Note and Comment

The Buffalo bowlers proved skilful players and fine sportsmen, and no one would have begrudged them the championship wich they nearly landed only you know how the boosters across the line crow about those things. The three doctors and the Scotch mason proved a formidable combination that was only solved by the persistent Queen City quartet, who would not be denied. To show that others besides Joe Kelley take a slump the Rennies' defeat in the trophy competition was followed by two more yesterday.

The Leafs do not return with a straight string of reverses but they have no victories to their credit. Seven defeats in a row will require some tall hustling to get back into the running. However, you can pick up the schedule and easily figure out how Toronto can still land the rag.

The London Times pays Jack Johnson a column of attention on the occasion of the champion's appearance in the Oxford Music Hall and discovers that he weighs 20 stone (280 lbs.). The Times likes Johnson, finding that on the whole he is a far more pleasant person to meet in a room than any of the white champions of complicated ancestry when America exports from time to time to those unwilling shores.

Langford, however, proved that he possesses unexpected science. When he actually outboxed O'Brien in the fourth round he made Bob Fitzsimmons forget to open his eyes in astonishment. Before the bout Fitzsimmons expressed the opinion that Langford could whip any man, white or black, in the world barring Jack Johnson, but after he had seen the Star Bayy under full headway he admitted that Langford might have a chance with even Li'l Arthur.

"The beauty about Langford's fighting," said Fitz, "is that he can take all kinds of punches and keep coming. He is a very clever negro. He doesn't waste his blows and employs deadly accuracy. When he hits he knows how to put all his weight behind the punches. When he gets hit himself he knows how to stall. I didn't see a weak point in his work."

Sam Langford continues to win his fights impressively and seems only to lack avoirdupois as the logical candidate to meet Jack Johnson. Against O'Brien in New York on Tuesday night to many of the spectators it seemed as if the Boston Tar Baby did not try to put on the finishing touches until the fourth round. If he had cut loose right from the jump it is doubtful if Philadelphia Jack could have stood up under a terrific bombardment. O'Brien showed beyond the question of a doubt that his fighting days are over, but he was game under fire and this scrap was on the level.

While we are likely to get some of the old-timers at the local club shows they are to be barred under the new regulations in New York State. Bob Fitzsimmons and Peter Maher were in evidence at the Langford-O'Brien bout, apparently looking for matches. The Cornishman was invited into the ring and received an ovation. He shook hands with Referee Charley White and when the cheering subsided he was asked for a speech. The old warhorse told the crowd that he had retired from the ring, but if there was money in it he would be glad to fight the Carson City City battle with Jim Corbett. Then Peter Maher, twice defeated by Fitzsimmons, was introduced, and the latter reached thru the ropes for a cordial handshake with the once Irish champion.

Danny Maher, who was suspended in England last week for a bad ride at Leicester on Lord Rosebery's Sallust, was the successor of Tod Sloan as the American riding idol of the British turf. He differed from his spectacular predecessor in mannerism and trait, and for ten years or so was seen even a greater favorite with owners, trainers and the English racing public, for Sloan thru his extravagances always had the Britishers guessing and gossiping. Maher has attained wealth and has a fine country house at Epsom, automobiles and every need of a country gentleman. He has had the friendship of many leading sportsmen, and it may be they will help him thru this trouble.

The mills of the turf grind slowly in Great Britain, but they grind exceedingly small. The Jockey Club has the custom of first getting a suspect dead to rights for a major offence and then to see that he is ruled off for a minor one. This is said to have happened to Sloan when in the hey-day of his prosperity in England. He has never been reinstated, and is now advisory trainer for a wealthy American on the continent, the first good luck to come his way since his turf downfall.

Maher was born in Hartford, and was, with McLaughlin and Garrison, earlier a stable boy and jockey for Father Bill Daly, who has raised more fine riders on a bale-stick tuition than any other trainer. He rode with success until the Suburban of 1901, when he was suspended by the stewards of the Coney Island Jockey Club for being left on the favorite, Banastar, owned by the late W. H. Clark, the founder of the Empire City track. The chagrin at the suspension and increased weight made Maher an expatriate, but he has frequently visited his old home when not riding.

Maher has ridden the winner of nearly every great race abroad, and has been noted for skill in the saddle and as a judge of pace. He was cautioned by the stewards when first in England for rough riding, and escaped without further reprimand until two years ago, when he was before them for the same fault. Maher then proved the trouble was in the mount, a headstrong horse that he could not keep straight. Maher has for several seasons headed the list of winning jockeys, but was supplanted in that place this year by Frank Wootton, an Australian riding in England.

The plunging of Mr. Gates and the late Davy Johnson undoubtedly attracted so much attention that it was the beginning of the successful crusade against racing in the State of New York. Messrs. Gates and Johnson did not attempt to conceal their betting operations, with the result that stories were chronicled which did much harm. They appeared to enjoy the notoriety they gained, in striking contrast to other big speculators who kept their business secret and thereby made it impossible to learn what they were doing.

Messrs. Gates and Johnson frequently were warned by the turf governors to curtail their plunges, but they paid no heed. Mr. Gates admitted that before he quit the turf that he had beaten the bookmakers out of a large sum—said to be $200,000—but Davy Johnson went broke.

FINAL ROAD GAME A TIE TIM JORDAN HAS HOMER

Game Is Called in Seventh to Catch Train — Rochester Beats Baltimore.

By W. J. Slee.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 17.— The Leafs and the Greys were unable to come to a decision to-day, the game being called at 5.20 with two out in the eighth to allow the Torontos to catch the train, the score being 3 to 3. Toronto looked to have the game pretty well stored away when Tesreau let up in the sixth and Providence tied up the game. Bad battery work on the part of the Leafs was mainly responsible for Providence's runs. Tesreau walked seven and made two wild pitches, and Kocher had a passed ball. Jordan had a homer, making his fifteenth for the season, and received five pounds of tobacco from a Providence firm. This is the second home run Jordan has made in Providence this season. Elston was put off the grounds for disputing a decision, as was also Bill Bradley.

The Leafs will reach Toronto about noon on Friday, and Lush and Rudolph or Bachman will work in the double-header against Baltimore on Saturday.

Smith, the first batter up, fouled to the catcher. O'Hara was safe on Atz's wide throw, but was caught stealing. Shaw struck out. Phelan singled to left. This player has made a safe hit first time up in the last three games. He reached second when O'Hara let his hit roll away. Atz was an infield out, and Phelan reached third. Phelan scored on Tesreau's wild pitch. Perry was an infield out. Anderson walked and stole second, but Tarleton fanned. Jordan was out on Phelan caught his long hit at the edge of the grounds. Delahanty singled and was caught stealing. Bradley flew to Perry in centre. Providence went out in order in their half.

The Leafs had a good innings in the third. Kocher singled and advanced on Fitzpatrick's sacrifice. Tesreau popped to Rock. Smith doubled to left, scoring Kocher. O'Hara's single scored Smith, but the best that Shaw could do was a fly to the outfield. Providence were unable to score in their half, tho having men on bases and having a close decision given against them at the plate on Shaw's quick return of a single to centre.

The Leafs forged to the front in the fourth on Jordan's homer to right field.

No further scoring resulted till Providence's half of the sixth, a fast double play robbing Providence in the fifth.

In the sixth Perry singled and advanced on Anderson's sacrifice. Tarleton walked. Bradley disputed Byron's decision and was put off the grounds. Vaughn going to short and Smith to third. Gillespie hit one past second scoring Perry. Gillespie stole second and Tarleton scored when Kocher threw wide to second, tying the score.

The game was called with two out in Toronto's half of the eighth in order to let Toronto catch a train.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 17.—Rochester had an easy time of it with Baltimore this afternoon, winning handily by 6 to 2. Frock was easy, as was Vickers, who relieved him. Holmes went well for seven innings, when he was relieved in favor of Wilhelm. Ample police protection prevented a possible repetition of yesterday's trouble. Score:

Two Games With Birds To-morrow.

With the double-header to-morrow with Baltimore, Toronto opens the most crucial part of the campaign. A clean-up with the Birds will give the Leafs a chance for the pennant and the the Kelleyites have not been going any too well of late they are apt to prove a different proposition on the island grounds. The games will be called at 2 and 4 respectively.

Lacrosse To-morrow Effect of Games on The Championships

The game at the Beach grounds on Saturday afternoon, between the Cornwall Colts and the Torontos means a whole lot to the blue and white. If they win it means only one more game to win to put them right up in the running for the championship. Should Tecumsehs lose to Montreal and Toronto win against Cornwall, the two local clubs would break even with the game on Labor Day to decide which of the teams stay in the race for the final game. Should Tecumsehs win against Montreal on the M.A.A. grounds, and Torontos win at the Island, then our two local teams would fight it out for the rag.

Both local clubs want to-morrow's game, and Toronto must win to stay in the running. The team is in the best of shape, and fully expect to add another to their string of victories. The game will commence immediately after the game between Brampton and Young Torontos, which is billed to start at 1.30. All teams will be numbered, which will give the public a good chance to size up the players during the afternoon. Between the quarters the management will announce the result of other games in the N.L.U. E. C. St. Fere will officiate as referee, with Johnny Brennan as judge of play.

The Montreal Star, sizing up the situation, says: Tecumsehs, Montreal and Nationals have each lost two games. Tecumsehs have but two games left to play, the Nationals have four and Montreal five. Next Saturday all eyes will be centred on the Tecumseh-Montreal game, to be played on the M.A.A. grounds. If it does nothing else it will at least decide whether Montreal will stay in the race. The Nationals have no engagement next week. Cornwall goes to Toronto and Shamrocks meet Capitals in Ottawa. The result of the Cornwall-Toronto game looks a foregone conclusion, while the Capitals may take the first win of the season against Shamrocks.

They are betting even money in Montreal that Montreal will defeat Tecumsehs by two goals.
