

The Well of the Saints: Act i

MARY DOUL, sharply.

She was jealous, God forgive her, because Timmy
the smith was after praising my hair—

MARTIN DOUL, with mock irony.

Jealous!

MARY DOUL.

Ay, jealous, Martin Doul; and if she wasn't itself, the young and silly do be always making game of them that's dark, and they'd think it a fine thing if they had us deceived, the way we wouldn't know we were so fine-looking at all.

She puts her hand to her face with a complacent gesture.

MARTIN DOUL, a little plaintively.

I do be thinking in the long nights it'd be grand thing if we could see ourselves for one hour, or a minute itself, the way we'd know surely we were the finest man and the finest woman of the seven counties of the east—(bitterly) and then the seeing rabble below might be destroying their souls telling bad lies, and we'd never heed a thing they'd say.
