Sometimes I Dread To Live And Yet-

She has but two now and is a That thought in itself opened a vista. I sometimes find myself dreading to live because sorrow of some kind must come to me. I have not had my share, it must be waiting for me around the corner. How shall I bear it? And this woman has lived through all that and yet her face is serene and not unhappy.

Again, in answer to some question she told us about her youngest baby And one man has a swollen head, his who died when he was a year and a day old, "And I was away at the he cut out wheaten bread, and filled time on a long journey," she said.

soul-mate in calf binding. The latter-day Affinity is the product of the new school of higher treedom which wants everybody to be fully emancipated except the news-papers. There is nothing so discouraging to this school of ardent soul aviators as a half-tone cut and a four-deck head on the front page, followed by two columns of harrowing details. The average Affinity is in favor of a high-grade of freedom, but High waistlines and less full skirts
