UPHOLDS
SPORTING CONDITIONS

The Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, who passed his twenty-first birthday Wednesday, June 23rd, is an all-round athlete and sportsman, and apparently well able to uphold the sporting traditions which attach to the name. Since the thirteenth century, when Edward Plantagenet became the first English Prince of Wales, the holder has usually been a patron and devotee of sport. When the Hanoverian dynasty was set up two centuries ago, and George Augustus of Hanover, afterward King George II, assumed the Welsh title, he inaugurated a new line of sporting princes. As prince and monarch he was a patron of all sorts of sports, and was an admirer of Jack Broughton, the father of modern boxing. Prince Frederick Lewis, son of George II, never reached the throne, as his father survived him, but he became a monarch of the British sporting world.

Prince Frederick was as "sporty" a lad as ever wore the title of Prince of Wales. After his quarrel with his father he set up a rival court in Leicester House, where he fairly made things hum. One of his honored guests was George Stevenson, the famous boxer. The prince was Stevenson's backer in the famous battle for the championship with Broughton, who had as his patron the duke of Cumberland. Stevenson did most of his training in the dining room of the Prince of Wales, where he guzzled wine with his royal highness and his male and female hangers-on, scarcely the sort of preparation for an important fight. As a result of the prince's attentions, Stevenson was beaten and received such a terrible drubbing that he died within a short time. Prince Frederick was himself a fairly good boxer, having taken lessons in the manly art from Broughton and as Prince of Wales in 1751 and afterward reigned as George III, was taught to use nature's weapons by Ned Hunt, another celebrated bruiser of the period. Prince Frederick, shortly before his death, was an interested spectator of the battle in which the championship was wrested from Jack Broughton by Jack Slack, and it is said, lost a small fortune on the result.

Prince Frederick's son, as Prince of Wales, was a supporter of all sorts of sporting activities, but when he ascended the throne as George III, he gradually lost interest in such matters. In the early part of the last century, when Bonaparte was threatening to invade England, George III, he came very religious and considered it his duty to put a stop to all sports and amusements. He outlawed the prizefighters, and ring battles had to be pulled off in secret. Among those who persistently defied the king's orders was his son and heir, the Prince of Wales, later George IV, who had inherited the passion for sporting life which had distinguished his ancestors.

The late King Edward, as Prince of Wales, was a leader in sporting circles, and helped to save the boxing game from the assaults of his opponents, although the latter had the sympathy and support of his mother, Queen Victoria. The present king was also a boxer in his younger days, and often acted as referee at boxing matches on board the warships. The present Prince of Wales is a clever boxer, but his favorite sports are long-distance running, polo and football. He has lived an open-air, active life which has served as an excellent preparation for his life as a soldier.

JACK BARRY SOLD

LONG DISTANCE
MOTOR RACE

The Royal Kennebec Yacht Club have decided to hold a long distance handicap motor boat race on Saturday, July 10th, and the course will be from Millidgeville to Erb's Cove on the Belleisle.

The circular which is being sent out to all boat owners in the province is as follows:

You are cordially invited to take part in the R. K. Y. C. annual long distance race to be held on Saturday afternoon, July 10th. This race is open to all clubs and all motor boat owners in the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and it is hoped there will be a long list of entries. At least ten prizes will be awarded. The race will be run as one race, but boats will be divided into three classes: Speed boats, cruisers and open boats, on the basis of the American Power Boat Association classification.

Handicaps will be given at the start and the first boat to finish will be given a sweepstakes prize. There will be also first, second and third prizes in each of the three classes. Start will be made from Millidgeville at two p.m. for the first boat, and each other boat will start as her handicap expires. Final instructions as to signals, course and time of start will be given to each boat before the race. Each boat will carry a racing number, said number will be furnished by the secretary upon receipt of entry fee.

Entries close July 8th at ten p.m. Carrying of tender optional. Course will be starting from Millidgeville, thence out through western channel, following regular steamboat channel up St. John river (going Oak Point side of Grand Island) to Gorman's Bluff at entrance of Belleisle Lake, follow dredged channel from Gorman's Bluff to Shampers wharf, thence up Belleisle Lake to finishing line off wharf in Erb's Cove.

Boats that are not already measured should arrange with the secretary before July 8th to have this done, or certificate of measurement made by any official club measurer will be accepted. Entries and measurement certificate must be in before July 8th at ten p.m. to give time to make up handicaps.

It is hoped that every owner of a motor boat, large and small, will enter for this event.

Not only will it afford most exciting racing and keen competition, but it gives an opportunity for an enjoyable trip through the most beautiful part of the St. John river waters. The distance is not excessive, and can be easily covered in daylight, and a leisurely return can be made the next day.

TO HELP SPEED UP
THE WAR MUNITIONS
OUTPUT IN ITALY

Committee Formed in Lombardy to Co-operate With Military Authorities in Organizing the Industries.

Milan, Italy, July 2, via Paris.—Lombardy, Italy's greatest manufacturing centre, has organized a "preparation for munitions" committee, the executive committee of which, in collaboration with the military authorities, will work to organize Italian industries on a vast scale to cope with the new and unexpected national situation regarding munitions.

The duties of the committee will be to ascertain if the various factories can supply the necessary machinery to enable them to undertake army work; to inform the various industries what the state requires; to supply designs and patterns, and to regulate the prices to be charged, and stimulate rapidly in construction, which is expected to be obtained through methodical work during long hours and the alternation of fresh artisans for day and night duties.

The committee, whose services will be rendered gratuitously, consists of experts belonging to the Milan College of Engineers and Architects, and the Italian Electro-Technical Association, which are largely providing the funds required, aided by subscriptions from the residents of Milan.
