

WAS TROUBLED THREE YEARS

an Andover Man Endured the Torments of Indigestion For Three Years Till He Got Cured At Last By Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Here is a plain and straightforward story told by Mr. Samuel Mon, of Andover, N. B., of his sufferings and relief by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets that all dyspeptics will read with interest.

"For three years I endured unendurable misery from indigestion. The counsel of my friends I decided to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After giving them a fair trial I found my joy that I could eat any food and relish it. Before I took Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets my only solid food was a biscuit, and that I could hardly swallow. I consider Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have made a miracle cure in my case and I give them the praise that is their due."

The Bright Side.

Words of cheer are words of help; words of gloom are words of harm. There is a bright side and a dark side to every phase of life and to every hour of time. If we speak of the bright side, we bring the brightness to prominence; if we speak of the dark side, we deepen its shadows. It is in our power to help or to hinder by word and every person with whom we come in contact.

A GOOD FAMILY LINIMENT.

Every family should be supplied in a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Liniment. For cuts, bruises, burns, sprains and similar injuries, which are frequent occurrences, there is nothing so good. It soothes the wound and not only gives instant relief from pain, but causes the parts to heal in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment. As it is an antiseptic all danger from infection is avoided. Sold by all druggists.

Bow Legged Men.

Do not revile the bow legged man, he plays an important part in the world. It is estimated that 40 per cent of mankind are bow legged, so numerically this class is entitled to great respect. Bow legs invariably accompany a robust physique. We find them in the conspicuous features of athletes and comedians are almost always bow legged. Of the bow legged athletes to which humanity points with pride the most illustrious examples are Caesar, Horace, Napoleon, Wellington, Schopenhauer and Cavour, celebrated Italian statesman.—London Answers.

WHY SUFFER FROM RHEUMATISM?

Why suffer from rheumatism when an application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm will relieve the pain? The quick relief which this ointment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth any times its cost. Many who have used it, hoping only for a momentary relief from suffering, have been happily surprised to find that the relief was permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett, of Yam, Tennessee, U. S. A., writes: "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." Sold by all druggists.

The Limit.

The height of superfluity was voiced another day by a commuter who said he regarded a certain man, then under discussion, as the fourth ball to a bowler's sign.

He pursued a victory too far. He conquered well that had made his my fly. Thou mayest beat him to desperate resistance, which may ruin thee.

Humor and Philosophy

SUCCESS.

Success is a peculiar thing. It takes an otherwise good fellow, and when it gets him on the string; it makes him act a trifle yellow; with haughty step he passes by. The ones in whom he once delighted, then, as you meet from day to day, he seems to grow at once nearsighted.

You meet a man whom you regard in every way as worth the knowing. And, though his luck is coming hard, his kindness seems to be overflowing. But when his fortunes are made whole he doesn't see the common people. Nor could you touch him with a pole. So long that it would reach a scepter.

When he is poor and feels the need of touching you to get his dinner, Oh, then he is a friend indeed. But when he becomes a winner! Then, as you meet from day to day, his nod, so cheerful once, grows colder. Until he looks the other way. And turns to you the chilly shoulder.

"Tis pity, but you know 'tis true. That money takes a decent fellow And sort of turns him wrong side to. Just as the wind turns an umbrella. But when instead of an increase His fortunes take a mighty tumble, Then he could give the Japanese Some offhand points on being humble.

Suspicious.

Mr. City man (nervously)—I thought I saw a snake in that grass!

Mr. Subbubs (commiseratingly)—Is it as bad as that?

A Little Craft.

Some people who make themselves so hoarse howling about graft that they have to send for a horse doctor still nevertheless receive with an open hand all of the government seeds that their congressman has the nerve to frank to them.

It makes some difference whose ox is being stuck with a pitchfork. When we can save 37 cents by accepting garden seeds from the generous hand of Uncle Sam it looks all right, but it seems to be a broncho of a different color when a congressman is able to save enough out of a $5,000 salary to buy a railroad and a steamship line.

Of course a man would scorn to sell his vote for the seeds by which he might raise a mess of pottage, but it is seldom that he waxeth indignant enough to send back the seeds, for if he hasn't a garden himself can't he sell them for something to his neighbor?

Broke the Engagement.

"Never."

"What's up?"

"Ethel's started to take vocal lessons."

Annual Agony.

When resolute spring
Chases beautiful snow
And comes for its turn at the bat,
We'll have to be saving
A tanner or so
To buy for our wife a new hat.

Plenty of Warning.

"Wasn't it awful the way Bluebeard acted?"

"Still, what could women expect from a man with that kind of whiskers?"

Doubtful Compliment.

"Do you think he will ever make a writer?"

"Well, he has an ear plenty large enough to hold a pencil."

More Purchasing Power.

The dollars of our daddies
May hold us with a spell,
But the dollars of our uncles
Will do us quite as well.

Why everybody likes Abbey's Salt.

It is so pleasant to the taste that even children take it with pleasure. It does not "cake" or flake on top of the water. It effervesces slowly—may be drunk leisurely, without choking or blinding the user like seidlitz powders.

The granules all dissolve—thus the full benefit of the salt is obtained with every dose. It is the ideal laxative and tonic to purify the blood—regulate stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels—and build up the system.

RARE CLOCKS.

One Queen Anne Timepiece to Be Seen In Toronto Is 300 Years Old and Is Without Hands.

There are some rare old clocks in Toronto. It may interest the public to know that one man in the employ of a big jewelry firm in that city spends three days of every week in visiting private residences, business houses, and factories, to wind up the big old clocks that are kept as heirlooms or curiosities in these places. Half of his time every week is spent in making the round of these places, and winding and regulating their old timepieces. He says that the majority of the clocks keep remarkably good time, too, when one takes into consideration the fact that they have recorded the flight of ages so long.

Quite a Fad.

Call it whim or fad or fancy, or what you like, but the fact remains that many of the best and biggest families in Toronto have a penchant for rare old clocks. The older the clock the better. If it has "dwelt in marble halls" in some age of the dim and distant past, they value it so much the more. A family heirloom of this variety is treasured most carefully.

So great has this fancy grown on some of Toronto's families that it is commonly reported that they go traveling on the Continent, and buy some old clock that strikes their fancy. It is then brought home and installed in the family residence. The European dealers in curiosities have learned of this, and they play on the ignorance of the buyers.

Old Case, New Works.

The story goes that a Toronto man went traveling to Europe, and in a French shop he thought he had discovered a very ancient and rare specimen of a timepiece. He bought it for a good big figure, and when he got back in Toronto was humiliated when an expert on clocks informed him that he had been duped. The clock he had bought was a new one throughout—new case, new works, new everything—but it was done in the old style, and after an old design. Well, perhaps it doesn't matter much, and the uninitiated may never know the difference between the old and the new, but it must make that man uncomfortable when he looks at the face of that French clock.

In one shop in Toronto at the present time there is an old clock made in the time of the good Queen Anne of England. Three hundred years old, and certainly a curiosity. It is made of brass, and the weights and pendulum are entirely exposed to view. The clock is not meant to be cased. It hangs on the wall, and the face and works are enclosed partially in a little box-like structure. There is no minute hand traveling around its face. Still, it has two hands, one to indicate the hours, and the other to indicate where to set the alarm. The dial is divided into quarter-hour spaces. It came to the shop for general repairs, and had to be fitted with new weights, and new pendulum, and other parts.

Has Three or Four.

An old gentleman living on Gloucester street has three or four old timepieces in his house, and he knows the history of them all. They have been handed down from generation to generation, and are genuine heirlooms.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, the well-known lawyer, when he was in Europe some years ago, secured a very old clock of German make, and rather curious design. It has two bells on the top, and it is so arranged that the hour is struck on one bell, while the half-hour is sounded on the other.

Many of the quaintest old specimens of the clockmaker's art come from France. One seen recently was probably a century old, and was in the rather original globular form. Inside there was a place for a small light, probably of the power of a candle, and on the outside of the globe the hours were marked. The indicator is fixed as it sits, as the globe slowly and regularly revolves, it shows the hour of the day on the transparent globe. A clock of this sort is meant more particularly for the sick room, and for the nurse, who has to give food or medicine to the patient at stated intervals, which are measured by hours.

Made of Wood.

Then, there are many old and quaint timepieces inlaid with brass, and ornamented with tortoise shell. There are clocks made entirely of wood—these are German, and are made in the Black Forest—and it may be interesting to note that all is never used on these wooden clocks. Black lead is the substitute, and it serves the purpose much better than oil would.

The oldest Pioneer Passes Away.

Cornelius Pruden, born at Fort Carlton, Prince Rupert's Land, 95 years ago, died at his home in the parish of St. James, near Winnipeg, recently. His parents were English, his father having been chief factor of the Hudson Bay Co. at Fort Carlton, Fort Edmonton, and Jasper House. He himself served over fifty years with the great company. He was a mighty hunter, and had seen the broad plains stocked with buffalo. He had seen the destruction of the bison, had taken part in the deadly rivalry of the big fur companies of his time, had been a participant in stirring events leading up to both the Red River expeditions, had grieved at the rebellion of '35, and had seen Winnipeg quite late in his life grow from an obscure trading post to a prosperous city. During his long career he witnessed the erection of three great Provinces in the West. Although born in the far north, he was educated in England, and was the oldest white inhabitant of Red River Valley. He was, perhaps, the oldest native-born Canadian. He had roamed the Dakotas and Minnesota long before their cities came into existence. He leaves a large family of three generations, white and red.

Population of England and Wales.

The estimated population of England and Wales in the middle of 1905 was 34,152,977, or an increase of 1,325,134 since April, 1901; and in the case of London 4,684,794, or an increase of 148,346 since the same date.

All the counties show increases on the estimated population, except Oxfordshire, Huntingdonshire, Herefordshire, Rutlandshire, Westmorland, Cardiganshire and Montgomeryshire, in which there are small decreases.

WEARY DAYS AND SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Many men and women toss night after night upon sleepless beds until near dawn. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quieted. Or, again, you have heart palpitation and sensation of sinking, a feeling you are going to die; or perhaps you wake up from your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and rest leaves you for the night. Allow these conditions to continue and you will feel your health declining.

It is the nerves and heart that are not acting properly.

They can be set right by the use of

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action and removing all symptoms of heart trouble, which is often the cause of nervousness and sleeplessness.

Mrs. Ennis Chambers, Massey Station, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with dizziness, weak spells and fluttering of the heart. I was so bad at times I could not lie down in bed at night but would have to sit up. I doctored for a whole year and got no relief. I took three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and was so completely cured I have not been troubled since. I cannot recommend them too highly."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A Fear.

"So you think that this concentration of wealth is the inevitable outgrowth of our civilization?"

"I do," answered Mr. Thinker.

"And you must admit that the ultimate result of such a condition would be to put all the money under the control of one individual?"

"Yes."

"Well, it seems terrible to think of."

"What does?"

"The possibility of some billionaire getting out of temper some day and making up his mind to discharge the entire human race."—Judge.
