The French have 2,500,000 men at the front and as many in reserve, to say nothing of 250,000 at Saloniki. The trained and equipped British force, counting colonials, is at the lowest figure 5,000,000. I have no definite figures of the present strength of the Russian, Italian, Serbian and Belgian armies, but together they certainly make a total exceeding 10,000,-000. To the aggregate of 20,000.000 troops fighting under the allied flags I question very much whether Germany, Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey can oppose more than 10,000,000.
