THE BULLIS STEAM MILL.

Leased and Operated by Joel Spicer.

The Scribe of the Reporter paid a short visit to the Bullis steam saw and grist mill and cheese box factory, one day last week, and was surprised to learn of the large amount of business done there during the past year by Mr. Spicer. For the information of those of our readers who have never been in Athens, we would say that the Bullis mill, which was built some seven years ago, is situated near the Athens station of the Brockville and Westport railway, and consists of a large two-story brick structure with a frame annex for the saw mill. The motive power is a 40 horse power engine and boiler, which is placed in the south end of the main building. The saw mill is fitted with the latest up-to-date machinery, the log carriage being long enough to handle logs 40 feet in length. A wooden tramway runs through the centre of the log yard, making it convenient to run the logs into the mill, while at the opposite side of the mill another tramway and truck carries the sawn lumber away from the mill for convenience in loading or piling. A circular saw cuts the slabs, etc., into stove or furnace wood, and a shingle mill in one corner is operated to fill in any spare time. On the second floor of the saw mill annex is the cheese box factory, where over 20,000 first class boxes were turned out and sold last season. There is also a set of machinery in this flat for bending all kinds of wood into wagon and buggy wheel rims, tongues, shafts, &c. On the ground floor of the main building is located the custom grinding machinery, consisting of a run of French burr stones and metal grain crusher and a corn shelling machine, and in another part is a large planer and matcher. Down in the corner next to the engine room is an iron turning machine, which comes in handy when any repairs are required to be made to the machinery. We understand Mr. Spicer's earnings with saw mill alone during the past year has exceeded $1,000, besides other work done, such as grinding, cutting, shingles, &c., and there is now over 1,200 logs in the yard for spring cutting. The mill has never laid idle during the past year, except to make some needed repairs. Mr. Spicer employs quite a number of hands, but is fortunate in having four sons capable of assisting him in the work around the mill, which greatly reduces the hired labor expenses. Mr. Spicer came to Athens a couple of years ago, a comparative stranger, but by strict attention to business and a genial, obliging personality, he has worked up a good paying business and enjoys the respect and confidence of all with whom he has dealings.

In the morning his subject was the individual responsibility of church members in respect to supporting and rendering effective the work of the church, and in the evening he spoke of Bible symbolism, pointing out particularly the frequent and appropriate reference made to water. The pulpit was almost hidden with flowering plants and shrubs and their perfume filled the sacred edifice. The choral service, which was of an Easter character, was particularly fine.

A number of the bachelors of Athens held a post-lenten party in Lamb's hall on Monday evening last and demonstrated in a highly pleasing way their ability to entertain. For those not devotees of Terpsichore, games of various kinds were provided, so that all were pleasantly and congenially employed. The young men in their new capacity as hosts were very gracious and attentive and the ladies voted the event in every respect highly successful. The room was very tastefully decorated for the occasion and presented a decidedly festive appearance.

GLEN BUELL.

MONDAY, April 8th.—Going from the stone road to Dublin, we pass the front of the well painted, fine cheese factory of C. J. Gilroy, which opened for the season on April 1st. Time don't seem to have visibly changed it as much as it has its overhauled proprietor. Sanguine milk producers hope that the factory's '00 record of 10.27 cents per pound for milk will be repeated this year.

A pile of painted outbuildings rise in the midst of a grove of lofty, grand old maples. These are the Canadian home of the champion Holsteins. The far-famed supremacy of this herd has been maintained for many years and have conferred upon Mr. Alvin Gilroy the position of president of the Holstein Association, the highest honor it can confer. He obtained this high level by assiduous attention to his stock and careful study. Every step towards the top was contested.

The tall, graceful tower at the well is typical—with one hand it reaches towards the sky for power and with the other it grasps labor on the earth. W. S. H.
