SLEEP-WALK PLUNGE KILLS LYDD WARREN

Famous Architect Falls from His Apartment in Early Morning—Suicide Theory Discarded.

New York, Oct. 28.—Lydd Warren, architect, was found dead Wednesday morning in an arched bed room at 1 West Sixty-fourth street. It is believed that he fell accidentally while opening the window of his apartment, which is on the eighth floor. Mr. Warren was founder of the Beaux-Arts Institute of Design, and a brother of Whitney Warren, the architect, was said by fellow artists yesterday to have done more than any other man to raise the standard of architectural education in this country.

Mr. Warren, who was 52 years old and unmarried, had worked in the School of Design until 8 o'clock on Tuesday night, and before he left gave instructions for the work to be done so that he might return next day. He went home, dismissed his Japanese butler, who does not remain in the apartment at night, and then went out. He apparently returned some time later and prepared for bed, as his body was found in pajamas. No one heard him fall, and his death was not discovered until a milkman went into the arched room at 8 o'clock in the morning.

The police were inclined to think that Mr. Warren had committed suicide, and it was entered on the blotter that he had jumped from the window. But his brother and friends scouted this suggestion, saying that he had made plans to entertain friends at dinner last night and for a meeting later in the office of Thomas Hastings, the architect.

Subject to Sleep-Walking.

What his friends believed to be the more credible explanation of his death was that in one of the spells of somnambulism to which he was subject he walked to the window, the sill of which was only eighteen inches above the floor, and toppled over it. He just missed being impaled on the spikes of a fence between the apartment house in which he lived and the next door.

Dr. John Van Doren, who lived in the same house, was called by Mrs. Margaret Wenderman, superintendent of the building, and said that Mr. Warren had been dead some time. The body was later taken to the apartment and examined by Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, an assistant medical examiner, who also talked with Whitney Warren, when he arrived a short time after being informed of his brother's death.

"He had everything in the world to live for—plenty of money, a great devotion to his art for which he was ready to make all sorts of sacrifices, and did, and I am sure he would not have deliberately killed himself," said Whitney Warren. "My brother was somewhat afflicted with somnambulism, and I know that he has set up in bed recently talking of the matter, and which he was hurt in Italy. It is possible that he may have walked to the window, and fell to his death."

his standing is such that he is at once placed in the first class. "The Beaux-Arts Institute, of which Mr. Warren was the creator and director, grew up around his generous sacrifices and endeavor," said Mr. Howells, "but it was not he that built it. It was the hundreds of students who asked hungrily for what he offered them. But for his help they had no one to turn to for an education and advice. He made it possible for these young men to send their work to the Beaux-Arts Institute and have it judged and criticized for nothing by groups of leading architects, who gave their time at night at Warren's instigation, for these architects loved him and knew that he was not asking anything of them that he was not giving himself. Mr. Warren also organized the Art School of the A. E. F. in France after the armistice, and did it along the same lines as he had organized the institute, obtaining the best architects of France to help direct the work. He was made a member of the Legion of Honor, and last June Yale awarded him the degree of Master of Arts.

Modern Business College Ltd. Has Taken Over St. John Business College (Kerr's) on Nov. 1.

The St. John Business College—Kerr's—will on Nov. 1 pass under the successful management of the Modern Business College, Limited, corner Mill and Union streets.

The Modern College has met with wonderful success in this city and this year it is enjoying the biggest business in its history. Mr. George J. The combined schools will be conducted in the same thorough manner that caused the Modern to become the largest business training institution in New Brunswick within two years after being established.

Mr. Smith states that, owing to the very large enrollment of the combined schools, it will be necessary, for the present at least, to conduct the two schools in their respective buildings.

With the policy of the Modern College, the new equipment purchased, it will be one of the largest and best equipped schools in Canada. On account of its thorough and practical work, the Modern College is very firmly established in this city and the management is to be commended for its management of the schools.

It will be a cause of much satisfaction to the friends and students of the St. John Business College that their fortunes have been passed into such capable hands.

BIG WATER POWER COMPANY LAUNCHED

With $1,000,000 Capital It Acquires Sites Totalling 98,000 Horsepower.

New York, Oct. 28.—Plans for making power of the streams of Northern New York State were made known in the properties of the Aluminum Company of America, capable of developing an additional 60,000 horsepower. This is said to be the largest aggregate of hydraulic power in New York State and the east, with the exception of the Niagara Falls development.

The president of the new power corporation is John N. Carlisle, president of the Northern New York Utilities, Inc., and formerly State Highway Commissioner. The Board of Directors is composed of Floyd L. Carlisle, Frank A. Empsall, John J. Warren, R. M. Malby, William K. Dick, J. Adolph Mollenhauer, Jonathan Buckley, Alvah Miller, Thomas J. Walsh and William P. Cresser. Most of the directors are identified with the paper mill industry in Northern New York.

The powers turned over to the Power Corporation are located at the following places: Deferiet, Deferiet, Norfolk and Raymondville. At Deferiet and Hennings, mills of the St. Regis Paper Company are situated, and at the other two, mills of the Hanna Paper Corporation, controlled by the same interests as the St. Regis Company.

Floyd L. Carlisle, in making public the details of the organization of the corporation, made it plain that it would now compete with the Northern New York Utilities, Inc., in which he and his associates have the dominant interests.

"This transaction," said Mr. Carlisle, "is a part of the programme for the fullest utilization of the power of the streams of Northern New York. Its object is to make easier the building of storage reservoirs and to facilitate the distribution of surplus water power generated at paper plants. At present, if power at the mills of the St. Regis and Hanna Companies is not being used for the manufacture of paper, it is idled; but under this scheme the power company will be able to distribute it commercially, thus getting the fullest use of the power. When the mechanical water power plants have been made into hydro-electric plants, there will be available a large amount of power over and above that needed for the full operation of the mills. The Power Corporation will be able to transmit this power in full when the mills are not running, or will be able at all times to market the surplus power generated even with the mills at capacity operation."

In connection with the announcement of the formation of the new power company, it became known yesterday that the 25,000 horse power of electrical energy being generated by the Northern New York Utilities, Inc., at Brown's Falls is to be sold to the Utica Gas and Electric Company and will be transmitted over lines now under construction from the power site in St. Lawrence County.
