The Epworth League of the Portland Methodist church gave a successful dramatic entertainment in the school room of the church and the large audience showed its keen appreciation of the fine acting and the amusing comedy. The play was a two-act comedy entitled "Too Many Husbands." The cast of characters was as follows: Mrs. Nellie Brown, Miss Laura Fanjoy; Harry Brown, a bookkeeper, Stanley Irvine; Arthur Mailand, his nephew, a poor author, Herbert Day; Mollie, a maid, Miss Nan McDougall; Rudolph Bauer, Frank Merrill; Colonel Thaddeus Crane, H. M. S. Lester Rowley; Dorothy Crane, his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy; Chauncey Chilton, his secretary, Edward Yeomans; Jones, the expressman and the patrolman, Fletcher Kirk; Mrs. Sheffield, Harry's mother, Miss Hattie Wright; Rev. Ormsley, Ralph Kirk. The play was given under the direction of Miss Mary Lingley and Rev. H. B. THE YOUNGEST SAILOR.

To the Editor of the Times:—
I noticed in last evening's issue of your paper a claim of Leo Thomson to being the youngest soldier to enlist in the Overseas Forces. As there is no claim from any person, to my knowledge, of being the youngest sailor to enlist, I am pretty sure in laying claim to this distinction.

I enlisted with the Overseas Division of the R. N. C. V. R. on January, 1917, at the age of fourteen years and arrived in England on January 14, 1917, twelve days after I enlisted in Toronto.

I was mine-sweeping for two years in the North Sea, and was sent to the West Coast of Africa. I was four months mine-sweeping there. The above named place is termed "White Man's Grave." We lost four out of a crew of ten men. I contracted malaria fever and was sent home.

My brother was killed at Vimy Ridge in 1917 at the age of seventeen, and I had another brother in the R. C. R., and my father was in the first contingent at the age of fifty-one years.

I belong to Montreal, but I am in St.
