Love Finds the Way

"Pist is true," he said. "No, I cannot believe that I was born here; but I do not know. I remember the house only, and the man only, my master, my taskmaster, and my jailer, the man who has worked us both so much harm."

Lilian drew her breath hard and turned pale.

"Not Dr. Bromwell, not he?" she murmured.

"Not Dr. Bromwell, not he?" she murmured.

"Not Dr. Bromwell, not he?" she murmured.

"Yes, he," he replied, "though known to me by another, by many, names. I knew him as Melchior, a criminal, a murderer—do not tremble, my darling: I know the fear that has struck you cold, but trust me. It is groundless. Sir Ralph is alive and well and—be calmin this house."

Notwithstanding the warning she started to her feet and her arms went up with a stifled cry.

He was prepared for her, however, and caught her to his breast. He feared she would faint, but she did not.

"Oh, thank Heaven!" she breathed. "I will forgive him all the rest, if papa is safe. Oh, let me cry, Clarence, or my heart will break!"

How many more he may have Heaven knows, for his webs are laid over other countries than this, and his ingenuity has gained him an infamous notoriety all over the world, Let his object be what it may, he has our concealment at heart, yours, Sir Raiph's and mine. heart had risen from the grave, and he was alive again.

So full of meaning had been their first embrace, so much had their eyes told each other, that he had not wasted the precious moments by asking her if she had been about to marry Harry Besant, nor she by requesting the name of the lady whom he had fought the duel.

They had felt within their souls that though all things else were entangled in the web of falsehood and mystery, their loves had stood out clear, burning brightly through it all.

CHAPTER XLYIII.

For the first time Clarence Clifford with an effort he restrained himself, and holding up his hand with a gesture that she might go on, sat like a statue, gazing at the fire, but with quivering lips and a hand whose veins rose like knotted cords.

"The next thing I remember was waking, as it were, under a heavy covering, of waking and feeling that I was undersomething, and that I was in some vehicle. I lay still for some time, and then gained courage to cry out." gained courage to ery out."

"When I cried out, some one, I could not see whom, came and gave me some water. I would not drink it, I said, until they told me where my father was and took me to him. The man in a gruff voice made me be quiet, and told me that I was being taken to Sir Ralph Melville, if that was whom I meant, and advised me if I wished to see him to remain quiet, but feeling very ill and weary, tried to turn. To my horror, I found that I could not move a single limb.

"I think I must have fainted after "I think I must have fainted after that, for the next thing I remember is finding myself lying on that couch, with an old woman standing beside me. She gave me a glass of wine, forced it through my lips, and helped me to sit up. When I did so I saw—be calm, my own, be calm—that I was dressed in grave clothes, swathed like a corpse. Then as if with a flash of lightning, the truth burst upon me. They had drugged us both, papa and me, and passed us off for dead!"

"I spoke to the woman, who com-

"Then when I had gone on for half an hour, and was crying till I thought my heart would break, she laughed, and pointed to her ears and lips. She meant that she was deaf and dumb!"

Clarence started.

"Deaf and dumb!" he repeated. "It is the same old woman. Go on, my darling!"

"Sometimes, when I thought of papa, and fancied that they might treat him cruelly, being a man, I feared I should go mad—don't groan so, darling, it is all over now, I know, for I feel, as if Heaven had whispered it, that you have been sent to save him and me. At last, after seven days, a man entered the room with the old woman. I knew him at a glance, although he was dressed so differently, and had light, golden hair, and was in the garb of a priest. Before he could get into the middle of the room I pointed my finger at him and said:

and said:

"I know you, you bad man; you are Dr. Bromwell, and a scoundrel. Where is my father, Sir Ralph Melville?

"He smiled, just as the false doctor had smiled at the Hall, and came forward with his hand stretched forth.

"Peace, my daughter!' he said; 'cast forth the unclean spirit. I have brought two lowly women to administer to you.'

He looked himself heart-broken at mecessity, but went on, quickly:
"Only for an hour or two. Lilian; only for an hour or two. Heaven will have you in its keeping while I am from your side until I return to save you."

She put her hand in his with a simple trust that set his lips quivering:
"And now," he said, "listen. Tonight—when do you leave this room?"
At ten," she said; 'the woman comes for me and takes me to a room above."
He nodded.
"At nine, then," he added, "I shall be here."

She began trembling.

"Trust me!" said the beautiful girl, all aglow with hope.

"That is all you have to do," he said, "the rest is for me."

Then he said he should have to go, and took her in his arms to say good-by.

But the saying took a long while, and it was not until a footstep warned them of the woman's approach that he could tear himself away.

Softly unholding the door, he caught up his revolver, and made his escape through the secret door, waiting, with is jar, to hear if anyone but the old woman had entered. She was alone and had brought some food, for Clarence heard the rattling of plates.

Rate might scurry over his feet, and water might drip from the damp roof by pailfuls for all he cared now; his heart had risen from the grave, and he was alive again.

So full of meaning had been their first embrace, so much had their eyes told each other, that he had not wasted the precious moments by asking her if she had been about to marry Harry Besant, norshe by requesting the name of the lady whom he had fought the duel.

They had felt within their souls that though all things else were entangled in the web of falsehood and mystery, their loves had stood out relear, burning brightly through it all.

With a sparkle of excitement in her eyes Lilian nodded.
"I will do all!" she said. "Look! I am quite caim."
He smiles an acknowledgment and scarce.

Clarence, by the same means, asked her if she knew who he was.
"Yes," she replied, swiftly, "Master Cli! You won't hurt me?"
"That all depends," said Cli. "You know that I could get you hanged!"
She rocked herself to and fro in great terror, and with incredible swiftness formed out upon her fingers a thousand excuses and pleas for mercy.
Clarence stopped her, for he knew that time was precious, and beckoning Lilian to his side pointed to her and asked:

THE FARM

PERIMENTS WITH AUTUMN SOWN CROPS.

Four hundred and ten farmers throughout Ontario conducted experiments with autumn sown crops during the past year. Reports have been received from thirty-six of the counties of the province. Those counties which furnish the greatest number of good resurts of exceptions. ports of successfully conducted experiments were Middlesex, Huron, Brant Norfolk and Muskoka. The experiment Norfolk and Muskoka. The experiment-ers deserve much credit for the good work which they have done, not only for themselves, but for the farmers gen-erally. Average results of the carefully conducted co-operative experiments with autumn sown crops are here presented in a very concise form.

in a very concise form.

Winter Wheat—Four varieties of winter wheat were distributed last autumn to those farmers who wished to test some of the learing varieties on their own farms. The average yield per acre of straw and of grain are as follows: Imperial Amber, 1.4 tons, 24.1 bushels; Abundance, 1.3 tons, 23.9 bushels, Bulgarian, 1.2 tons, 21.9 bushels, and Nigger, 1.4 tons, 21.9 bushels,

The Imperial Amber gave the greatest yield per acre in the co-operative experiments throughout Ontario in 1907 and in 1908, as well as in 1909. It also came first in popularity with the experimenters in each of these years. The Imperial Amber will again be distributed throughout Ontario this autumn as one of the varieties for co-operative experiments. We distributed the Dawson's Golden Chaff for co-operative experiments throughout Ontario in each of twelve years, but not within the last three years. According to extensive inquiries which we have made this year the Dawson's Golden Chaff is still the most popular and the most extensively grown variety of winter wheat in the province.

Winter Rye-The average yield of province.

Winter Rye—The average yield of grain per acre of each of three varieties of winter rye, distributed in the autumn of 1908, is as follows: Mammoth white, 28.1; Common, 22.1, and Washington, 19.6. In the experiments throughout Ontario the Mammoth White surpassed the Common with the common strikes. Ontario the Mammoth White appearance of fi the Common rye by a average of f bushels per acre in 1907, 5.4 bushels acre in 1908, and six bushels per a Fertilizers with Winter Wheat- In ne co-operative experiments with dif-erent fertilizers applied to winter wheat the average yields of grain per acre for ive years are as follows: Mixed fertilizer, 25.2 bushels: nitrate of soda 23.8 tilizer, 25.2 bushels; nitrate of soda, 23.8 bushels; muriate of potash, 22.9 bushels, and superphosphate, 22.7. bushels. The unfertilized land gave an average of 19.9 bushels per acre. The superphosphate was applied at the rate of 320 pounds and the muriate of potash and the nitrate of soda each 160 pounds and the nitrate of soda each 160 pounds and the nitrate of soda each 160 pounds. per acre. The mixed fertilizer of sisted of one-third of the quantity each of the other three fertilizers her mentioned. The usual cost of the f tilizers as used in this experiment between $4 and $5 per acre.

Fodder Crops—In each of six years the seed of hairy vetches and winter rye has been distributed throughout Ontario for co-operative experiments in testing these crops for fodder purposes. In the average of six years' experiments, the hairy vetches produced slightly the largest yield of green fodder per acre, but in 1909 the largest yield was produced by the winter rye.

DISTRIBUTION OF MATERIAL FOR EXPERIMENTS IN 1909.

As long as the supply lasts material will be distributed free of charge in the will be distributed free of charge in the order in which the applications are received from Ontario farmers wishing to experiment and to report the results of any one of the following tests: 1. Three varieties of winter wheat; 2. two varieties of winter rye; 3. five fertilizers with winter wheat; 4. autumn and spring applications of nitrate of soda and common salt with winter wheat; 5. winter emmer and winter parely; 6. hairy vetches and winter rye as fodder crops. The size of each plot is to be one rod wide by two rods long. Material for Nos. 3 and 4 will be sent by express and that for too others by mail.
