

stoop in his shoulders as he saluted the President.

"If the sentence approved by Your Excellency does not make association with me scandalous," he said, "I beg leave to express my thanks for the intimation that you will invalidate the fraudulent contract."

Without replying, the President abruptly faced about to his desk. Hardy again saluted, and marched from the room as if on dress parade.