BY HENRY WARD BEECHER.

One buggy, 1 cart, fanning mill, harrows and engineers upon railroad trains, are and engineers upon railroad trains, are intrusted with more lives than any other men in the community; and when we consider the immense number of people who are transported every day, and the small number of accidents which befall the millions of people dependent on their vigitance for safety, it will be seen how worthy they are of the trust reposed in of fixed and women which so often shock the public, and carry sorrow to hundreds of households, as inconsistent with such a judgment. But, on examination, how very few of all these accidents are from the fault of the engineer. He is not to blame for a broken rail. It is not to blame for a broken rail. It is or axles have been put upon the cars, the breakage of which sends the ears, and their precious loads a whirling down the bank. It is not for him to run the trains which come rushing like the wind.

Aw engineer may be set down, as a rule, as a cautious, coinstaking, intelligent man, who brings to the care of human life as much conscientious fidelity as is found in any other profession is society which deals directly with men and shelr interests.

Every little while, we read instances of real heroium in which engineers stand to their posts in face of death, and many a poor fellow who has been crushed under his own machines, might have saved his life if he had not bravely stuck to his place; and did his duty to the very utterment.

Basides, how many unreported acts of heroism have taken place, when, by facing cooly the utmost risk, the engineer has carried off his train safely. No reporter was there to denote the danger, nor how it was avoided. We have heard from those brave men of the machine, instances of plack and cooleas and fidelity which, if seen on a field of battle, would have brought universal applause.

There are thousands of gentlemen and tens of thousands who ride from twenty to fifty miles a day, year in and out, without a scratch, flying through the air at a rate which, if any accident should happen through the air at a rate which, if any accident should happen through the air at a rate which, if any accident should happen through the are thought the are the received for the creates of passengers making a complimentary testimonial to engineer's lineaution or neglect, would dash them to pieces, but how seldoin do they ever think of their faithful servant, or speak a kind word of him or to bim! Who ever hears of passengers making a complimentary testimonial to engineer's lineaution or neglect, would dash them to pieces, but how seldoin do they ever think of the received for the creation of a bear word of him or to bim! Who ever hears of passengers making as a conting the profession of their steadfast serv or neglect, would dash them to pieces.
but how seldom do they ever think of their faithful servant, or speak a kind word of him or to him! Who ever hears of passengers making a complimentary festimonial to engineers? Who ever sees newspaper commendations of their steadfast services?

The fact is, we never come off from a journey that we do not feel like going up to the grand old machine, and shaking hands with the oily singers of the master of it, and thanking him for his services.

The other day Mr. Bradlaugh was lecturing in a village in the north of England, and at the close he challenged discussion. Who would accept the challenge but an old, bent woman in most antiquated attire, who went up to the lecturer and said:

"Bir, I have a question to put to you."

"Well, my good woman, what is it."

"Ten years ago," she said, "I was left a widow, with eight children utterly unprovided for, and nothing to call my own but this Bible. By its direction, and looking to God for strength, I have been analysed to feed myself and family. I am now tottering to the grave; but I am perfectly happy, because I am looking forward to a life of immortality with Jems in heaven. That's what my religion has done for me. What has your way of thinking done for you?"

"Well, my good lady." I don't want to disturb your confort; but—"

"Oh, that's not the question," interposed the woman; "keep to the point, sir. What has your way of thinking done for you?"

Lister, I pray you to the stories of the dissappointed in marriage; collect all their complaints; hear their mutual represents; upon what fatal hinge do the greatest part of them turn? They were mistaken in the person—some disguise, either of body or mind, is seen through the first domestic renfle; some fair ornament—perhaps the very one which won the heart—the ornament of a meet and only spirit falls off. It which won the heart—the ornament of a meek and quite spirit, falls off. It is not the Rachel for whom I have served. Why hast thou then beguited me?" Be open, be honest; give yourself for what you are; conceal nothing, varnish nothing; and if these fair weapons will not do, better not conquer at all, than conquer for a day, when the night is passed twill never be the same story. Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STR

The Peruvian Syrw, a Protected Solution of the Frotoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood; and cures "athousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in ouring Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases' of the Kidneys' and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or decompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energising effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.
