You Cannot Bismirch a Boaze-Seller's Reputation There is no blacker business. No small word like "liar" is in any sense adequate. It would be humorous if it were not so tragic that a man who deliberately makes gain at the expense of his brother-men's body and soul should whine about bismirching his reputation. Whiskey annually damns body and soul 6000 men and injures countless others as well. It is the ally, the inseparable ally of the White Slave traffic, of crime, law breaking. What could a little word like "liar" do to bismirch such a reputation?—Advt.

Is This the City With Well-Observed License Laws?

Isn't this the city where the hotel-men made their own "Black List"? Isn't this the city where the bartenders were asked to serve the "Black List" just before the last election? Isn't this the city where one "bartender" pitched his job rather than obey the order?—Advt.
