PUTTING SUGAR IN THE EXHIBITION BUILDING TODAY

F. H. Gibbs, traffic manager of the Atlantic Sugar Refinery, said this morning that arrangements for the storage of raw sugar in the machinery hall of the exhibition buildings had been completed with the city and the agreement had been mailed to the head office of the company in Montreal for signature. Mr. Gibbs said that it was planned to store about 800 to 1,000 tons there.

A cargo of raw sugar which arrived by the steamer Chignecto last night is now being unloaded and is being moved to the new storehouse by means of trucks. All the available local trucks are being used. It is expected that the Canadian refiners will also have a cargo for the refinery will be docked soon and this sugar will also be trucked to the exhibition buildings.

Asked if the refinery would resume operations in the near future, Mr. Gibbs said that the company hoped to have the plant going again the first week in January, or possibly earlier. This depended on the market situation, he said, there still being a considerable quantity of refined sugar stored throughout the country.
