BABY'S DEVELOPMENT THROUGH PLAY.

A mother will very often wonder what makes her child so naughty, so irritating every minute of the day. From early morning until the child is tucked away in its little cot for the night it seems to drag upon her, and beat upon her like the waves of the ocean, upsetting her nerves, and fatiguing her body. The we morsel of humanity, with its constant desires, its constant need of action, its constant craving for companionship, seems to drag the vitality from her, with the result that she becomes irritated, and loses control of herself. She will sometimes interrupt the child's nagging and wailing by a great nervous outburst. Sometimes the mother will slap or spank the child. Sometimes she will do what is worst—scream or shout and stamp her feet—the little one, with threatening gestures. The child becomes frightened and hysterical and the mother continues to jerk and shout. After a long siege during which the energies of both become exhausted, mother ties a wet cloth about her head and baby is ugly and sulky.

Mother has made a wrong start with baby. She should never have allowed him to form the habit of hanging upon her, thus exhausting her nervous and physical energies. Furthermore, the child does not learn to be resourceful when he is permitted to do this. He clings to his mother's skirts, depending upon her for everything as she hurries about her daily work. He becomes what may be termed a disagreeable child, nervous, fretful, difficult to please. He is seldom a healthy, normal child physically. How can he be when he is so constantly in an abnormal mental condition? A child needs laughter, joy, and a calm brooding spirit in the parent, who guides him through his infantile days.

Baby's education should begin early. He must be taught very young to depend somewhat upon himself. A mother finds great joy in rocking her baby to sleep; but nerveless, as soon as she has nursed him, he should be laid in his little crib, and allowed to go to sleep in that way. Baby must be carried about and moved during his waking hours, to be sure, for it is one of the ways he procures exercise. But he must also be allowed to exercise by having his legs and feet freed of all covering some part of each day, so that he may kick them, as he moves and works his little arms for this is an independent exercise. Mother must learn to make him comfortable, not by always taving him up in her arms and carrying him about with her when he is fretful, but after assuring herself that there is nothing in his clothing nor in his physical condition to cause him discomfort, she should leave him, at times, on his own resources, with a variety of bright, pretty playthings, among them always being two or three objects which will make different noises. New toys, of course, should be introduced from time to time. For the handling of a variety of objects is baby's first really practical development. Mother should stop occasionally to play with baby, and show him how to enjoy his riches.

When baby is big enough to follow her about, she must begin to educate him more definitely in the use of his little hands. He should have plenty of bright-colored blocks, which he will learn to build into wonderful structures. It is well for him also to have a little clay which he can learn to shape into animals, birds, or other objects, very crudely at first, to be sure, but it will give him some idea of form. Mother's discarded spoons may be covered with bright-colored paper, gilt, red, blue and green, and baby taught to string and unstring them. He will find much absorption in this occupation. And when he gets them fixed to suit him he will probably trot about, draggling and rattling his string of pretty spoons after him.

When he gets a little older he will wish to play more boisterously. He will ride furiously in a rocker, driving another rocker chair as a horse before him. He will play train with a long string of chairs, while he sits in the first one with a bell hung on to the small broom, which is tied to the chair, with a cord to operate the bell. It should be mother's business to see that his ideas are enlarged in many directions; and then she should let him carry his imitations out as far as possible with whatever means he may find at hand. It is a great education and a great development, and mother must not mind the little extra disorder it causes. It is far easier and less nerve-wearing than for her to have her idle-minded child clinging to her skirts all day, and vampirizing her time and strength.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S DECALOGUE.

Thou shalt not discard thy good dress because it is faded, but bleach to a pure white.

Thou shalt not pay out much money for coin plasters, because a saline of soda and lard will cure the very worst corn on thy toe.

Thou shalt not use damp fruit, or thy cake will be heavy; after washing the currants and raisins, thou shalt be sure they are thoroughly dry.

Thou shalt not throw away sour cream, but use it in place of butter, when thou art baking.

Thou shalt not dry white gloves or hose in the sun, lest they turn yellow.

Thou shalt not discard thy rubber tap because of a hole, but fill with hot sand or salt, and 'twill give all the heat thou needest.

Thou shalt not let the juice ooze out from thy pie, because thou canst prevent it by binding the edge with a strip of white cloth wrung out of cold water.

Thou shalt not pay large sums for dry cleaning, but thou shalt use "allow grease" with care of magnesia.

Thou shalt not allow cheese to mould when a cloth wet in vinegar and put over it will prevent.

Thou shalt not use thy new baking dishes until after thou hast put them in a pan of cold water, set where it will boil, and then set away until water has cooled.—National Magazine.

A MOTHER'S CREED.

I believe in little children as the most precious gift of heaven to earth.

I believe that they have immortal souls, created in the image of God, coming from him and to return to him.

I believe that in every child there are infinite possibilities for good or evil, and that the kind of influence with which we surround them in early childhood largely determines their future character.

I believe in play as the child's normal effort to understand himself through free self-expression.

I believe, too, in work suitable to childhood, and that the key in doing such work should come to the child largely from the doing of it well.

I believe in freedom, but not in license.

I believe in wisely directing rather than stifling activity.

I believe in regularity, accuracy, punctuality, industry and application.

I believe in prompt, cheerful obedience, self-control, and self-forgetfulness.

I believe that in all this my example counts for more than my precept.

I believe that the calling of motherhood is the holiest, and should be the happiest, of all earth's tasks.

The Boston and Yarmouth Steamship Company.

What a Boston Paper Says About The Canadian Corporation.

(Boston American)

A Canadian corporation which will operate the steamship lines now owned or controlled by the New Haven Railroad is Charles S. Mellett's plan for complying with the new law forbidding railroads to own steamship lines, according to information in the possession of the American.

This corporation is already in existence. It is the Boston & Yarmouth Steamship Company, Limited, of Montreal, and it has just taken over the Yarmouth division of the Eastern Steamship Company.

Notification of the authority of the Canadian company has been sent around to all the shippers, and those who know are awaiting development.

The career of the Yarmouth Line has been very exciting. Six months ago it was the Dominion Atlantic Line, with three fine steamers—the Prince George, Prince Arthur and the Boston, flying the British flag and offering the prettiest kind of competition to the Eastern Steamship Company's International division, and refusing to get together and fix rates.

On September 1st the Eastern Steamship Company announced that it had acquired the Dominion Atlantic Line between Boston and Yarmouth. The notice was signed by O. H. Taylor, passenger traffic manager, Pier 14, North River, New York, and by H. H. Cudworth, general passenger agent, India Wharf, Boston.

COMPLETE MONOPOLY.

This gave the New Haven's Eastern steamship interests a complete passenger and freight monopoly to southern Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, since the Boston and Maine and Maine Central railroads are controlled by the New Haven.

Accordingly, there was great surprise when the Boston & Yarmouth Steamship Company came into prominence as the owner of the Yarmouth line.

In the words of the announcement: "Attention is respectfully called to this within notice of adoption by this company of passenger tariffs, rules, notices, concurrences heretofore established in the Eastern Steamship Company."

And signed to the bottom of this Canadian company's circulars were the names of O. H. Taylor, passenger traffic manager, North River, New York City, and H. H. Cudworth of India Wharf, Boston.

It will occur to most persons that North River, New York, is a queer headquarters for the manager of a Montreal corporation operating between New York and Boston, and also strange that Mr. Taylor and Mr. Cudworth threw up their jobs with the Eastern Steamship Company to work for the Canadians.

WHAT CUDWORTH SAYS.

The American called up Mr. Cudworth and found him by getting the Eastern Steamship Company's number.

"The Boston & Yarmouth Steamship Company, Limited, is a Montreal corporation that owns the Yarmouth line, which the Eastern Steamship Company operates.

"Are you the general passenger agent of either or both of these companies?"

"Of both."

"Has the Yarmouth line been sold to the Canadian company?"

"No. It has always owned it."

"How about the Dominion Atlantic Line?"

"That was taken over by the Boston & Yarmouth."

"They why did the Eastern Steamship Company announce that it had secured the Dominion Line?"

"Well, I think you had better see the vice-president. These details are very confusing," said Mr. Cudworth. Vice-President Jones, of the Eastern Steamship Company, could not be located.

THE TUBERCULOSIS CURE

Berlin, Jan. 22.—Dr. Frederick Friedman who last November announced at a meeting of the Berlin Medical Society the discovery of what he believed to be a cure for every form of tuberculosis, has received the promise of an audience with the Minister of the Interior tomorrow, when he will place his tuberculosis serum at the Minister's disposal. He has been moved to take this action by the fact that a number of physicians have been explaining what they assert is the Friedman serum, but Dr. Friedman says is not.

Lost Their Lives While Coasting.

Farrboro, N. S., Jan. 22.—A double drowning took place here today in which two brothers, Frederick and Robert Kelly, lost their lives.

They were coasting on the new dam or aboiteau, and coasted into an arch. There were a number of people nearby, but before any appliances could be got to them the boys had gone down. They were the sons of Robert Kelly, tailor, of this place. Frederick was twelve years old, and Robert eight years old. The body of Frederick was recovered about one hour after the accident, but so far the body of Robert has not been found. The greatest sympathy and sorrow is felt for the parents in their sad affliction.

HOW A LARGE SQUARE CARDBOARD BOX MAY BE UTILIZED

The average work-basket is now at all as a receptacle for the family mending. A commodious mending-box can be made from one of the large square cardboard boxes now sold as hat-shelters.

Cover the box sides with chintz or cretonne and line it plainly with saten. Across the inside corner place a fair-sized "pocket," also of saten, capable of holding sheets of darning-wool, cards of buttons, etc.

From the box-lid remove the flaps and cover it with chintz, edged with a wide fringe. Then seam it to one side of the box. In the middle of the lid end can be attached a flannel needle-holder, etc. Such a box holds an astonishing amount of mending, and if covered with pretty material, is no disfigurement to a room.

A Montreal despatch says:—There has been much speculation of late as to the C. P. R. plans in connection with the formal taking over of the Dominion Atlantic Railway and steamship services. An announcement regarding the taking over of the line and their being operated under the name of the C. P. R. had been looked forward to by the people of the east as one of the final declarations of the 1912 administration. Nothing can be gleaned, however, as to the company's intentions in this regard, as the official's say the time is not yet ripe for the announcement of their plans.

YARMOUTH IN THE LEAD.

The Herald was in error last week in announcing that Miss Wilson, of Halifax, was the first lady to be appointed on a School Board in this Province. Hon. Mr. Armstrong writes us that Miss Eudora Hillton, of Yarmouth, was on Feb. 17, 1896, appointed a member of the Board of School Commissioners for the Municipality of Yarmouth, and that Mrs. Catherine Churchill was also appointed a member on the 15th April, 1911. We apologize to these ladies. We were well aware of the facts as stated by Mr. Armstrong, and should have remembered them when writing the article. It is an intricate where errors unavoidably creep in. The rush of a newspaper office. As Yarmouth does not want to take any second place in the progress of these modern movements, we are pleased to make the necessary correction. In the matter of women as school commissioners we are in the lead up to date, and are proud to state that the services of these ladies on their Boards were most effective and pleasant.—Yarmouth Herald.
