Last night the Kings Daughters Guild of Ottawa will dedicate their new home at 119 O'Connor-street, which was once the residence of Sir John A Maedonald.

Organized 14 years ago with the sole cbject of relieving the wants of poor and needy girls and women, the guild has increased until 22 circles or branches are now within its fold, and a new home is secured free of debt, after 18 months' effort. The house is after 18 morths' effort. The bouse is handsomely fitted up. Fourteen bedracoms afford suitable accommodation for that limited number of girls, while the parlors, lunch room and children's rooms on the lower floors provide for the active work of the society.
