LORD LANSDOWNE'S SPEECH

Lord Lansdowne was vigorously heckled even in exclusive Hanover Square, and at many other meetings both parties showed the heat engendered among the electors. Milner's Prophecy Lord Milner, at Wolverhampton, prophesied that tariff reform will grow and that the time will come when it will cease to be a party watchword, and the Radicals themselves will rather shamefacedly adopt it. Meanwhile, he said, the Radicals had introduced a budget with twenty new items with taxes upon the people in order to escape the terrible disaster of having to impose a new burden upon foreign imports. There had been an acute reaction of the dear food fight, but he had never wavered in connection with the question of bringing about closer commercial relations with the different portions of the empire and make in time, as we hope, a self-sufficient empire containing within its borders all the foodstuffs, all the raw material, all the skill necessary for prosperity, and the development of varied forms of industry.
