Drew pulled to the front among the great American runners in the Yale interscholastic championships in 1912. He won the 100 there in 10 seconds, impressing the spectators and officials with his wonderful form.

Evers, it will be remembered, was appointed manager of the Cubs to succeed Frank Chance. He was summarily discharged by Charles Webb Murphy in February, 1914, whereupon he was secured by the Braves, who won the world's title that year. Evers is through with the game as a player and is anxious to get away from Boston. As manager of the Cubs his friends say he will cease his trouble making on the ball field.
