The Cattle Plague

The New York papers say there are no new developments as to the disease in that city, but Sanitary Inspector Morris, who was sent on an inspecting tour through Dutchess County, has made a report concerning its prevalence in that portion of the State. He substantiates the report in respect to the arrival of certain diseased cattle from Millerton. These were part of a mixed lot, comprising cattle from Illinois, Ohio, Canada and N. Y. State, the drive having originally contained 65 head, of which 20 were left at Copake, Columbia Co., and the balance sent to Millerton, from which place some 17 or 18 of them were shipped to this city.

At Amenia N. Y. State, the disease broke out last week on a dairy farm, and up to the date of Dr. Morris's arrival at that place, the diseased cattle had been shipped to this city.

Dr. Morris reports that the cattle he placed in the mixed lot, and that he no more of their milk, he was requested by the State Commissioner to enquire into the cause of the plague was held in Buffalo, on Saturday, and determined to devote several days to the investigation. The Commissioner will be appointed in the different sections of the State, whose duty it will be to prevent the admission of diseased cattle from abroad, with these and the other precautions already taken, no fears of a further spread of the plague need be entertained.

In Cincinnati, O., the disease is making great headway, having carried off seven cows on one dairy farm alone. There are in New York, it is supposed to have been introduced by Texas cattle.

The large increase of mortality in New York over the previous week—an increase of eighty-eight—is attributed by the President of the Board of Health to the use of flesh of diseased animals. If this state of things should continue it must eventually create a panic which would be far more disastrous to the butchers than any loss they may suffer by the slaughter of diseased animals and the destruction of their carcasses.

ROME IN A STATE OF SIEGE

The Roman correspondent of a Paris paper states that the "eternal city" is virtually in a state of siege. The preparations for defence against a presumed attack from some mysterious quarter are more extensive than reassuring. The sentinels have been greatly increased, and their responsibilities enlarged in a manner which may sooner or later lead to accidents. It is impossible to enter or leave the city, or to walk in many quarters at night, without being accosted by the cry of "Who goes there?" to which it is necessary to immediately reply "A friend" to avoid the risk of a bullet. The same correspondent reiterates his former statements as to the chance of a Garibaldi rising.

OPPOSITION TO AN ENGLISH JUDGE IN JAMAICA

We have advices from Kingston, Jamaica, to the 4th inst. Considerable excitement prevailed in the parish of St. Thomas, the scene of the disturbances of 1865, in consequence of the course which was being pursued by one of the Judges, Mr. Masheider, recently appointed to the Colony by the British Government. He is charged with having made a series of attacks upon the planters of the parish, accusing them of injustice in their dealings with the laborers they employ and of abusing their powers as magistrates to the injury of the blacks. His real offence seems to be that he holds the scales of justice evenly, knowing no distinction between whites and blacks, or between planters and peasants, in his administration of the law. The planters were up in arms against him for protecting the people in their rights, and laborers, men and women, who have been suffering at the hands of their employers, were threatening to abandon the plantations. He is bitterly denounced for having sent a female of fair skin and respectable connections to the House of Correction; but he meets the storm fearlessly, and says he is determined to dispense British justice, and not planters' law.
