CAUTIOUS YOUTH

He Wanted a Receipt From Chief Holmes but Finally Decided to Wave Objections and Settle His Case

The young men who were served with police court papers for shooting off firecrackers on the 24th of May are one by one making their way to the police station and settling their cases out of court, and they are all glad to do this and escape appearing before the Judge.

One young man called this morning and was told that it would cost him $2.75 to settle for his little fun. It was plainly seen from the smug look on his face that he didn't like it a little bit parting with his money, but he finally handed it over and said:

"Here is your money, now give me a receipt."

The Chief looked up, rather surprised at the tone in the young man's voice. He took the money and replied:

"Now you may go. We don't make a habit of giving receipts here, in fact the people who pay us money very seldom want a receipt, which would only serve as a reminder to them that they have paid a fine."

"I'll have to have a receipt," said the young man.

"Very well then," replied the Chief, "here's your money back. Now the position you're in is this: The charge is still against you and you will have to come over here Saturday morning and appear before Judge Houston to answer for your conduct."

"At this the young man paled and quickly handed the money to the Chief again and made a hurried exit. He forgot all about the receipt."

Dover Township has also advised the same company that they are to proceed with the extension of the Rivard drain, and about $4,500 will be spent in this work.

HEROIC ACT OF BRAVE LAD

Plunged off Park Dock into the Darkness and Rescued Drowning Young Comrade

Deed Worthy of Recognition—Life Saved by Prompt and Fearless Action

Little Harold Snook, the ten-year-old son of Frank Snook, grocer, Adelaide street, had a very miraculous escape from drowning last night about a quarter to nine o'clock, and had it not been for the courage and bravery displayed by Arthur Stafford, his 16-year-old companion, he would surely have found a watery grave.

Gerald Bedford, another young lad and a companion of the above mentioned boys, was fishing in the river off the Park dock. Harold Snook and Arthur Stafford were standing on the dock watching him when young Bedford got a fish on his line. The boys became excited and Harold in stepping, as he supposed farthing out on the dock to let Bedford pull in his line, stepped off the edge of the dock and fell backwards into the water.

It was very dark at the time and young Stafford could just distinguish Snook's head as he came up above water about four or five yards from the dock. He did not hesitate a minute but jumped in after his companion and, handicapped as he was with his shoes and clothes, he swam out and grabbed young Snook just as the unfortunate lad was disappearing beneath the water.

In the meantime the boys on the dock were crying for help and their cries attracted a colored man who appeared on the scene just after young Stafford had managed to swim with his companion to the dock. He reached down from his position on the dock and pulled both boys up to safety.

The rescue was one of the bravest ever achieved in Chatham considering the darkness of the night and the youth of the young hero. Young Stafford, who fortunately is an excellent swimmer, displayed wonderful presence of mind in jumping in as he did and in successfully swimming with Snook in his arms after he had once reached him.

Arthur Stafford, the hero of the incident, is a son of Mr. Stafford, who recently came here from England, and he should receive some public recognition for his bravery.

BIG FISH

Story of a Catch Made by Bob Hallinan and Senix Bannister Just 15 Years Ago.

"Since the present fishing season has opened," commented a North Chatham resident, "I have noticed in the paper where citizens have caught some enormous eels in the river, and I have no doubt these accounts are all true. I have yet to hear, however, of a case that can equal the catch made by Bob Hallinan, the butcher, and Senix Bannister at the old fishing grounds, just about 15 years ago next fall."

At that time Joe Sharp was the proprietor of the Aberdeen House, and one Guy Fawkes day the Orangemen were having a big supper in Joe's hotel. There was a crowd, including Hallinan, Bannister and myself, standing around the corner just as the supper was over, and Joe casually remarked that he would give $5 for a big fish weighing 25 pounds that he could stuff and roast and put on the table for this big supper.

"Senix and Bob Hallinan took him at his word and went down to the old fishing ground to see if they could land a big enough fish to land the $5. They made a couple of hauls and at last they pulled up a sturgeon—1 must have been five feet long—but they didn't know how they were going to land it."

"Joe explained to Senix that the only way to land a sturgeon was to put your hand in its mouth and grab the upper part of the head, and he forthwith set out to do this. He got his hand in the mouth of the fish, but tried to lift it straight up in the water. The sturgeon gave one lunge and pulled Bob into the cold water. Senix became scared and yelled out:

"Say, there, boss; let go that fish or you'll drown."

"But Bob stuck to it and finally landed the sturgeon."

"Why didn't you let go when I told you?" asked Senix.

"Well, I was doing my best to let go," confessed Bob, "but I could not."

"Do you know," concluded the man who told this story, "that fish must have weighed 70 pounds. Bob and Senix got the five dollars and the fish was stuffed and roasted for that supper. This is an actual fact, because I attended the supper and that sturgeon was the biggest fish I ever saw and the finest one I ever tasted."
