

SPECIFIC OFFERS ASKED BY COUNCIL

1926 Council Tackles Transportation Problem at Special Meeting.

DEPUTATION HEARD Bus Companies Expected To Submit Bids For Franchise.

The 1926 city council, led by Mayor J. M. Moore, figuratively rolled up its shirt sleeves and tackled London's transportation problems at a special meeting in the city hall yesterday afternoon, with the result that the London street railway, Metropolitan Bus Company, International Bus Company, Toronto, and any other interested bus company will be asked to submit propositions as to their ability to give the city dependable and quick transportation service.

The council was in session for over an hour, and finally decided to ask the street railway and bus companies to submit in writing by next Monday just what they would be prepared to do in the way of giving service to the citizens of London. The aldermen are all of an open mind on the question, and if they seem that buses will give the best service, then the citizens will ride in buses.

A deputation from Ealing, headed by J. R. Vincent, stated that they were desirous of co-operating with the council for improved transportation facilities, and suggested that the street railway could give much better service with double tracks on the Hamilton road.

While many citizens of the district were in favor of buses, the real object of the visit was to impress on the council the need of better service for Ealing and Chelsea Green districts. They wanted service for their money, they declared.

The members of the council will individually gather every scrap of information possible from all sources on local transportation, and it is felt that

GOVERNMENT TO SEEK TEST IN EARLY DAYS OF SESSION

No Time Will Be Lost in Inviting Vote of Confidence—May Come First Day—Election of Speaker Would Be Regarded as Mandate For By-Election.

By H. E. M. CHISHOLM.
Special to The Advertiser.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—The government has no intention of waiting for any lengthy period for a test of the house at the coming session as to its right to carry on in the administration of the affairs of the country.

If that right is not successfully challenged during the opening days the prime minister will immediately seek election in a seat vacated by a resigning member. Appointments to vacancies in the senate and elsewhere will be forthwith made and business will go forward as usual.

It has been suggested in certain quarters that opportunity might be given the members to engage in debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, and that the test of the government should come in the division upon the opposition amendment thereto.

Should Be Early Showdown.

In the opinion of the government, however, if its critics aver it is assuming power, it has no right to continue to do so for more than the briefest period of time. If, on the other hand, it has the confidence of the majority of the house, such confidence should be definitely expressed as speedily as possible, so that the hands of the ministry would be free and untrammelled to go ahead and carry on the country's business.

To protract a debate for an indefinite period when they meet next Monday the aldermen will be in a position to legislate in the best possible interests of the citizens.

Advocates of the buses will hold a meeting tonight in the Wortley road school and another meeting tomorrow night in the Masonic Temple.

period would be quite in the power of the opposition, and in the meantime not only would the hands of the government be tied, but great uncertainty and unrest would prevail in the country, and, in the event of the government being defeated on division, a useless waste of public money would have been incurred.

Election of Speaker First Business.

The election of a Speaker will be the first business. This, it is not believed, will furnish grounds for controversy. The appointment of a Speaker is really not a government affair, though he is traditionally the nominee of the party in power.

Even should the opposition successfully challenge the government's nomination, the government would not regard this as constituting a motion of lack of confidence in itself.

The speech from the throne, which will be read by his excellency the governor-general at the opening, will, it is expected, be a more than usually definite forecast of the government's policies and program of legislation.

That at the very outset every member in the house will be possessed of the attitude and intentions of the ministry and be able to decide accordingly is a matter of course.

The Government's Procedure.

Following the election of a Speaker the government will move that an address be presented to his excellency, and if this motion is not immediately challenged then it is conceivable that the government would regard itself as properly constituted and as possessing the confidence of the house. It is in competence of the opposition, in any event, to challenge the government's right to carry on at a very early period of the session. If it does not do so the government will undoubtedly go ahead.

While forecasting important legislation, the speech from the throne, it is anticipated, will disclose no intention on the part of the government which may be calculated to be highly controversial. All parties are pledged to a scheme of rural credits, all favor a intensive program of legislation. All are pledged to an early completion of the Hudson Bay Railway. All profess to favor national economy, all will support the creation of machinery by which the question of the tariff may scientifically be dealt with by a representative tariff board. The government's intentions on these matters will be set forth in the throne speech.

BRIAND SUPPORTED ON SYRIAN POLICY

Vote Is 300 to 29—Shows
Where Government
Strength Lies.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Dec. 21.—The vote of confidence, 300 to 29, received by the government in the chamber of deputies last night on the Syrian policy, was the first manifestation of the majority concentration of the moderate left and center parties upon which the Briand cabinet is expected to lean for support.

The Socialists and extreme right nationalists, refrained from voting, and the Communists alone cast their ballots against the government.

The entire radical party, headed by Premier Herriot, and the center and left groups, led by Premier Poincaré and M. Le Troquer, as well as the small, unattached groups in the center, supported the government.

Three hundred votes is a working majority in the chamber, the present voting strength of which does not exceed 575.

During the debate, Gen. Sarrail, the former high commissioner in Syria, listened to violent attacks by members against his rule. He has his defenders, however, and most notable of these was Premier Briand, who praised the work for civilization which he said, France was carrying out in Syria, and declared that when the country was pacified the people would be accorded democratic institutions.

As for giving up the mandate, as the Socialists had demanded, the premier said that such action was unthinkable, and that the French people would never sanction such a step.

UNION JACK FLOATS OVER
TOWN FOOLING COMMUNISTS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Dec. 21.—For the first time in six years the people of Battersea, a suburb southwest of London yesterday saw the national flag floating from the flagstaff in front of the Battersea council building.

This flag is represented in parliament by Saklatvala, Communist, has a municipal council made up mostly of Socialists and Communists.

This body has steadily refused to fly the Union Jack since it has held power. Their plea is that it is a party flag and they substituted for it the tri-colored municipal ensign which alone was hoisted on occasions when the national flag was flown elsewhere.

Early Sunday morning members of a society calling itself the National Fascist, succeeded in running up the Union Jack and then cut the lanyard so that it cannot be lowered without difficulty. The Fascists fixed a notice to the town hall door warning the council in the future to fly the national flag, and above all, not to attempt to hoist "the foul, red flag."

From mast to mast is a pretty decorated with strings of tiny electric lights.

Mr. Mandas, the manager of the Olympia candy works, has received many congratulations, not only for this work, but for his cleverness in making and designing such an attractive window display. When you are downtown doing your Christmas shopping this week be sure and see these windows.

SCHOOL JOURNAL REFLECTS CREDIT

"The Buzz," Edited by Alexandra Pupils, Just Issued.

The Christmas number of "The Buzz," the school paper of Alexandra school, has just been issued and reflects great credit upon the youthful editors and contributors responsible for its production.

The Buzz is controlled by the junior citizens' league of the school, and was first published during the winter of 1922-23 by the Alexandra Antelope, a boys' organization of grades 6 and 7. The first copies were typewritten, but the Buzz was made the official paper and since that time has been produced on a duplicator.

According to a foreword by the editors in the Christmas issue, the work of writing, editing and printing has been done by the pupils themselves. As a business proposition it has been a success from the first. The proceeds of the sale of the paper and also the sale of the material used, but also the sale of the regular school fund, which is used for various purposes.

Contributions in both prose and poetry are of a high order of merit. An editorial on Good Citizenship, written by a pupil, is particularly good. Another Williams contributes a Tale of Christmas Eve, which is most interesting. Other meritorious contributions are by Violet Arbutnot and Dorothy Stott. The school has two promising young poets in Maurice Rowley and Marion Ryckman.

The work of the work of Norman Bester, the titling being done by the pupils of grade 8.

The editors-in-chief are Helen Wat-ger and George Thirk; the assistant editors, Pearl Sniderman, Hattie Kern-son, Frances Eyre and Anabel Wil-son. The business managers are Arthur Davis and Mr. C. A. Brown.

DOG-POISONING CASES
INVESTIGATED BY OFFICER

George Tustin, officer of the London Humane Society, has been kept on the jump the last few days by reports coming in from the east end of the city claiming that there has been a series of dog poisonings there. Two dogs at least have died, but after a thorough investigation, Mr. Tustin says that he is not at all sure that poison caused their passing.

"I don't know," says Mr. Tustin, "someone always says it has been poisoned."

Mr. Tustin's efforts have not been confined to these cases by any means. On Saturday night at 9 o'clock he received and investigated 19 calls for his services.

"One of the things we are trying to educate, particularly at this season, is the tying of geese by their feet on the market place," said the officer. "It is illegal, and we are going to keep a strict watch on the market and if dealers persist in this cruelty we will certainly prosecute."

C. N. CANNOT RULE PORTS FOR GRAIN

Thornton Sees "Persuasion" As Only Way To Better Shipping—Govt. Powerless.

Canadian Press Despatch.

St. John, N. B., Dec. 21.—Placing the responsibility for the use of Canadian ports for Canadian export trade squarely on the shoulders of the grain pools and owners of grain supplies, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, tonight, in a statement to the Telegraph-Journal, declared that neither the Canadian National Railway nor he as president can control the port of shipment for export grain.

Sir Henry even doubts whether the parliament of Canada can exercise effective control, and sees "persuasion" as the only pressure that can be brought to bear on shippers to use Canadian ports for export. This pressure, he says, is being fully employed by the C. N. R., but the "entire matter is affected by economic shipping and market conditions of considerable complexity."

Sir Henry's view was invited by the Telegraph-Journal, which is stressing a movement to obtain use of the Transcontinental Railway for grain traffic to Canadian ports. He was asked "whether the putting into use of the Transcontinental Railway, in accordance with the conditions under which it was built, rests with you as the president of the road, or with the parliament of Canada."
