, and, what is worse, submit to a serious shave of 10 or 20 percent. They have already given a hint of resigning in a body; and we hear it rumored that the Government are talking of suspending the Education Act ment are talking of suspending the great yearly expenditure on them. No additional facilities have been afforded for disposing of the surplus produce than then existed; and although a larger extent of land is brought under cultivation, yet every day loads of flour are carted off to every part of the country; and there can be little doubt that a large portion of the complex and the reason why many of our valuable and highly estempted to the careful perusal of our readers.

Every well-wisher of the community can now see what dependence is to be placed on our present government, and the reason why many of our valuable and highly estempted to the careful perusal of the country; and there can be little doubt that a large portion of the coming harvest, (supposing it to be an average one,) is already consumed. It may be said live conduct defend your country; and there can be little doubt that a large portion of the coming harvest, (supposing it to be an average one,) is already consumed. It may be said that the Government have given free farms to some that the Government have given free farms to some who were only squatters; but, on the other hand, with equal propriety nineteen-twentieths of the population may reply, we have been, and are yet to be taxed for this. We have worked hard to clear and lation may reply, we have been, and are yet to be taxed for this. We have worked hard to clear and purchase our farms, and must we now work to pay for free farms for those who were too lazy to work for themselves? Instead of confining large salaries to the men who did the work, and not multiplying offices, the very contrary has been the case. Offices have been created, beyond parallel with any other colony in existence; and sometimes a special office has been coined for a special man. Deputies have also been required to do the work which the principal either could not or would not perform,—thus involving the Island still more deeply in debt. The Government at length, finding that with all their power and influence the voice of the people was against them, conceived a plan which they were sure would succeed, viz., to increase the representation by adding six more to the already too large House of Assembly. The districts were remodelled to suit their own purposes. It was expected that the addittional six members would be staught supporters of the of Assembly. The districts were remodelled to suit their own purposes. It was expected that the additional six members would be staunch supporters of the government, and thus keep them in office another term. The hustings told another tale. Every influence that could be brought into action was employed by the countries of the c that could be brought into action was employed by the Government. Freedom of voting was a crime No matter how fit or unfit the man may be, Government nominee, he must be put in. To vote against him, was sure to deprive the voter of any little office he might have. If he had none, perhaps his father had, and that was all the same: out he his faller had, and that was all the same: out he must go. The doctrine of the Iron Rod, so ably laid down and defended by the Government in the Examiner, was soon after the election brought into practical use, and several persons were expelled from office for voting against the Government. Two of the most efficient public officers were turned out of the Post Office, at a moment's varning, after a long term of the most faithful and devoted service. Thomas Owen, Esq. who has become gray headed in the service, received not even common civility. It was enough for him to be told that he had not supplied brains to their favorite boy. The Iron Rod was brought into play; and neither long and faithful service, nor gray hairs, could extract a spark of mercy. We have thus given a short sketch of the affairs of the colony preceding the demand for this day's meeting. No dout we shall be charged with political motives. To our friends no explanation is necessary. Our enemies will only have a different topic, and their railing will be just the same. We have before said that our grand aim is the protection of those Protestant rights and liberties which our forefathers have purchased for us; but on occasions such as these, when our temporal interests are endangered,—when a tyranny temporal interests are endangered,—when a tyranny and liberties which our forefathers have purchased for us; but on occasions such as these, when our temporal interests are endangered,—when a tyranny savoring of the dark ages is, or is about to be, imposed on us,—we are bound by every principle of religion and manly honor to resist the aggression and defend our rights. It is a fact, that upwards of 3000 signatures have been given to a requisition from the inhabitants of Queen's County, requesting the Sheriff to call this day's meeting. It is argued by the Government that a political party in Charlottetown set this on foot, and that the majority of the people are

while the young men of the Island were to be taken by the hand and receive every assistance which could be given to them by a wise and paternal government, urging them to attend this meeting. The most virulent passions have thus been called into exercise, and fearful apprehensions of the impending conflict are freely talked of. Weapons of various thinks the press our streets may for aught we know, be a decompleted the Family Complete the press our streets may for aught we know, be
