Piebiscite Work at Dorchester.

A very successful temperance meeting was held on Monday evening in the large Methodist Church at Dorchester. There was a large and respectable audience and Mr. McCann presided. Rev. Dr. McKay, of Woodstock, was the principal speaker, and made an earnest and elequent plea for a large vote for prohibition in January. Mr. T. W. Casey, of London, spoke in regard to the revenue question, and Rev. Mr. Cook, Presbyterian, and Rev. Mr. Quance, the pastor of the church, both urged all present to do well their duty regarding the plebiscite. At the conclusion of the meeting a deputation was appointed to attend the township convention for organization purposes at Gladstone on Wednesday afternoon.

All Three Victims Dead.

In the days of bad buriesque, broad farce comedies and the general bluff and bluster of the stage, it is a relief to turn to some thing novel, especially if the novelly is funny. For, after all, the vast majority go to the theater to be anused, to laugh, and for the time being to forget the cares of this work-a-day world. In the Scandinavian comedy, "Ole Olson," there is presented a dialect character which was new to the stage only a season so. Ole, the Swede, who "is a delightfully modest here, who is not lightfully modest here, who is not like the Irish comedian, everlastingly prating of his love for his native land, whose mistakes are genuinely laughable, and not an imitation of that outrage, our libel, the well-known German stage, clown. Amusement seekers will be glad to now that this wonderfully successful omedy will be presented at the Grand to-ight by a company of elever comedians.

Death of an Old Resident. Mr. John McLeilan died yesterday at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Wm. Hooper, from an attack of la grippe. De-ceased was a native of Scotland, and came Hooper, from an attack of la grippe. Deceased was a native of Scotland, and came to this country 40 years ago, settling in what was then but the small hamlet of London. Here he resided ever since, and saw the growth from the then backwoods settlement to the now prosperous city of 40,000 inhabitants. A miller by trade, Mr. McLellan worked for 24 years for the late John Hunt. Deceased was of a quiet disposition, and was highly respected by all who knew him. There are left to mourn the loss of a loving father two sons and six daughters—John, formerly conductor on the Grand Trunk, but now in that position on the Mexican Central; A. D., forman of the construction men of the Bell Telephone Company, Brantford; Mrs. L. W. Smith, Detroit; Mrs. W. Daniels, Chatnam; Mrs. N. McLean, Wallaceburg; Mrs. F. B. Whiting, wife of Mr. F. B. Women as Homemakers.

Another large audience greeted Mrs. and Major Scott in the East End Hall last night. Prof. William Bowman, Rev. Joseph Philp, Rev. Joseph Ward and others were on the platform, and the chair was occupied by Squire Jarvis. A choir rendered special music. Mr. Jarvis, in his introductory remarks, said that when he was one of the lheense commissioners for East Middlesex 72 licenses were issued. Last year there were only 40 licenses granted. Again, in the year 1879, ont of 212 cases before him in his judicial capacity 75 per cont. were proved to have been the direct outcome of intoxicants. Mrs. Scott spoke first, and Again, in the year 1513, out of 212 cases.

were proved to have been the direct outcome of intoxicants. Mrs. Scott spoke first, and was received with applause. "I wish to tell you," she said, "why women wan prohibition. We believe we are an important factor in this great question, and I believe that we have something to say about it. The women of the nation are, in the first place, the homemakers of the land, and all that is sweet and holy and pure in the world is to be found in the true home. That is where brains are moided, fortunes are built and bodies neurished.
These homemakers ask for prohibition.
Everything that is brought into those homes—the pretty carpet on the floor, the brica-brae on the wall, the furniture—all go to make those homes the brightest and prettiest and safest places for all who dwell there. No man on this earth can build that precious thing called home. We are the homemakers of the land, and in these homes our children are reared and their characters formed. Let a liquor dealer go to a home where there are children and say to the mother:
'Madam, the liquor traffic or drink traffic demands one of your children. Every one boy in ten in coming up to manhood becomes a drunkard, and we cannot run our saloons without boys any more than a miller can run a mill without wheat. We want your bey.' 'You can't have mine,' she replies.' '1 don't blame you, madam,' he answers, 'but some other mother must give me two,' Yes; we are asking for prohibition for the sake of the hiddren.'' Major Scott followed with a stirring adthe sake of the children."

Major Scott followed with a stirring address dealing principally with the enormous sweep of temperance throughout the land during the past few years.

Mr. Hodgins had hipself been afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism and contined to his heart very weak. He says he has known Mr. Weir since he was 2 years old: read the narrative in the London papers: every word it contained was terfectly true, to the case. We need scarcely sublishes the history of a case life, and written up by our own correspondent, we are always very particular to have the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. In fact, we would be very foolish as well as dishonest if we did not take this precaution. And, again, Mr. Weir is too well known in this section to misrepresent or allow his name to be used for that purpose. x
