Market Held About Steady -Calves Sell Higher.

A very light run of cattle, less than 400 fresh head all told, with just about steady prices was the feature of yesterday's market. There may have been a little better demand for the butchers, but the buyers in their eagerness to pick up the cattle, diate outlet for grain, and instead preterred to risk indefinite delay in the hope of a return of higher prices.

Bullish sentiment was considerably augmented in the last part of the day as a result of fear spreading that the lack of adequate supplies at primary centres would assume an acute aspect in case the threatened railway strike became a reality. Big estimates of export business in rye and oats tended also to lift the corn market.

Shorts in oats were active buyers.
Furthermore, some prominent longs reinstated holdings.
