FINES OF $50 OR TWO MONTHS IN JAIL FOR CHINESE

Judgment Today in Matter of Gambling Charge—Sentences Not Concurrent With Those in Opium Case

Nineteen Chinese, whose case was before the police court for some time, were this morning convicted of gambling and were each fined $50 or two months in jail. Magistrate Ritchie referred to the place being in darkness, when the raid was made and securely locked and fastened, and the police not only had to break down the front door, but an inner one besides. He spoke of finding a gambling table—the top of which could be removed—and a square table with partitions in it similar to those generally used for gambling. He also mentioned the finding of a blanket in the corner of the room with Chinese dominos concealed. Twenty Chinese were in the room and they must have heard the policemen break the glass in the front door, was evident. The fact that the Chinese also tried to escape was against them. He also referred to the finding of lottery tickets. He said that under the evidence he would have to convict them of keeping, and under another section, for looking on at a game. The sentences he explained, were not to be concurrent with the opium sentences, but are to commence at the expiration of the previous sentences, which were $50 or one year in jail for Hop Lee and Sing Lee, and $100 or one month in jail for the other Chinese.

In the police court this morning John C. Every again appeared charged with obstructing the sidewalk. He was allowed to go a few days ago on his promise to leave the city, but as he has not done so Magistrate Ritchie instructed that he be escorted to the border of the city and chased out. He said he would not allow any strong, able bodied man to live on the city.

James McInerney was remanded for sentence on a charge of drunkenness and assaulting his wife. Policeman Armstrong testified that he was summoned to their house in White street on Saturday night, to quell a disturbance the defendant was making. Later he was recalled and before he could put the defendant under arrest he picked up a boot and struck his wife over the eye with it. The woman appeared in the police court this morning with her face in a badly battered condition.

FRANK COTTER WOUNDED TWICE; SECOND FATAL

 "In the little cemetery of the 26th battalion a head board has been put up giving the name of your son, and putting out of his death, adding also that his body was left where it fell, beyond our trenches."
 "Your son's death was greatly deplored by the officers, N. C. O's and men of the battalion, and especially by those of us who belonged to A Company. He was a good soldier and a brave man, who died doing his duty, the finest ending a man can have."
 (Sgt.) A. McMillan, Capt. A Company, 26th Bat.

From Fellow Sergeant
 Sergeant Wilson, of the same company, writes also and he has put some little hope that Sergeant Cotter may be a prisoner and alive. He says:
 "Before this reaches you the news regarding Frank will have been given to you. He is at present reported missing, believed killed, but as we failed to find his body there is a faint hope that he may be captured and alive. I trust it may be so, but I would like to raise it as a comrades of his that whether dead or alive he was a brave man and a soldier, and is sincerely mourned by all who knew him. In looking through the ed card which he had written previously, and am forwarding it. Please accept the assurance of the sympathy of all his comrades."
 (Sgt.) W. H. Wilson, Sergt.

SOLDIER'S TRIBUTE TO CAPT. KREKE

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. T. J. Schuerer, 161 Queen street, William T. Scribner of the 26th gives his impressions of the recent action in which the battalion took part. He says: "We to it wicked this time, and it was some scrap. German shells coming and it is pretty hard on the nerves until they hit and all going to hit right where one is standing. I fired out of my rifle until the barrel got so hot I could not touch it. "We got quite a lot of the Germans, and I think we squared up with them for our own casualties. They fired some big shells with liquid fire, and the heat from them is awful."
 "We got good guns, and lots of it while dug out in the trenches. Captain Kreke is fine and is well liked by his men; they say he is pretty cool under fire."

SERGEANT WRITES OF WM. WARNOCK

Details of the wounding of William Warnock of the 26th have been received by his mother, Mrs. James Warnock in a letter from Sergeant Frame, formerly of M. R. A's staff here, whose rifle was shattered by the bullet which hit Warnock. The letter is as follows:
 "You have been notified before this of your son's wounds, but he has asked me to write a line to assure you that he is in no danger of being seriously affected by the wound. The wound is in the thigh, and the doctor, at the dressing station, where we carried him, told us that the bullet had not touched the bone. No doubt Bill is in a hospital where they will give him every attention and, in some ways, you can be thankful for he is now far away from any dangers of our trench life. Hoping you soon will have your son home with you, I remain, respectfully,
 ARNOLD E. FRAME.

NURSE WRITES OF THE DEATH OF ROBERT KNOWLES

Letter, Too, Comes From Soldier To His Mother

BRAVE TO THE LAST

Anxious That Mother Should Not Worry Because He Was Wounded—Cross Marks His Grave—Tribute by Centenary Pastor

In the same mail which brought the written news of his death, Mrs. J. S. Knowles received a letter written by her son, Private R. E. Knowles of the 26th, which he had not been able to mail before he was wounded. In his last letter, dated Oct. 7, Private Knowles said:
 "Well, mother, the good old 26th have shown what they are made of. We were in the trenches six days and are out now having a few days rest. We had very few casualties and you probably have seen them in the papers by this time. One night, just after dark, we gave the Germans a good dose of rapid firing, and we all whooped like Indians. The poor slaps thought we were going to charge and they turned the machine guns on us in good shape. Things were pretty hot for a while, but I guess we gave them a bit of a scare."
 "I would like to tell you all about our experiences in the trenches, but I do not think the censors would stand for it. Just before we went into the trenches I saw Burd Haines, who is a despatch rider with the first contingent. I also saw Harry Adams from St. John who won the Distinguished Conduct Medal. Just the other day I saw Jack LeCaine."

The letter closes with the request that he be remembered to all his friends.

On the back of the letter appears the following note:
 Dear Madam:
 "Your son was wounded in the engagement on Wednesday, but is doing nicely, and the doctor told me this morning that he was coming on well. It is a built-up letter, I think."

(Sgt.) C. E. FAIRWEATHER, Lieutenant. Mrs. Knowles also received the following letters from Nursing Sister, L. E. Jolley:

"I am sorry to tell you that your son, Private R. E. Knowles was brought here yesterday to No. 2 casualty clearing station severely wounded in the neck, and is in an extremely critical condition. Everything possible is being done for him, and I am glad to say he does not complain of much pain. He sent his love and said I wrote to you and he especially wished me to write and let you know he was wounded, but wants you not to worry. He said 'I'll be a pull round all right.' There is a Methodist minister here who visits daily at the hospital, and he will bring him this morning. You may rest assured that, if the poor boy does not recover, we shall do all in our power to make him comfortable and happy while he is with us."

In her next letter, dated Oct. 17, the nurse says:
 "I hope you will receive the letter I wrote you yesterday informing you that your son was brought to us seriously wounded, before this letter reaches you. I am very sorry to tell you he passed away at midnight last night (Saturday, Oct. 16). He was unconscious from about seven o'clock and went off quite peacefully."

"He will be buried tomorrow in a part of a cemetery reserved for our brave troops, and the graves are all marked with little wooden crosses bearing the name and date of death of each. There are no further details to mention, only to assure you he had everything possible done for him, and his last hours made as easy as could be."

In Centenary church yesterday, Rev. W. H. Barracough made a touching reference to the death of Private Knowles, who was a member of that church and Sunday school, and asked the congregation to stand for a moment in silent prayer.

PRESENTATIONS TO SOLDIER

At German street Sunday school yesterday, William H. Milton, who has joined the 104th battalion, received a soldier's Bible from his pastor, Rev. F. S. Porter, and from Master Gerald Parker, on behalf of his classmates and teacher, L. W. Simms, a military money belt and housewife. Mr. Milton replied, thanking them very heartily. In the evening at his home, 80 Harding street, Mr. Milton's employer, R. N. Dean, presented to him, on behalf of himself and men, a fine military wrist watch, adding good wishes for his welfare and safe return, and assuring him that his work would be open for him. Mr. Milton expressed his gratitude and appreciation. He will leave tonight for Sussex.

ST. PETER'S Y. M. A. OFFICERS

In St. Peter's Y. M. A. rooms yesterday afternoon the election of officers for the ensuing year took place as follows: President, John H. Haggerty; vice-president, Vincent Shea; chairman of the literary and dramatic committee, James Martin; chairman of the sporting committee, Ernest Harrington; secretary, Thomas McGovern; assistant secretary, John McDonnell; treasurer, Urban Pierce; assistant treasurer, James McIntyre; conductor, Arthur Howard.

Do Husbands Spend Money Foolishly?

Wives like to think so and say so. They are fond of twitting "lesser halves" about the male practice of rushing into a store and buying the first thing in sight. Wives unanimously consider themselves superior shoppers. But perhaps husbands with native masculine shrewdness know in advance from reading the newspaper advertising just what they want and what is a fair price. Men are not prone to excess of business efficiency, you know. Doubtless, the average wife will pool pooh this notion and maintain that she is the newspaper advertising reader of the family. One thing both are secretly agreed on—it pays to read newspaper advertising.
