Major McMordie Enlisted in West and Weeks. Went With Reorganized Unit.

Major Stewart P. McMordie, whose name appears among the wounded in last week's casualty list, is a son of Mrs. R. McMordie of 785 Hellmuth

Major McMordie, who formerly beonged to the Earl Grey Rifles of rince Rupert, received his appointment to the 48th Battalion of Victoria, B. C., and left Victoria for England a year ago last May

In the early part of January his battalion was reorganized as a Ploneer Battalion and left for active services shortly after.

As the duties of a pioneer battalion include building and repairing trenches, had sports and games during the afterbuilding bridges, mining and sapping, when frequently exposed to the fire of the enemy in open places, and without time or opportunity to return the fire t is not surprising how many casualties there have been in the battalion. Major McMordie was formerly a ember of the firm of Barrie & Mc-Mordie, railway contractors and bridge builders, Niagara Falls, Ont. He is a native of Huron County, and a grad-

TELLS OF LONDONERS

Pte. "Bill" Sharman, Another Former Reporter, Going Blind.

News of Londoners in England is given in a letter received today from Pte. W. N. Minhinnick, a former mem ber of No. 3 Stationary Hospital, who was until his enlistment a member of The arbitrators are being called on the editorial staff of The Advertiser, to fix a value for the expropriated and who is now serving with the Duchess of Connaught Canadian Red Cross Hospital at Clivden.

Of Pte. William Sharman, time a London reporter and later in the car department of the Grand Trunk here he says:

"The other night in Folkestone saw a familiar face in a doorway. It was Bill Sharman's. Bill is gradually growing blind in his left eye and one of his shoulders is shot to pieces with shrapnel. He was through the mill in Flanders and 'got' it at Givenchy.' Pte. Sharman enlisted with the Nova Scotia Highlanders' draft that was recruited in London and served at the front with the 16th Canadian Scottish Battalion.

Of Eric Ross Golding, globe trotter, poet and soldier, whose poems appeared many times before and even after the declaration of war, he says: "There is a patient here from "K" company of the R. C. R. who knows Eric's company was nearly wiped out not long ago, so if he is still alive he is one of the lucky ones. "A Londoner, named Thomas Page of the 2nd Pioneers, and who lived on Clark street, died in my ward here a couple of weeks ago from heart failure that resulted from bad shrapnel rounds.

"Another Lendoner, Lance-Corp. Charles Burns, who lives on Craig street, is here now. He is nearly better, however."

An interesting sidelight in Pte. Minninnick's letter is: "I was at a movie show in Maidenhead the othernight All of a sudden the orchestra played "The Maple Leaf" and the screen showed the 70th Battalion being presented with colors in Victoria Park. "I suppose that the Canucks will be against another big casualty list, as I just read that Fritz broke through the line at St. Eloi. The patients say it is hell there, and if a general advance is ever made the Canadians near it will be up against an awful gruelling.'

This prediction has been since amply out by the casualty lists that have been appearing for the last two
