BONUSES.

Three distinct calculations have been made with a view of appropriating the surplus sum or profit arising from the operation of the Society: at the last, made at the beginning of the year 1859, the Actuary reported that, after putting by £180,379 18s. 10d. as a reserve for future contingencies, there was available for division £67,347 15s. 9d.

The following Table will show the practical effect of this and previous divisions at the ages specified.
