EAT THEIR OWN PARENTS.

Discovery of a Remarkable Race of Cannibals in Africa.

They Devour the Physically Ineffective and Are a Fine Race of Men - A City of Skulls.

New York, May 30. - Capt. S. L. Hinde was in the Congo medical service during the recent war, which has resulted in the expulsion of all the Arab slave traders in the Congo State. In this campaign he traveled through a part of the Congo basin that was almost unknown, and since his return home he has told some new and striking things about tribes that have never been studied before, and live almost 300 miles distant south of the northern heart of the Congo. There is a region north of Sankuru River, about 90,000 square miles in extent, that is almost a blank on the maps. Capt. Hinde thinks he found in the Batelaia provinces a region of the worst cannibals he has seen. Throughout the whole of their country he says the traveler sees neither gray hairs, nor halt nor blind. The unfortunate who may possess any physical imperfection are killed and eaten. Even parents are eaten by their children upon the first sign of approaching decrepitude. These people are probably the only tribe in Africa who eat their own people. The effect, however, is not to deplete their numbers, but to make them more physically fit to the tribes around them, for they do away only with those who are physically imperfect. Capt. Hinde says they are a splendid race, and all the finer in appearance because they do not disfigure themselves with tattoo marks, nor by filing their teeth.

Their capital is a town on the Lomami River, and each of its four gates is approached by a pavement of human skulls. Capt. Hinde counted more than 2,000 skulls in the pavement of the gates. Every family in the town is crowned by a human skull. Capt. Hinde participated in nearly all the big fights with the Arabs, and in some of these thousands of Arab forces, chiefly armed slaves, were killed. After the battle the cannibal camp followers and fighters among the States' allies would have a great feast. In one battle over 1,000 men fell, and Capt. Hinde had the direction of the burial party. He found only a few hundred heads and bones. The cannibals had carried off all the meat, and in many cases the whole body for food. African cannibals apparently never eat flesh raw. They always boil or roast it. The white explorers have never been able to trace the beginnings of this horrid practice until during the Arab campaign, when they discovered that the Baluba tribe, of whom explorers have never spoken as cannibals, have taken of late years to eating their enemies who are killed in battle. Only the men, however, indulge in the new custom.

When so many people are taking and
